REVOLT SWEEPS GERMANY

DIVORCED WIFE OF W. B. MANN SLAIN IN EAST

Killed on Way from Gompers' Home.

Mrs. Gertrude Harrison Mann, a prominent music teacher and divorced wife of William B. Mann, 1507 North Dearborn street, attorney for the Chicago Telephone company, was found murdered yesterday in a secluded spot in Cleveland Park, a fashionable residential section on the outskirts of Washington, D. C.

The crime is believed to have been committed by a Negro late Thursday afternoon just after Mrs. Mann had left the residence of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, where she had given a music lesson to the labor leader's niece. Robbery may have been the motive.

Seek to Inform Mann.

Efforts were made last night to communicate the news to Mr. Mann, who is spending the winter on his 1,200 acre estate at Caxambas, Marco island, Fla., with his second wife, formerly Miss Julie Edson Manierre, daughter of William Reid Manierre, prominent Chicago warehouseman, clubman, lawyer and former manufacturer, and alderman of the territory now comprised in the Twenty-first ward. Mr. Mann's Florida estate, with its three miles of beach overlooking the Gulf of Mexico, is close to the winter homes of Mr. and Mrs. Edson Keith and the late Mrs. Potter Palmer.

Mr. Manierre received the first news of Mrs. Mann's death through a telegram sent by her daughter, Margaret, a student at Smith college, Northampton, Mass. The message, which was addressed to Attorney Mann, care of the Chicago Telephone company, and forwarded to the Manierre residence in North Dearborn street, read as follows: "Mother died last night. Don't know what to do. Am leaving for Washington. MARGARET."

"I relayed the message to Mr. Mann and my daughter at once," said Mr. Manierre. "That was all the news I had received until informed of the details by THE TRIBUNE."

Washington Aroused.

Washington is aroused over the murder, which suggests a series of similar crimes perpetrated on women by Negroes last summer at the capital and precipitated the race riots there, followed by similar racial disturbances in Chicago and other cities.

Mrs. Mann had not been seen from the time she left the Gompers home Thursday afternoon until her body was found yesterday afternoon by a party of men and women horseback riding through the grove in Cleveland Park. Mrs. Edward Grillo, with whom Mrs. Mann resided, became alarmed when she failed to return home Thursday night. It was the first time that the teacher had failed to come home early in the evening. Mrs. Grillo notified the police to conduct a search for her Friday morning and again yesterday morning. Yesterday afternoon she received the news of the finding of the body.

Beaten to Death.

Mrs. Mann was clubbed to death. Her skull had been crushed, and it was difficult to tell how many blows had been struck. A charred chestnut club and a blood stained rock found near the body were the implements of death. The ground near the body showed that she had put up a desperate fight.

Her handbag, torn open, was found farther on, and near it lay her visiting cards, keys, powder puff, checks, papers, and a letter from her daughter which the thief had flung away in his search for money. Her purse, open and empty, lay a short distance further on. Her hat, crushed by the heavy blows of the assailant, but with the bent pins still in it, lay near the rock, the flinty edge of which had inflicted a deep cut in the right ear.

A man's handkerchief was found knotted about the woman's throat under her fur neckpiece. It was loosely tied and there were no marks on the throat. It is believed that it was used as a gag and slipped down over the woman's chin after she fell.

Footprints Puzzle Police.

The small, sharp footprints of the woman and the broad, flat prints of the man began at some distance from where the body was found, and the police at first were puzzled how she could have walked so far after she had been

The slayer evidently was frightened away before he saw or could seize Mrs.

MAJ. DALRYMPLE FACES FEDERAL COURT CHARGES

"Ruthless" Methods of Agents, Basis.

Maj. A. V. Dalrymple, chief of prohibition agents in the central district, whose recent armed invasion of Iron River, Mich., awoke national criticism, is facing a sweeping federal court investigation of the methods of dry enforcement employed by his office.

The inquiry is the result of charges filed with Judge Carpenter. These allege misuse of governmental authority, violation of the constitutional rights of citizenship, and of the spirit of the national prohibition amendment, filed with Judge Carpenter, and are expected to bring a final court ruling on how dry agents shall proceed in the future.

The district attorney's office has been ordered to make an immediate investigation of the charges against the dry sleuths. Dalrymple and his men will probably be summoned before Judge Carpenter this week to explain their recent activities.

Invasion of Homes Charged.

In a flood of complaints filed in the District court the prohibition agents operating under the major's orders are charged with "ruthless violation of constitutional rights in invading private homes without due warrant of law," the use of profane language and threats to women during raids, and generally exceeding the authority given them by legal statutes.

In a bitter denunciation of the major's methods made to Judge Carpenter by Joseph A. Curry of 1758 West Ohio street, a former saloonkeeper declares that "holdup men are gentlemen as compared with prohibition agents."

Methods Are Described.

"On Feb. 23," he declared in a court affidavit, "five prohibition agents entered my place of business, where myself and three friends were conversing. They announced themselves government officers and at once drew guns, ordering me to come from behind the counter. After searching my friends they turned them out into the street and locked the door, returning, despite my protests that they could show no warrants, to search my place.

"They proceeded in a ruthless search, taking a small bottle of whisky from my pocket and guarding me with guns while they went through my place. After placing me under arrest they took a flashlight they found in my place and walked me up and down outside in the cold in an attempt to make me tell them where I lived.

"'He lives over the place,' said one at last, 'we'll go back and kick the door down.'

Taken to Saloon.

"Later they took me to Patrick J. Peyton's former saloon at 2001 West Grand avenue. They entered and commanded Peyton to throw up his hands, turned a number of customers as well has his own son out of the building—the son without an overcoat—and proceeded to search both the saloon and the house in the rear. They commanded Peyton and myself to sit down at a table, and guarded us with drawn guns while they completed their unwarranted search.

"My place was robbed by holdup men some time ago," Curry adds, "and I was locked in the icebox with some employés at the time. But for rough treatment and the manhandling I received the thieves could not compare with these government agents for ruthlessness."

Charges Home Breaking.

In his affidavit Peyton charges that the agents entered his home and broke into a cedar chest, where they found several pints of bonded whisky.

In another court complaint a woman, whose name was not made public, charged dry officers with the use of "vile and profane language" when they came to her home and demanded entrance.

Another complaint charges that the agents forced an entrance into a private home, arrested its owner without a warrant and held him in a police station for a day without allowing him to procure bail.

A druggist charges that agents demanded to know if he was "ready to treat" after they had checked over his liquor stock and found it intact.

"I poured out drinks," he adds "and they accepted the whisky."

Knoxville, Tenn., Grows Fast, Gets Investigated

Washington, D. C., March 13.—Population statistics for 1920, issued today by the census bureau, included:

Lancaster, Pa., 53,150, an increase of 5,923, or 12.5 per cent over 1910.

Knoxville, Tenn., 77,818, an increase of 41,472, or 114.1 per cent.

The great increase in the population of Knoxville caused census bureau officials to investigate. Annexation of territory and industrial expansion explained it.

FOCH ORDERS MORE TROOPS ACROSS RHINE

Allies Jolted Awake by Berlin Revolt.

BULLETIN.

COBLENZ, March 13.—A conference between Marshal Foch, Field Marshal Sir Henry H. Wilson, chief of the British imperial staff, and Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, commander in chief of the American army of occupation, will be held Monday at French headquarters in Mayence. Marshal Foch already has issued orders that additional troops be moved across the Rhine into the Cologne, Coblenz, and Mayence bridgehead territories.

PARIS, March 13.—Allied statesmen who have gathered in Paris to send a mission to Russia and otherwise try to restore quiet in Europe. were thrown into dismay by the news of the militaristic coup d'etat at Berlin. All pending problems were forgotten before the new and startling development.

All over Paris arose the cry that France alone of all the allies had foreseen this danger and had warned the world. Marshal Foch is the hero of the hour. He was called into consultation by the government this afternoon. In all French quarters there is the demand that the allies take a firm stand at once.

All Germany Won't Follow.

Opinion prevails that the coup at Berlin does not mean that all Germany will follow the new leaders. Bavaria and Rhineland, it is pointed out, will scarcely stand for Prussian military dictation.

Paris received its first news of the overturn of the Berlin government at noon. Within a few moments extras were on the street. Then came announcement of the manifesto signed by Gen. von Luettwitz and Dr. Kapp, saying the "former government has ceased to exist." Late this afternoon another dispatch declares the new masters in Berlin have declared that the mandate of the national assembly to form a constitution and fulfill the treaty obligations have been annulled. It is not yet clear what effect this has upon validity of the treaty of Versailles.

"I Told You So."—Temps.

The Temps tonight says the Berlin development shows how wise France has been to refuse to believe Germany had become democratized. It says, "It is now a question of saving the peace of the world."

The Temps then charges that the overturned government had traitors in it.

"Inexperience and feebleness do not suffice to explain what has happened," it says. "Pabst and Grohowski, for more than a year, have been collaborators. Gustav Noske, minister of defense, was for a so-called republican reich. It is clear these men and Luettwitz have never ceased their efforts for a counter revolution. How does it happen they kept the confidence of Noske and of the government?

"It is all clear to us. Interminable discussions, which have retarded the ratification of peace, propaganda against France, aggressions against the allied military commissions—all were symptoms of the approaching counter revolution. They are well deceived who believe that concessions would better the situation. They only made it worse."

Must Kill Prussianism.

The Intransigeant says: "We cannot depend upon illusory safeguards which we have had placed before our eyes. Unless we wish to leave the door open to a new war, more terrible than the last, and to condemn to death several million men of our generation and of the next generation, we must recognize that the German reich, more Prussianized than ever, cannot exist in Europe if peace is to be maintained.

"Democratization of the reich is our only hope. Germany's disarmament is a joke."

The Matin, in an editorial tomorrow, will warn the allies to watch out for Ludendorff, and advances the idea that he is behind the Berlin happenings.

The Journal des Debats tonight says: "The importance of events in Berlin can escape no one. They prove that the persistent force of military and monarchist elements which for the instant not only seek interior revenge but which plan, without doubt for future exterior revenge."

WIFE KILLS, BUT JURY HOLDS MAN AS RESPONSIBLE

Cruelty Murder, Suicide Cause, Verdict.

A few days ago Mrs. Edgar Joynes, wearied by her struggles for a living and embittered by the loss of her husband's love, turned on the gas and killed herself and her three children.

But a coroner's jury which attended the inquest over the bodies of the woman and her little ones yesterday found in their verdict no bit of censure for the mother.

It developed that Joynes had left his wife, had gone east, and had sent her only $40 a month—a little less than $10 a week. She found it impossible to support herself and the children on that and to pay the mortgage on the little cottage at 5512 West Twenty-sixth street.

Ten dollars a week! The jurors pondered that.

Wanted a Divorce.

It was learned, too, that Joynes had written his wife twice to the effect that he had met a woman in the east whom he was going to marry. And he wanted her, his wife, to get a divorce.

No, the jury, when it had summed up the evidence, didn't blame the woman. It blamed the man. Moreover, and perhaps this is the first instance of the kind, it held him responsible for the deaths of his wife and his children, and recommended that the grand jury indict him for manslaughter.

The jurors in their verdict found that the $40 was a "paltry sum" that left her in want and despair.

Wants Examples Made.

"And we further believe," the verdict reads, "that an example should be made of men who treat their families in this manner."

"I want to say that I thoroughly approve of the jury's verdict," said Coroner Hoffman. "Men should be made to support their families, and men who drive their wives to suicide should be punished for it. The verdict, to my mind, indicates a new era in American life. I am proud of that jury."

Joynes Is Indignant.

Joynes is being held by the Cicero police. He gave out a statement yesterday afternoon, following his incarceration. He was quite indignant.

"Why, I sent her $40 every month," he said. "And I have the letters and canceled checks to prove it."

And he denied there was any other woman in the case.

New Regime to "Modify" Peace Treaty

BERLIN, March 13.—Chancellor Kapp of the new Berlin government and Maj. Gen. von Luettwitz have issued the following proclamation:

"The overthrow of the government must not be taken as reactionary. On the contrary, it is a progressive measure of patriotic Germans of all parties, with a view to reëstablishing law, order, discipline, and honest government in Germany. It is an overdue attempt to lay the foundations for the economic resuscitation of Germany, enabling her to fulfill those conditions of the peace treaty which are reasonable and not self-destructive.

Asks Help of Workers.

"Inspired by zeal and a desire for the benefit of all the German people, the new government invites heartily the acceptance and coöperation of the independents for the creation and elaboration of laws for the betterment of the working classes."

The manifesto charges the Socialist government with overburdening the people with taxation, failing to create conditions for an increase of production in all lines, suppressing newspapers which criticize it, and otherwise interfering with personal liberty, and refusing to dissolve the national assembly and issue writs for new elections.

Erzberger as Scapegoat.

"Last, but not least," says the manifesto, "a government whose chief spokesman is Erzberger must be swept away."

It further declares that a change of government is purely an internal affair and a German question, which alone concerns the German people. It promises to use every effort to maintain internal and external peace and prevent a recurrence of the mistakes of "a government now happily defunct and obsolete."

Gen. von Luettwitz previously had issued the following order, in which he assumed military control:

"I am personally taking over the executive power for Berlin and the mark of Brandenburg. All decrees issued by Defense Minister Herr Noske in accordance with the decree of Jan. 13 will remain in force.

Martial Law Maintained.

"The decree of Jan. 13 relative to the proclamation of martial law is maintained and extended to those parts of the imperial territory not yet affected thereby. The state of siege hitherto existing in the free state of Saxony is at the same time raised.

"The troops under command of the newly formed government are charged with the execution of the requisite measures."

NATIONS LEAGUE ORDERS INQUIRY INTO RED RUSSIA

PARIS, March 13.—The league of nations council today adopted a resolution for the appointment of a commission of ten members for the investigation of conditions in Russia.

At the executive council meeting Leon Bourgeois acted as president. He said the league already had shown its reality and vitality.

Arthur J. Balfour, the British representative, replied that he expected the various nations and peoples would give the league all the work it could do.

REBELS OCCUPY HAMBURG; DENY ROYALTY IS AIM

Ebert Inefficiency Is Cause, They Say.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[By Special Cable.]

HAMBURG, March 14.—The new government is absolutely in control of Hamburg and the surrounding country.

Here alone is proof of the national scope of the plan to oust the Ebert régime and the new officers unqualifiedly state that all western and southern Germany, as well as the northern and eastern sections, are prepared to receive notice of the change in administration and to maintain peace and order.

So, instead of a comic opera revolution in which only 5,000 men might have participated, it is a movement backed by millions of people who merely are awaiting the signal to declare a new order of things.

This clearly is demonstrated by the situation in Hamburg. Correspondents who were on the way to watch the Schleswig plebiscite tomorrow passed through Hamburg without seeing the slightest signs of excitement. They heard rumors of the big developments in Berlin, but this city still has its normal aspect.

Rebel Chief Tells Purposes.

The following explanation came from one of the commanders of the troops here:

"We knew that this was coming for a long time. The Reichswehr and the militarized police, the one numbering 3,000 and the other 5,000, had fully agreed to act as a unit if the new government was proclaimed. They now are working in complete harmony to control the situation and, if necessary, they can immediately enroll thousands of volunteers and citizens to maintain order.

"We do expect trouble, for this is not a monarchistic revolution, but the peremptory action of the nation to place its affairs in the hands of men qualified to handle them. Therefore, antimonarchistic radicals are not opposing, but are supporting the change.

Raid on Jails Is Foiled.

"Last night the Spartacists planned to raid the jails and release the prisoners, but our precautions were so thorough they did not make a move, and today word came from their headquarters in Berlin to support the new government and create no disturbance.

"The reason for this is clearly seen by the nature of the proposals for the reorganization of the government. which are almost certain to be carried into effect. We will allow all factions ample representation. The present tentative plan is for a representative ministry with all parties protected.

"I do not consider all is over yet. The Ebert government certainly will attempt to recapture the reins, but we believe they will soon recognize the futility of their efforts. Such a move will lead to bloodshed, which we all hope to prevent.

Not Time for Monarchy.

"This is not a monarchistic coup, because while we believe the best form of government is a constitutional government with a king in name only, we realize this is not the time to establish it. The time may not arrive for ten or fifteen years. But this movement is not monarchistic. Von Luettwitz and the other men now in charge are not monarchists.

"The full truth is that they know the Ebert government is absolutely incompetent, and with the elections postponed indefinitely the only way to put an efficient government in charge was to use force. No more than necessary will be used."

ALLIES MAY RENEW DEMAND THAT DUTCH GIVE UP EX-EMPEROR

LONDON, March 14, 3 a. m.—[United Press.]—The National News says today that as a result of the revolution in Germany the allies will send a new drastic note to Holland demanding immediate surrender of the former kaiser.

Ex-Kaiser Carefully Watched.

THE HAGUE, March 13.—[By the Associated Press.]—Neither the former emperor nor the crown prince is implicated in the overthrow of the government in Germany, so far as can be learned here.

The Associated Press was assured today by an entirely reliable authority that both Amerongen castle, where the former emperor lives, and the Island of Wieringen, where the former crown prince makes his residence, are so closely guarded that it will be unnecessary for the Dutch government to take further measures to prevent intrigue or their escape.

Finds Holland Dreary.

GENEVA, March 13. — A telegram from Constance says the German ex-crown prince intends shortly to demand of the German government that he be interned at Davos, Switzerland, instead of Holland, where he considers life dull and society restricted. Nothing, however, is known in official circles at Berne concerning the report so far, which is not improbable, as the prince's family visited Switzerland every year before the war. The political side of the transfer may be difficult, as the consent of the allies would be necessary.

TROOPS CLASH WITH WORKERS AS EBERT FLEES

"Chancellor" Kapp Rules Berlin.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, March 13.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Paris tonight said that several conflicts between troops and workmen have occurred at Frankfort-on-Main, Germany, and that many men were injured.

BERLIN, March 13.—The government of Friedrich Ebert, the Socialist president of the German republic, was overthrown today by a military coup d'état.

Late reports indicate that the revolt is spreading rapidly throughout the provinces.

Gen. von Hindenburg is spoken of as the temporary "imperial president" pending new elections.

The coup was accomplished without bloodshed, and Berlin is quiet tonight, with troops of the new government patrolling the streets in conjunction with the police of the old régime.

Kapp New "Chancellor."

Dr. Wolfgang Kapp, one of the founders of the publication Fatherland and general director of the Agricultural society, has taken over the duties of Gustav Bauer, the chancellor, and has temporarily assumed supreme direction of affairs.

In a manifesto he has declared that the new government is not reactionary nor monarchist, and that the old régime was overthrown because of a demand for new elections.

When the Kapp contingent took over the reins of government this morning President Ebert and most of his cabinet fled to Dresden. As a result, there are two contending governments in Germany.

Ebert Tries Trump Card.

Prior to leaving Berlin, President Ebert and his ministers issued a proclamation calling on the people to rise in a general strike as the only means of preventing the return of Wilhelm II. to power.

To prevent these strikes and to preserve order, as it is contemplated by the new régime, masses of troops and naval brigades with artillery have been brought into the capital and dominate the situation.

The Ebert government had knowledge beforehand of the pending counter revolution, but the precautions taken proved to be entirely inadequate.

Bolt Out of Clear Sky.

Outside of the security police and the Noske troops on patrol, nothing indicated at 3 o'clock this morning that Berlin would wake up to find the Ebert government turned out. The president himself left Berlin with some of his followers two hours after that time.

Admiral von Trotha, dispatched to Doeberitz in an effort to stop the troops, failed in his mission.

Noske Troops Not Loyal.

The realization was finally brought home to the cabinet that the army which Gustav Noske, minister of defense, was supposed to control was far from being the loyal organization he counted on, and that the Berlin garrisons had also been inoculated by propaganda of the officers of the old school and were ready for the rising when the call came.

The secrecy with which the revolution was planned and carried out has stunned every one. The former minister of foreign affairs, Gottlieb von Jagow, and Gen. Baron von Faulkenhausen, former governor general of Belgium, are among the leaders of the counter revolution. One report says Von Jagow has been appointed minister of foreign affairs.

Barbed Wire in Streets.

The entrance into Wilhelmstrasse from Unter den Linden is barred off with barbed wire and further protected with field guns and machine guns. Numerous troops with their lorries and field kitchens are stationed outside the British embassy close to the corner. Their flag, Germany's former naval colors, is leaning against the embassy window.

There has been no atempt to molest foreigners, and members of the allied missions find no difficulty in passing in their cars through the barricades.

The ordinary Berliner seems to treat the counter revolution lightly, but on investigation one finds a general feeling of uneasiness as to what the future may bring forth.

Proclamation Calling Strike.

The Ebert proclamation calling for a general strike, and which aimed to tie the hands of the revolutionists, follows:

"Workmen comrades: The military revolt has come. Erhardt's naval division has marched on Berlin to enforce the recognition of the imperial government. The mercenary troops who were afraid of the disbandment which had been ordered desire to put the reactionaries into the ministerial posts.

Won't Bow to Military.

"We refuse to bow to this military constraint. We did not make the revolution in order to recognize again today the bloody government of mercenaries. We enter into no covenant with the Baltic criminals. Workers, comrades, we should be ashamed to look you in the face if we were capable of acting otherwise.

"We say 'No,' and again 'No.' You must indorse what we have done. We carried out your views. Now use every means to destroy this return of bloody reaction.

"Throttle Dictatorship."

"Strike! Cease to work! Throttle this military dictatorship! Fight with all your means for the preservation of the republic. Put aside all division. There is only one means against the return of Wilhelm II. Paralyze all economic life. Not a hand must move. No proletariat shall help the military dictatorship.

"Let there be a general strike along the entire line. Let the proletariat act as a unit."

The manifesto was signed by President Ebert, Premier Bauer, Gustav Noske, the minister of defense; Herr Schlike, the minister of labor; Dr. Schmidt, the minister of food; Dr. Eduard David, minister without portfoli, and Dr. Herman Mueller, minister of foreign affairs; the Social Democratic members of the government, and by Otto Wels for the executive committee of the German Social Democratic party.

Events Dramatic and Rapid.

The events that led to the unseating of the Ebert government were dramatic and rapid in sequence.

Last evening it became known that the government of President Ebert and Minister of Defense Noske had come upon traces of a serious plot to overthrow the republican régime. Orders were issued for the arrest of the men believed to be mainly concerned.

These were, first and chiefly, Dr. Wolffgang Kapp, noted as a recationary, who has been prominent in all agitations of the Fatherland party and an extreme antagonist of the republican government, and Gen. Von Luettwitz, who was in command of the first self-styled group of reichswehr, or empire defense forces.

Plot Beyond Control.

With them were associated Capt. Pabst, a cavalry officer of the guard, who had taken a leading part in suppression of the Spartacist revolt last year. Apparently, notwithstanding the precautionary measures taken by the government, the plot had gone too far to be arrested, as the troops selected for the seizure of Berlin were already on the way, and the force at the disposal of the government was not only insufficient but was not altogether dependable.

When the news came that revolutionary forces from the big camp at Doeberitz were on the march officers of rank belonging to the government troops were sent to meet them as emissaries of the president, to order them to desist and return to their quarters.

Troops for Defense Lacking.

The mutineers, who belonged mainly to naval brigades, with some additions from Baltic troops, who have always been disaffected and undisciplined, met the government's representatives, of whom the chief was Gen. Von Oldershausen; and proposed some terms of an extreme character which were referred to the cabinet in Berlin.

The meeting of the cabinet extended far into the night, with an anxious deliberation on means of defense. Nothing came of the negotiations and at 5 o'clock this morning President Ebert and his family, with most of the old cabinet, left the city for Dresden.

ALTONA FOR NEW RULE

HAMBURG, March 13.—Baron von Warganheim, superior garrison officer at Altona (on the right bank of the Elbe, adjoining Hamburg on the northwest) has issued a statement announcing the advent of the "imperial government." He declares he is assuming executive power over Greater Hamburg and the surrounding district.

During the midday lunch period workers in the shipyards at Altona decided to cease work, and left for Hamburg.

Baden for Old Regime.

KARLSRUHE, Baden, March 13.—The government of Baden has issued a proclamation saying that it does not recognize the "reactionary" government at Berlin, and will have no intercourse with it.

Gen. von Davans, commander in chief of the Baden army, declared this afternoon he would support the Baden government against the new Berlin government.

In an appeal to the people of Baden to support the administration Gen. von Davans says:

"The existence of the state is in danger. Enemy occupation is menacing us. Save the republic."

Berlin Is Quiet.

COPENHAGEN, March 13.—A message from the semi-official German news agency, timed at 2 o'clock this afternoon in Berlin, says that city was quiet at the hour named, the streets presenting almost a normal aspect. Only in Unter den Linden and in the government quarter was there more traffic activity than usual observed.

The government buildings, the message adds, were occupied by troops, and soldiers were bivouacking in Wilhelmplatz. The street car and elevated railway traffic was proceeding without disturbance.

The demands on the government in the ultimatum presented by the Erhardt naval brigade were the replacement of nonprofessional ministers by professional ministers, the reinstatement of Gen. Baron von Luettwitz in his command, and the granting of amnesty to all persons arrested in connection with the revolutionary movement, including Capt. Pabst, who was a prominent member of the guards cavalry division.

Royalist Coup Denied.

COLOGNE, March 13.—[By the Associated Press.]—The new government established in Berlin is not intended to promote the aims of the monarchists or the reactionaries, it is declared in a dispatch to the Cologne Gazette from Berlin today. The message reads:

"The new government under Chancellor Kapp says in its program to be made public that it will honorably fulfill the treaty of Versailles. It gives emphatic assurances that the government has no reactionary or monarchical aims."

The workers in the Ruhr basin have announced themselves as opposed to a general strike.

The Munster garrison remains loyal to the old government.

REBELS CONTROL MUNICH

PARIS, March 13.—It is announced among leaders of the new government at Berlin that revolutionary troops are in control at Munich.

Gottlieb von Jagow has been appointed minister of foreign affairs, Berlin advices say.

Dr. Schiffer, former minister of justice; Mathias Erzberger, former finance minister; Herr Haenisch, Prussian minister of worship, and Dr. Karl Hein, former Prussian minister of justice, have been arrested.

The reichswehr have entered into an agreement with the revolutionists.

Civil War Is Feared.

A dispatch from Saarbrücken to the Temps says it is expected that civil war will start in Germany as a result of the revolutionary move.

The German charge, Dr. Mayer von Kaufbeuren, has received word of the overthrow of the German government, but is without news of succeeding events taking place at Berlin.

Officials of the German embassy express the opinion that the new government is not reactionary. The younger element in the embassy, and those connected with the peace delegation, are in high spirits over the turn of events, and are struggling hard to repress their enthusiasm.

The opinion expressed in official circles at the moment is that the allied governments will take an attitude of aloofness and detachment toward the civil strife in Germany and permit the German people themselves to determine the form of their government.

The armed disorders in Germany are looked upon as most unfortunate both for that country and the remainder of Europe at the time when reconstruction had been begun.

Treaty "Scrap of Paper."

"If the German military caste is able to organize a dictatorship, as it now seems to intend, it means that the treaty of Versailles now is a scrap of paper," a high French official said tonight.

"I do not believe the former kaiser will be restored," the official said. "There probably will be either a régime under men like Field Marshal von Hindenburg and Gen. Erich Ludendorff or a soviet government similar to Russia's.

"The militarist régime is more likely because the German people have been told constantly that their army was not defeated. That opinion has been used to influence against enforcement of the terms of the peace treaty, as has been proved by the many recent attempts to prevent application of the terms of the Versailles pact and the insults toward members of the allied missions."

LONDON LACKS DETAILS

LONDON, March 13.—The British foreign office this afternoon received official confirmation of the revolution in Berlin, but are without details, and, while many officials believe it is serious, they are in hopes it may not extend beyond the capital, and may yet be suppressed. Little is known here of the leaders, except Dr. Kapp and Gen. von Luettwitz. The former is known as a fanatical pan-German publicist, and the latter was well known before the war, and also is pan-German. It is not doubted here that the object of the revolution is the restoration of the monarchy, and it is believed the Hohenzollerns are behind the movement.

It is declared that under no circumstances will Great Britain recognize the Hohenzollern restoration.

Herr von Sthamer, the German chargé in London, is without news from Berlin, and declares he believes the situation exaggerated. He fails to understand how the Ebert-Noske government could have fallen without fighting.

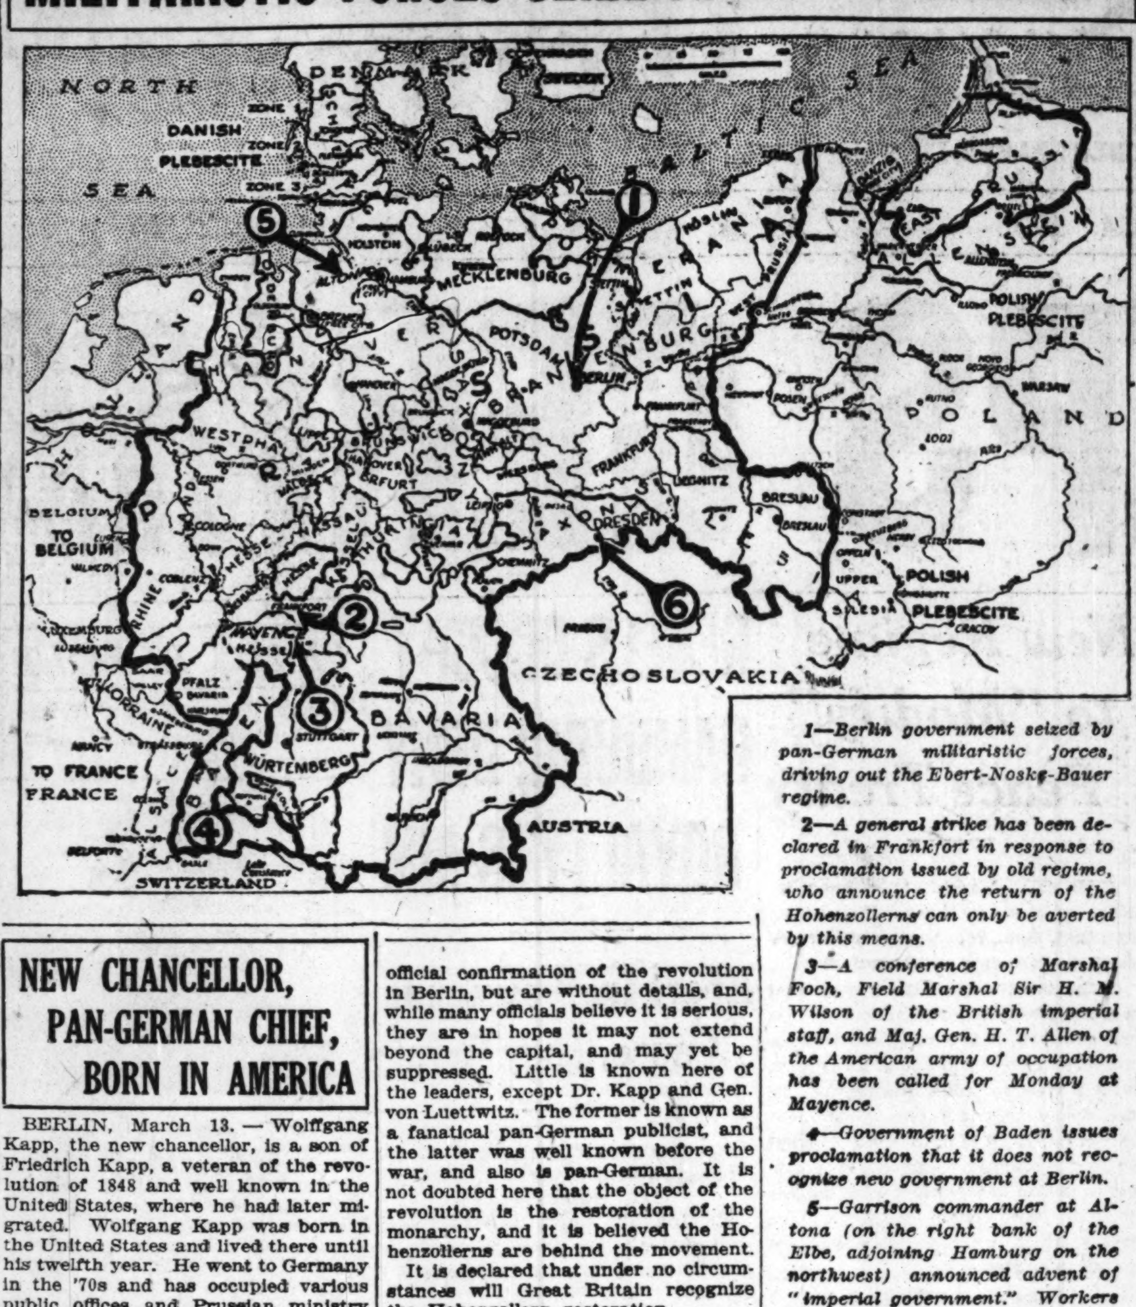
Herr Noske, minister of defense in the Ebert government, has surrendered to the new government, according to reports received here from Berlin.

A Berlin dispatch to the Central News says that counter measures from the Left radicals are expected tonight.

Many prominent supporters of the Ebert government have been arrested. They include Ulrich Rauscher, head of the German press service.

Reports reaching the Weekly Dispatch from Berlin say that in the provinces a similar "peaceful overthrow of the Socialist government" has occurred, except at Brunswick and Madgeburg.

MILITARISTIC FORCES SEIZE POWER IN GERMANY



1—Berlin government seized by pan-German militaristic forces, driving out the Ebert-Noske-Bauer regime.

2—A general strike has been declared in Frankfort in response to proclamation issued by old regime, who announce the return of the Hohenzollerns can only be averted by this means.

3—A conference of Marshal Foch, Field Marshal Sir H. M. Wilson of the British imperial staff, and Maj. Gen. H. T. Allen of the American army of occupation has been called for Monday at Mayence.

4—Government of Baden issues proclamation that it does not recognize new government at Berlin.

5—Garrison commander at Altona (on the right bank of the Elbe, adjoining Hamburg on the northwest) announced advent of "imperial government." Workers in shipyards at Altona ceased work and left for Hamburg.

6—President Ebert and members of the old régime have set up their headquarters of government at Dresden, Saxony.

NEW CHANCELLOR, PAN-GERMAN CHIEF, BORN IN AMERICA

BERLIN, March 13.—Wolffgang Kapp, the new chancellor, is a son of Friedrich Kapp, a veteran of the revolution of 1848 and well known in the United States, where he had later migrated. Wolfgang Kapp was born in the United States and lived there until his twelfth year. He went to Germany in the '70s and has occupied various public offices and Prussian ministry posts.

Herr Kapp was one of last year's most active Pan-Germans and with Admiral von Tirpitz was founder of the Fatherland party. He was the author of a secret memorial against Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, which was exposed during a session of the old reichstag.

Maj. Gen. Baron von Luettwitz is a soldier of the old school. He was in charge of the First regiment in Berlin during the early revolutionary days, when he came to the rescue of the new government with troops which ultimately succeeded in putting down Spartacan uprisings.

Von Luettwitz has also been an outspoken and fearless critic of the régime now overthrown, and it is said that Ministser of Defense Noske forced him from the influential position which he had held.

LITTLE BROTHERS OF UNCLE SAM JOIN LEAGUE

LONDON, March 13.—Salvador and Venezuela have deposited their declarations of assent to the covenant of the league of nations, thus completing the list of thirteen nations invited to become original members of the league.

Cuba Now at Peace.

HAVANA, March 13.—[By the Associated Press.]—Cuba is now at peace with Germany and official relations soon will be resumed, according to an official note issued by the council of secretaries.

Disposition of several German vessels interned during the war remains undecided, but no action will be taken until after conference with the Cuban minister to Washington, Senor Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, who is expected in Havana shortly.

The question of the amount of indemnity to be exacted by Cuba will be studied by a committee composed of the secretaries of foreign affairs, treasury and agriculture and Senor Dr. Sanchez de Bustament, Cuba's delegates to the peace conference.

"I TOLD YOU SO," GERARD COMMENT ON BERLIN COUP

New York, March 13.—James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, tonight expressed the belief that cities dominated by the working class and the Socialists in Germany would resist strongly the government set up in Berlin and Munich by Von Kapp and other monarchists.

"In speaking at Chicago last week I predicted this very thing," Gerard said. "I said then that there were five things the German people demanded—Food, peace, a fixing of the indemnity, raw materials for manufacture, and a reëstablishment of credits. I said that if these were not forthcoming immediately there would be a tendency to upset the government.

"The monarchist government will make a natural appeal to the ordinary German mind, which has been trained for hundreds of years in the education of monarchists, militaristic discipline. They have always held a certain contempt for those who were not well born."

Prison Term for Major; Death of Driver Cause

Las Cruces, N. M., March 13.—Maj. F. M. Scanland, charged with murder in connection with the death of John M. Hutchinson, race car driver, on Nov. 2, 1919, tonight was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter. Sentence of one to ten years in the penitentiary was imposed.

A motion for a new trial was denied. An appeal to the supreme court was granted and the defendant admitted to $10,000 bail.

EBERT, ELECTED FEB. 11, 1919, HAD HARD ROW TO HOE

One Crisis After Another for First President.

Friedrich Ebert, formerly head of the main committee of the reichstag and a leader of the Social Democratic party, was elected first president of the new German "progressive republic" for a term of seven years on Feb. 11, 1919, by the national assembly at Weimar. He has been characterized as a type of Pan-German or imperialistic socialist.

It was the Ebert government which arose from the ruins of the Hohenzollern dynasty and which enabled the entente allies to conclude peace with Germany.

On Nov. 10, 1918, when former Emperor William abdicated and fled, Ebert was the imperial chancellor, having succeeded Prince Maximilian of Baden, who was instrumental in negotiating the armistice.

Puts Down First Revolt.

He at once assumed command and succeeded in quelling revolutionary outbreaks. The red flag was hoisted over the Brandenburg gate and the royal palace after wild scenes in Berlin, where the people shouted "Long live the republic," and sang the Marseillaise.

"The new government will be a government of the people," Chancellor Ebert said. "It must make every effort to secure in the quickest possible time peace for the German people and consolidate the liberty they have won. The new government has taken charge of the administration to preserve the German people from civil war and famine and to accomplish their legitimate claims to autonomy."

The Independent Socialists, including a radical element favorable to bolshevism and known as Spartacides, complicated Ebert's problem. When he became chancellor many of these radicals, including Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, were freed from prison and the two mentioned were subsequently assassinated.

Copy House of Lords.

The national assembly which elected Ebert was formed for the purpose of adopting a constitution. Its document, which was approved Aug. 2, provided that "the executive power lies with the people." The power of the upper chamber of the reichstag was limited similar to the British house of lords.

There was special protection for labor and "generally accepted rules for international law" incorporated in the new instrument. Ebert took the oath of office on Aug. 23 and two days later the national assembly ceased to exist, it being superceded by the new reichstag.

Philipp Scheidemann was the first premier of Germany under Ebert. Gustave Noske, formerly minister of demobilization and before that governor of Kiel, was named the first minister of army and navy. By reason of his drastic enforcement of new regulations he became known as a "dictator."

First "Republican" Cabinet.

Other members of the first Ebert cabinet were:

Minister of interior, Herr Preus; justice, Herr Sendsberg; commerce, Herr Muller; labor, Herr Bauer; foreign affairs, Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, former German minister to Denmark; under foreign minister, Von Richthofen; finance, Herr Schiffer; postal and telegraph, Herr Geisberg; ministers without portfolio, Dr. Mathias Erzberger, armistice commissioner, former state secretary and leader of the Centrist party; Eduard David, president of the national assembly, and Herr Wissel.

The Ebert government underwent many changes by reason of political, economic, and popular demands.

The first real crisis to threaten the Ebert régime, however, arose over the question of accepting the peace treaty terms. Ebert, Scheidemann, and other leaders were opposed to yielding to the entente demands.

Scheidemann resigned and a protreaty cabinet, including Dr. August Mueller and ex-Labor Secretary Bauer, former Socialist members of the reichstag, was organized. Bauer, in a speech at Weimar before the national assembly, denounced the treaty in strong terms, but announced the government's decision to sign.

For weeks before the revolution broke out in Berlin there was a steady run on the German banks. Ebert, then chancellor, had a conference in Berlin on Nov. 25, 1918, with seventy delegates from various parts of Germany, said:

"Everything was in ruin when we took charge. Now, however, a Socialist republic has replaced the monarchy and power has been put in the hands of workmen and soldiers."

The first aim to be achieved, he said, was peace and the security of an economic basis. Liberty, he maintained, was worthless without food and employment, and it was as a result of this conference that the national assembly met last spring to devise a constitutional form of government.

One Crisis After Another.

Meanwhile the provisional government had been in an almost constant state of flux. Ministers came and went. Owing to scarcity of food, clothing and fuel conditions in many parts of Germany were reported desperate, and there were many rumors that soviet government would supersede the Ebert régime.

President Ebert had the backing of the moderates of Germany almost from the beginning. One reason for this was that when he succeeded Prince Maximilian he announced that property rights would be respected, that no banks would be seized, and that the government would uphold the German war losses and pay all claims on the state.

Civil War in Germany Sure, Capital View of Coup d'Etat

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Dispatches to the state department from diplomatic representatives in Paris and The Hague confirm the news of the overthrow of the Ebert government in Germany and the institution of monarchist and militarist control of the empire.

This information has caused deep concern in government circles, where the feeling prevails that the situation may compel the allied powers to undertake forcible measures to require Germany to carry out the terms of the treaty of Versailles.

No official information has come to the state department or any other government agency direct from Berlin, where Ellis P. Dresel, who was one of the political and diplomatic experts attached to the American commission in Paris, is in charge of American interests.

All Dispatches Garbled.

The dispatches from Paris and The Hague were garbled in transmission and great difficulty was experienced in making sense out of them.

The messages, read in the light of press dispatches, left no doubt in the minds of government officials that the party now dominant in Berlin was monarchistic and militaristic. That it would like to restore the old Hohenzollern dynasty is the inference drawn from the occurrences in the German capital.

There is a well grounded opinion here, however, that the allied governments will not consent to the restoration of Emperor William or the crown prince. Whether they would permit any of the younger princes to seize the throne only the future can determine.

Signs Told of Rebellion.

Signs of a marked change in the feelings and attitude of the German people have not been wanting, and the recent attacks by mobs in German cities upon members of the allied commissions and the tenor of recent German notes regarding the fulfillment of peace terms have prepared entente diplomats here for some such development as came today.

While using this public feeling to place themselves in power, the revolutionists, in the opinion here, will avoid antagonizing the allied governments.

Knowing the deep seated aversion of the German people to a renewal of war, it is felt that should they gain complete control they will take no steps justifying a forcible military occupation of the country by the entente armies.

"Germany is flat on its back," said one diplomatic representative today, referring to the military resources of the country. He said that, while still strong in man power, the Germans lacked the raw material, food supplies, ships, aircraft, railway cars, and other material necessary for extensive military operations.

No Fear of Soviet Link.

Suggestions that the revolutionists might seek a union with the Russian bolsheviki are discounted here. Such a union, it is explained, would provoke the firmest opposition not only of Great Britain and France but the United States.

Officials said, however, that the revolution might indirectly play into the hands of Lenin by giving a new and powerful impetus to the Spartacist movement. The rise of any reactionary régime against the government of Social Democrats, it was said, naturally was calculated to provoke the Communists and radical Socialists to extreme action.

This view seemed to be borne out by the first move of the Ebert government—the issuing of a proclamation calling on the proletariat to join in a general strike.

Civil War Expected.

With the revolutionists in control in Berlin and the Ebert government set up in Dresden, some observers here regard civil strife as practically certain.

The report that Field Marshal von Hindenburg had been proclaimed "imperial president" of Germany attracted interest in official circles. If Hindenburg heads the new régime, it is believed he would be merely a cat's-paw for Gen. Ludendorff, who is regarded as the real force behind the movement.

One serious factor is that Germany apparently has still a formidable military force.

List of Allied Forces.

The strength of the principal allied forces in the occupied territory is in detail as follows:

French troops, 154,000; British troops, 106,000; United States troops, 15,000, including those being used for policing Silesia during the plebiscite period.

It is the intention of the United States government to reduce its armed forces in the German occupied territory to 6,800. There are now in European countries, according to the latest reports received, 774 officers and 16,316 men of the American army. Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen commands the American troops in the occupied areas. Brig. Gen. William H. Sage commands the American contingent in Silesia.

NOSKE DECEIVES WORLD, FRANCE SAYS OF CLAIMS

Treaty Not Obeyed at All, Paris Temps States.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[By Special Cable.]

PARIS, March 13.—Charges and counter charges both by Germany and the allies as to the disposition and capacity of the latter to fulfill the terms of the Versailles treaty have been brought to showdown by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Germany's official report on its efforts to comply with the treaty terms, published prominently in today's issue of the European edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, has created a furor in the allies' foreign offices throughout Europe.

Its frank presentation and open accrediting to Germany's official sources has had the effect of defining the difference still existing betwen the allied and former enemy commissioners on the execution of the peace terms.

Reply to Noske's Article.

The government of France, through the medium of its official organ, the Temps, replied this afternoon item by item to the Noske statement reproduced in the Paris edition of THE TRIBUNE. The tenor of the French reply is a contradiction, carrying with it a frankly stated suspicion of lack of sincerity and truthfulness in Germany's professed acceptance of all the terms.

Apropos of the government reply, non-French circles in Paris readily affirm that "if there is one thing a Frenchman does know it is his German."

The intimation of the French government is that Germany has in fact disbanded the old military organization that prevailed on the front on Nov. 11, 1918, but at the same time it has replaced this with an extensive militia organization, the apparent excuse for whose existence is the maintenance of internal peace, an excuse that France regards only as a subterfuge.

Fears Allies' Indifference.

The French government intimates the seriousness of this situation is not sufficiently felt in Washington and London. Germany is not sufficiently repentant to satisfy French hopes for future safety.

Through the Temps editorial runs a poorly disguised strain of displeasure concerning the publication of the Noske report in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and in its Paris edition The Temps captions its article "An Interested Pleading."

There is an apparent lack of realization in France of American journalistic principles of impartiality in delving for the truth of the situation. THE TRIBUNE'S reproduction of Noske's statement has had, however, a much desired effect in clarifying the situation to such an extent that now those who believe Germany is helpless and those who suspect her reserve strength is preparing for the next "tag" and have been placed in a position where they can compare the information compiled by both sides and arrive at the real truth.

Says Minister Deceives.

"The European edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE," the Temps says, "opened its colums to the pleading of Gustave Noske, German minister of war, who endeavors to demonstrate that Germany, having loyally and faithfully fulfilled the obligations to which it subscribed, finds itself today reduced to absolute impotence.

"THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE correspondent in Berlin telegraphed his paper that Noske had drawn up a declaration setting forth in detail what his country had done until now to comply with the disarmament clauses of the treaty of Versailles.

"Three months after ratification of the peace treaty, Noske, 'the man with the iron hand,' proudly proclaimed having fulfilled the engagements taken by him to clip the wings of militarism, at the same time commenting bitterly on the harshness of the entente requirements.

Exposing Berlin's Obedience.

"Then follows the exposé written by the German minister of war tending to establish that the demobilization of the ancient army is completed, that the constitution of the new army of 100,000 men, provided by the treaty, is real since March 10 last; that German endeavors to fulfill loyally the other clauses of the treaty relating to destruction of fortifications, and munitions, have been completed.

"As regards the navy, it no longer exists but in name, and finally the aviation personnel would be now reduced to 2,000 men.

"Today, Noske says, Germany finds itself with no army, no fortifications, and no navy.

"The minister of war purposely forgets the various 'guards' which under inoffensive names such as 'safety guards,' 'civic guards,' and others, are real military formations following the method adopted in 1807 by Minister of War Scharnhorst.

How They Evaded in 1807.

"In his memorandum of July 31, 1807, Scharnhorst wrote:

'One could organize with the young men of 20 years a territorial militia which would serve two ends: first, to guard the peace of the country, to help the police in case of trouble, and to protect the inhabitants against looters; second, to defend the country in cooperation with the regular troops if circumstances requiring the defense of the country occurred, that the militia could be increased silently and would serve with the regular army.'

"The government of the Reisch following the inspiration of the Ludendorffs, Luetzows, Luettwitzs and other apostles of that doctrine of the old general staff is actually achieving, despite all the representation of the supreme council of the allies and the commissions of control, the organization in the whole of Germany of these 'local militia,' which will be able at the first signal to muster at least 2,000,000 men.

Echo of Century's Duplicity.

"These are the preparations of a new 1813, which are taking place and which one seems unconcerned in Washington and in London. Noske imitates Scharnorst, and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, which publishes his allegations with so much haste, is careful to pass all the rest in silence.

"In view of the declarations made by Noske to the correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE it behooves us to mention the following information which is considered worthy of credence by competent persons.

"Between November, 1918, and March, 1919, Germany had some 800,000 men of its old army under the colors. Little by little there was added to this various formations [Volswehr, etc.], of which the total amounted to about 100,000 men. The total of these forces had only a mediocre value.

"From March to October, 1919, one saw the constitution of a Reischwehr of about 350,000 men. Besides, the formations of the old army, not yet dissolved, there are volunteer troops, representing about 250,000 men.

The New Organization.

"On the other hand detachments of Zicherheitswehr and Zicherheitstolizei were organized [about 25,000 men], "temporary volunteers" and "troops of technical help" [about 75,000 men], and finally the "civic guard" [amounting to about 300,000 men].

"In the aggregate Germany, therefore, succeeded in having, first, an army of mediocre value of which the various formations amount to about 600,000 men; second, 400,000 militia men, temporary volunteers, detachments of police, etc., of which the value of some was very variable. The Zicherheitswehr and the technical troops are elite bodies, while the civic guard is, on the whole, only a passable national guard.

"Actually Germany appears to have about 200,000 men of the Reichswehr and about as many men belonging to the old army or to diverse formations.

Total Begins to Mount.

"This would amount to 400,000 men of average quality; then there are about 120,000 men of the Zicherheitswehr of which the organization is spreading and perfecting, and about 200,000 men of volunteers and technical troops of which the recruitment is actually in force.

"The Zicherheitswehr and the technical troops are chiefly composed of ancient noncommissioned officers. Finally a considerable mass of civic guards compelled to periodical musterings and drilling, of which the total number appears to be about 2,500,000 men."

The Fargo automobile was running west in Davis street when it was hit by Hoover's car, which was southbound in Judson avenue. The Fargo car overturned, pinioning Miss Buigy beneath it. Residents of the neighborhood rushed to the scene and aided Charles E. Fargo Jr., who was unhurt, in removing the injured girl.

Hoover, who was held by the Evanston police, said his father had purchased the car Friday.

ARMY CONCERTS ECHO IN ARREST OF A.E.F. VETERAN

Concerts given as part of the entertainment overseas to Uncle Sam's soldiers, aroused a love of music in George Pierce, 25 years old, 3449 Indiana avenue, now a janitor employed by the Kimball Piano company, 308 South Wabash avenue, and yesterday indirectly led to his arrest.

Policeman Fred Sticker questioned Pierce when he saw the ex-soldier carrying a bulky bundle at Wabash avenue and Harrison street.

When the bundle was opened it was found to contain thirty-nine player-piano rolls.

"What are you going to do with these—sell them?" asked the policeman.

"I'm going to buy a player piano and I wanted to have a good supply of music on hand," he explained. He is being held pending investigation.

BOND INQUIRY RUMORED AFTER PRISONER FLEES

Man Held as Thief Walks from Court.

Police last night searched the city for traces of Edward Angler, alleged fur thief and shoplifter, wanted on six capiases for forfeiture of bonds totaling $12,000.

Angler walked out of the courtroom of Judge Hayes in South Clark street Municipal court yesterday while awaiting a hearing on six charges of larceny.

Angler, in company with William Turk, said to be the son of a prominent Milwaukee avenue furrier, was arrested March 9 by Detective Sergeants Roach, Tapscott, Boschulte, and Gasperik while removing some $1,500 worth of furs from the warerooms of W. C. Mahon & Co., manufacturing furriers on the seventh floor of the Consumers building.

Pair Are Indicted.

The four detective sergeants presented their evidence to the grand jury. Indictments against the pair immediately followed.

Bondsmen made their appearance before Judge Graham and secured the release of the pair on bonds of $12,000 each.

Yesterday the case came before Judge Hayes for hearing. Turk waived, secured a new bond under the indictments, and is now at liberty.

Angler appeared in court, found his case had been postponed an hour, then disappeared. When his case was called he was still absent and still is.

Report of Inquiry.

Then came rumors that his bonds were not all they ought to be, and it was said an investigation had been asked of the state's attorney.

"I have heard nothing of it," George T. Kenney, secretary to State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne, said last night.

"I remember approving the bonds. They seemed all right to me, and there certainly was a lot of valuable property scheduled to cover them," Judge Graham said.

STRAPHANGERS' ONE-STEP MARKS PARTY FOR BLAIR

Surface Lines Club Holds Reception for Bosses.

Saw a new dance last night. Called it the "straphangers' glide," or the "straphangers' one-step." One-step sounds better for a straphanger, eh?

It was at the Chicago Surface Lines club, 1132 North Dearborn street. They were giving a reception and dance in honor of President Henry A. Blair and the new general manager, Williston Fish.

Funny sort of thing, that one-step. The man and his partner reach up, as though to clutch a strap, while they try to move around in the crowded ballroom. Crowd—therefore strap. Association of ideas, eh?

Everything in Keeping.

Rambled up to the club on a street car, as befitting. Stood in the vestibule—doorway, rather—for a minute, absent-mindedly fishing for a penny. Wanted it to escort a nickel. Blushed when I remembered where I was. Gave the conductor—I mean the ticket taker—a ticket.

Almost asked him for a transfer.

"Wardrobe down the hall, auditorium to the right," the man said. Which meant, I knew, "Plenty of room up front" and "Watch your step."

Lots of people there. All the rooms crowded. Most of them standing. No straps anywhere around.

Saw Mr. Blair shaking hands. Also Mr. Fish. He was shaking hands, too. And Mr. and Mrs. Wilkie. Shaking hands also—other persons'.

Mr. Lee Makes Speech.

Went into the auditorium. President of the club, man named U. G. Lee, was making a speech. Eloquent cuss. Telling about a scheme to buy all kinds of food wholesale and sell it to club members wholesale. Coöperative stuff. Loud cheers. Don't blame 'em.

Mr. Lee says he's sorry but Mr. Blair can't talk. Doesn't feel well tonight. Wonder did he sprain his hands? Mr. Blair rises, and says he has to say a few words anyway. A very few. Cheers. Mr. Fish also says a few words. More cheers. Says he likes this bunch.

Enter the quartet with eight or ten songs. Not so bad, but let's get Mr. Fish aside and ask him if we can't smoke on the front platforms.

Nice party. White haired, pleasant, human sort of creature. Asks if the people want to smoke. Told him the men do.

Would Allow Summer Smoking.

"Well," says he, "a fellow wants to smoke after a good breakfast, eh? You bet. They tell me though that the motormen object to it in winter. But in summer, why there's no reason I know of why the fellows shouldn't smoke."

That quartet is finally finished. The orchestra's playing "Follow the Car Tracks." Mr. Fish has to tear himself away. Grand march. Like to talk to him longer. Get that "do the people want it" stuff? Looks like he might do a lot to put attraction in traction.

Bum pun—but look at 'em dance. There's the "strap hangers' one-step" now. Jerry B. Howard is doing it, and Mildred Woxen. They're in "the claims." Not Jeremiah. Jerry. Touchy on it. Look at his card. Saw Mabelle Winholt of the engineers' office and H. J. Brewington of the claims, doing it, too.

Met J. V. Sullivan, chairman of the reception committee. Nice chap, but modest—and very busy. Wants to introduce Miss Ullrich, chairman of the woman's auxiliary of the club, but can't remember her first name. Says her initial's E. Forgets to introduce her because a photographer asks him to "grab a peach and pose for a picture." He flees.

So, to the office on a Chicago Surface Lines car, and to the trusty typewriter.

NEWBERRY CASE TO JURY FRIDAY; COUNTS REDUCED

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 13.—Only two of the original six counts on which Senator Truman H. Newberry and eighty-four other leading Republicans of Michigan are being tried will be submitted to the jury, probably next Friday.

At the close of testimony in the United States district court today Judge Clarence W. Sessions first combined counts 1 and 4, then held that counts 2 and 3 were repetitions, and ruled them out. The fifth count was ruled out at the close of the government's direct case.

Two issues thus remain for the jury to determine:

Was there a criminal conspiracy to violate the state and federal election laws in procuring the nomination and election of Newberry?

Were the United States mails used to further such a scheme to defraud, as is set forth in what is now the consolidated first count?

The prosecution waived cross-examination of Paul King, Newberry campaign manager, who was twice stricken with nervous breakdowns while testifying for the defense.

SENATE TO VOTE MONDAY ON FATE OF ARTICLE X.

Treaty's Defeat Indicated by Poll of Members.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Article X., "the heart of the league of nations covenant," will be brought to a vote in the senate Monday under a unanimous consent agreement entered into today.

With this crucial question passed upon, the way will be clear for an early vote on ratification, perhaps on Tuesday or Wednesday, if all absentees can be brought back or properly "paired."

Final polls made today indicated the defeat of the treaty by a substantial margin, and compromisers admitted that ratification appeared almost hopeless. According to the most reliable canvass that could be obtained, the combination of Republican "irreconcilables" and the administration's "battalion of death" would be able to muster not less than thirty-seven votes, or four more than enough to reject the pact.

Lodge Accepts Borah Change.

Prediction was made in some quarters that the vote against ratification would be larger, for the reason that administration leaders were confident of their ability to rally stronger support to President Wilson's position in the final showdown.

In the face of strong opposition from his own party colleagues, Senator Lodge, the Republican leader, yielded today in the opposite direction and accepted an amendment suggested by Senator Borah of Idaho strengthening the compromise reservation on article X., which Senator Lodge offered yesterday.

The Borah amendment would add the words "including all controversies relating to territorial integrity or political independence" in specifying international disputes in which the United States will not interfere.

Original Draft Restored.

In the opinion of most senators, this amendment takes the compromise back to the effect of the original Lodge reservation, but makes the language rather cumbersome, so that in the end it would not be surprising if the original draft were readopted for the sake of simplicity and clarity.

This latest move of Senator Lodge had a tendency to restore harmony in the Republican ranks but, at the same time, caused the compromise to lose strength on the Democratic side.

Senator Hitchcock, the Democratic leader, declared today that the treaty could never be ratified on the basis of anything that has yet been put forward, and he saw no hope now of obtaining any concession that would enable the administration senators to join in ratification.

Senator Wadsworth of New York, a strong supporter of the original Lodge program, led off the attack today on the compromise submitted yesterday by Senator Lodge. He insisted that it left a distinct obligation under Article X. to preserve territorial integrity and political independence, although it sought to limit the means by which the obligation could be fulfilled without the consent of congress.

"The reservation lacks candor," he said. "It says one thing and implies something else. It leaves a doubt that will one day come back to plague us, and I want no element of doubt in it."

Senator Reed of Missouri, Democratic "irreconcilable," also assailed the compromise.

WOOD ALCOHOL BLAMED FOR DEATH.

Wood alcohol is blamed by the police for the death of Frank O'Hern of 6144 Indiana avenue, who was found dead in a vacant lot yesterday at Normal avenue and Forty-seventh street. After a preliminary hearing the inquest on his death was continued until March 30 and an effort will be made to learn where O'Hern got his last, fatal drink.

'I KILLED MILLS,' SAYS HERO OF CROOK MEMOIRS

Two Ex-Convicts Jailed as Theater Slayers.

"I shot Mills. There was no reason for it. I was drunk and a damn fool."

Eddie Brislane, possessor of a degree in criminal arts and sciences from the University of Reform at Pontiac, Ill., and hero of a series of afternoon newspaper articles by Miss Clara Laughlin, entitled "Beating Back," yesterday thus disposed of the murder on Thursday night of William Mills, manager of the Crawford theater.

Tears Mask from Own Life.

In the first chapter of his newspaper "autobiography," Brislane was portrayed as a young man trying desperately to keep straight, but constantly hounded by the police and prison authorities because of his record as an ex-convict.

In the second chapter, related yesterday by Brislane himself to George T. Kenney, secretary to State's Attorney Hoyne, and Assistant State's Attorneys John Prystalski and James C. O'Brien, he was portrayed as a criminal who, given a chance by his employers, had defrauded them, and whose criminal activities had been constant since his release from Pontiac.

Plan "Jobs" in Prison.

"Eighteen months ago I met Robert Carter in Pontiac," he said. "We often discussed plans for 'jobs' after we got out. Then I was sent to Camp Grant on parole to work in the arsenal."

After the war he came to Chicago and obtained work with the International Harvester company on recommendation of a prison reform association.

Then he fell prey to the cabarets, and to pay his bills issued bogus checks. He neglected his job and his foreman reprimanded him, but it did no good. He borrowed all the money possible from his friends at the harvester company, then cashed more checks at the cashier's office.

The company notified his mother and gave Brislane the alternative of settling or being dismissed.

Meets Old Pal Again.

And then, while in the loop one afternoon, he met Carter.

"He said he had been married in September and was working in a print shop," said Brislane. "We spent the evening together looking up drinks and parted after we had made a date for Thursday night."

Some nights before Brislane had attended the Crawford theater, where he was a semi-regular patron. On Thursday night Carter and Brislane met at State and Madison streets.

"I know where there's a plant where we can pick up some easy change, and I've got to raise some jack quick," Brislane told Carter. "Are you in on it?"

Carter consented.

Two weeks before Brislane had been introduced to Tommy O'Neill, an employé at the United garage, 220 West Monroe street, by a former pal at Pontiac.

Drive to Theater.

"I think I know where I can get a car," Brislane remarked. "Let's go and see O'Neill."

But O'Neill refused the loan of a car. The pair then returned downtown.

"Let's take a Yellow," suggested Carter. They climbed into the cab of Felix Hausfeldt and told him to go to Crawford and Monroe streets, where they were to see a physician for a "prescription."

They walked to the Crawford theater nearby and stood in the lobby for a moment.

"The cashier knows me," Brislane whispered, referring to Mrs. Helen Landsman, "but I think we can put it over."

He stepped to the door of the ticket office and pulled it open. Instead of the slender woman he expected to see Mills faced him.

"Throw up your hands," Brislane whispered. Mills stood still. Brislane fired and ran. Mills died of his wounds.

"Why I should have tried to pull a job there I don't know," Brislane said yesterday. "I was known to many people."

But no one recognized him. Mrs. Landsman, when asked, said: "The only man I saw wore a tan coat and a gray hat. When the shot was fired I fainted."

Girl Identifies Man.

But when brought to the state's attorney's office yesterday she greeted Brislane as though he were a friend.

"Do you know that man?" she was asked.

"Yes, he took me home once," she said. "He handed in his card at the box office window one night and later telephoned me to ask whether he could walk home with me. I consented, as I only had three blocks to go and he appeared to be a cleancut young man."

"Did Brislane ever ask regarding the box office receipts?" Mrs. Landsman was asked.

"No," she said, "but he did ask if the new management was doing as well as the old. I told him the theater was doing a wonderful business. I never would have gone with him if I had known he was an ex-convict. Why, that night he admired the rings on my finger. It makes me shiver.

"If he killed Mr. Mills, I hope he hangs. I'll give everything I own for the privilege of seeing him hanged."

Brislane Clears Girl.

Brislane said she knew absolutely nothing of his robbery plans.

"After you shot Mills where did you go?" he was asked.

"We ran back to where we had left the cab and found the chauffeur in a saloon. We told him to hurry, but his engine was dead, so we ran away again."

They went to Brislane's home, where his mother saw him reload his revolver and place it in a bureau drawer. She also noticed he had been drinking, and feared he was going to get into trouble, so she called the police and told them, asking them to prevent her boy from committing any crime. She did not know of the murder, but the desk sergeant to whom she talked did—and he put two and two together.

Carter First to Confess.

From Brislane's sister came the name of O'Neill. From O'Neill came the report of Brislane's visit with Carter, and his request for a car. Carter was arrested and confessed. Then Brislane was picked up.

"They sold my boy liquor and he went wrong," his mother wept.

"Mr. Mills was the best of husbands and fathers—what will I and my babies do now?" Mrs. Mills sobbed at the inquest yesterday. Mills' funeral will be held from the family home on Tuesday at 2 p. m.

"Brislane is an example of what a sob-sister jury can do," said Assistant State's Attorney O'Brien. "I prosecuted him in March, 1917, for robbery with a revolver and shooting a policeman. The jury recommended extreme clemency. He got it—and Mills is dead."

Brislane and Carter were given into the custody of the police. Mrs. Landsman, whose story is yet to be investigated, was turned over to the detective bureau.

DIVORCED WIFE OF W. B. MANN SLAIN IN WASHINGTON

Clubbed on Way from Gompers' Home.

Mann's wedding ring, another small ring, and her diamond earrings. Two other diamond rings worth several hundred dollars were found in a small pouch inside her shirtwaist.

"I am convinced that robbery was the motive and that the man was frightened away before he could gather all the loot," said Inspector Clifford L. Grant, chief of detectives. "It is our theory that the men, armed with chestnut bludgeon, slipped up behind the woman, looped the handkerchief over her mouth, and, holding it tightly behind her head, began beating her over the head and pushing her forward at the same time towards a clump of bushes.

Robbery Believed Motive.

"There he saw the rock, picked it up, and dealt the blows which caused the woman to drop. He then seized the handbag, rifled it of all money, and flung it away. I do not believe the man waited to see Mrs. Mann die.

"The club was freshly cut and we think he obtained it from some lumber being used in the construction of three bungalows being erected about 300 yards from the scene of the crime. The workmen at these buildings quit work shortly before Mrs. Mann must have passed and it may have been some belated workman who frightened the slayer away."

Detective Sandberg searched for fingerprints on the rock and club, as well as on the other articles, but could find none.

Two women told the police of having been followed by three men in the same vicinity a few days ago.

Of Old Chicago Family.

Mrs. Mann was a daughter of the late Thomas Harrison, a Chicago photographer, who lost everything in the Chicago fire. He then moved to Galesburg and conducted a gallery there, but returned to Chicago in a few years and founded the old Central Music hall gallery. Mrs. Mann spent her girlhood in Buena Park near the Marine hospital and old Waller place on the north side.

Following her mother's sudden death, her father closed up his business and took the family to Alaska. He died a few years later while on a visit to his son, Thomas, at Mill Valley, Cal. In the meantime Gertrude Harrison had met and married William B. Mann, a Harvard graduate. They had one daughter. About ten years ago Mrs. Mann obtained a divorce in Indianapolis, where her husband was employed as attorney for the Bell Telephone company. It is said that the charges were cruelty.

About four years ago Mrs. Mann and her daughter left the home of her brother, Thomas, in California, and went to Washington, where Margaret entered school. Mann had become connected with the legal department of the telephone company here, and while residing at 1446 North Dearborn street met Miss Manierre.

Manierre Tells of Mann.

"The first I ever knew of Mr. Mann," said Mr. Manierre last night, "was when my daughter, Julie, came to me and said: 'Father, I like Mr. Mann very much, and we would like to have your permission to get married.' I later had a talk with Mann.

"Mr. Mann was not inclined to talk very much about his first wife further than to say that she was a fine woman and that they were still on friendly terms. He asserted the divorce came about through no fault of his and that he had turned over all of his property to his wife and daughter, holding a part of it in trust for her. He never spoke of his first wife after that.

"Last summer he spent some time in Alaska and at our summer home at Harbor Point, Mich. In September he went to Florida and just before Christmas I accompanied my daughter and her baby, a little over a year old, down there."

Recalls Poison Pen Letter.

Mr. Mann and Miss Manierre were married Feb. 24, 1917. Shortly after the wedding Mrs. Mann was the recipient of one of the famous "Elesey" poison pen letters threatening her death. Then they went on a honeymoon trip to Florida and "discovered" what has been called "Billy" Mann's Treasure Island.

Mr. Manierre's son, Cyrus Edson Manierre, 320 Belden avenue, married Miss Edith O. Harrison, daughter of former Mayor Carter H. Harrison. Another daughter, Wilhelmina, figured in a sensational elopement with Rufus Boynton Rogers—"Bunny" Rogers of University of Chicago track fame.

Victim Well Provided For.

George W. Harris, a Galesburg photographer, brother of the slain teacher, left for Washington last night upon being notified of his sister's death.

"Mrs. Mann was about 46 years old," said Mrs. Harris. "She got the divorce in Indianapolis about ten years ago and it was all Mr. Mann's fault. There was never a word said against Mrs. Mann. Mr. Mann did not turn over all his property to her, but he always has seen to it that his wife and daughter were provided for."

LIFE OF TILLIE'S PARTY PINCHED WITH $900 RING

Hixon Maid's Star Guest Jailed as Ruby Thief.

My word! The annoying police have pinched Willie Lamont. Fancy! Placed him behind the cruel bars and everything. But the party. We must tell you about Tillie's party.

Tillie—last name Vehling—is Mrs. George C. Hixon's maid. Mrs. Hixon, who lives at 999 Lake Shore drive, but is now wintering in southern California, subscribes to the Marxian precept that the gulf between capital and labor can be bridged through application of Confucius' well known golden rule.

Wherefore Mrs. Hixon notified Tillie last autumn, when she entered Mrs. Hixon's employ, that she might entertain her gentlemen friends in the drawing room of the Hixon apartment on her nights off. Tillie did. It was in the latter part of sere October that Tillie received on one memorable occasion.

The Life of the Party.

Well, Willie was the life of the party. Willie, you understand, in mufti is known as William J. Restes, 23 years old; occupation, entertainer. At that time he was presenting his great Julian Eltinge female impersonation act at the Belvidere cafe, Clark and Chesnut streets.

Mrs. Hixon, on the evening in question, was attending a society benefit at the Blackstone theater. Tillie's party was an unqualified success, and a pleasant time was had by all until Mrs. Hixon returned. The discovery was then made that her $900 pigeon blood ruby dinner ring was missing. That, of course, was a trifle. What's $900 between friends? Neither Mrs. Hixon nor Tillie reported the incident to the police.

Willie Lands in Toils.

But it chanced that yesterday Detective Sergeants Frank Casey and Michael Magner of the bureau learned a man was trying to dispose of a pigeon blood ruby. They arrested the man, who was Mr. Restes, and filed a charge of larceny against him. He not only professed innocence, but informed the two detectives, "You will suffer for this humiliation."

A reporter established the connection with Tillie's party. Tillie, upon being informed of the arrest, ejaculated:

"Does he lisp?"

"Yes.'"

Poor Little Willie!

"That's Willie. Poor little Willie. So he's pinched. Ain't it awful? Yes, he was a guest at my party. But only a gentleman friend. Only a gentleman friend. I met him through William Quinn. I can't imagine him stooping to swipe a pigeon blood ruby ring. Only $900. Of course the ring has been missing since the party. But—poor little Willie."

Mrs. Hixon, notified by telegraph last night of Restes' arrest, said she would return to Chicago on May 1 to identify the ring.

BUILDING TRADES TO STOP STRIKES ON JURISDICTION

All Unions Enter Into an Agreement.

Washington, D. C., March 13.—There will be no more strikes of building trades unions growing out of disputes over division of work.

Agreement has been reached, it was announced at American Federation of Labor headquarters today, that the many unions represented in construction work will abide by the decisions of a representative board now in session here, which will settle finally all troublesome questtions over jurisdiction.

Decision of Great Import.

Union officials and representatives of the American Institute of Architects, meeting with the building trade delegates, said the agreement to be given formal expression by the joint board was one of the most important in the history of union labor.

It was emphasized as especially important just now, when building activity in every state is greater than ever before in the effort to make up the shortage of homes and business structures resulting from the curtailment of construction during the war.

Many Disputes in Past.

Many contracts in the past have been held up and valuable months lost by disputes over jurisdiction between the several unions engaged on the work. The bricklayers and plasterers, for instance, contending for the privilege of doing the same job because their trades are very similar. The result frequently was to stop progress entirely.

With the elimination of one fruitful cause of disputes, members of the conference said, they looked for a new record in construction this summer.

CHICAGOAN TELLS OF WORK.

Edward M. Craig, secretary of the Building Construction Employers' association of Chicago, who returned from the Washington conference yesterday, told of the inauguration of the agreement to end jurisdictional fights in the building trades. The board in charge was organized on March 3, 1919, but never started its work until last Monday when it met in the American Federation of Labor building in Washington. It consisted of three contractors, three officers of international unions, and a member each from the architects and engineers.

"We started last Monday to iron out the disputes between the unions and kept it up until Thursday," Mr. Craig said. "The structural iron workers were awarded the right to set rod work over the lathers, the marble setters are to set vitrolite glass instead of the glaziers, and the electrical workers are to install certain work on elevators and the elevator constructors are to do the rest.

Ends Fight of Years.

"For years and years, the thirty-six building trades unions have fought each other over the right to do certain work in all parts of the country, while the contractors and the people building homes have suffered. But it is all over now, and officers of the international unions have agreed to abide by the board's decision.

"The union men have welcomed the board and I know how the contractors will appreciate it. The jurisdictional fights have been taken up at every convention of the American Federation of Labor and certain unions told to do such and such work, but none of them ever paid any attention to the rulings."

Members of the Board.

Other members of the board of arbitration are: J. R. Wiggins of Philadelphia and F. J. C. Dresser of Cleveland, representing the contractors; John J. Hynes, president of the sheet metal workers; John T. Cosgrove of the carpenters, and Thomas Breece of the bricklayers. E. J. Russell, representing the American Institute of Architects, was chairman, and R. P. Miller of New York represented the Engineering Council of America.

Simon O'Donnell, president of the Chicago Building Trades council, said last night that the board was a good thing and will be a final court for all jurisdictional disputes between the unions in the industry.

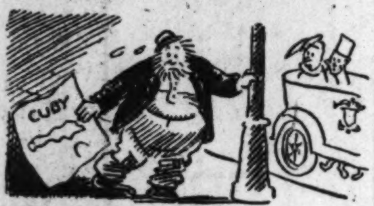
CITY BEAUTIFUL COMMISSION GIVES UP HOPE

Famous Apostle of Repose Talks for Publication

VIEWS WITH ALARMS

Mr. J. Raglan Patchmore is still alive, although many people have not yet given up hope. Even as late as yesterday afternoon the City Beautiful Commission sent out an optimistic bulletin, giving him up as lost. Mr. Patchmore has been missing only since Jan. 17.

On that morning he appeared at a local railway ticket office and inquired when the next freight left for Cuba. Upon learning that none was leaving within two hours, he started out to walk. Darkness overtook him at Fourteenth street, and he turned in to wait for a change in the climate.

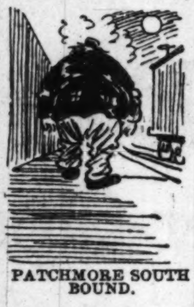


EN ROUTE TO CUBA.

That was the last seen of him.

Two weeks ago a man answering his description was observed at Sixteenth street headed south.

Last week further reports located the same man at Eighteenth street, and last night all doubts as to his identity were removed by a news bulletin that he had been sighted at Twenty-second street trying to go southeast on a south bound street.



PATCHMORE SOUTH BOUND.

"It must be Patchmore," said the Patchmore editor. "Go out and interview him."

The reporter picked up the scent at Sixteenth street, and a couple of blocks more established his identity beyond question. Even a stranger would have known it was Patchmore.

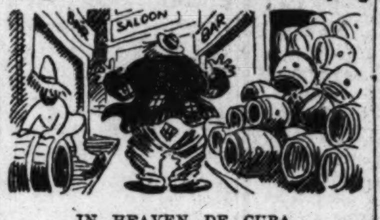
At Twenty-third street the reporter overtook Mr. Patchmore. He was still trying to go southeast and his anchors were dragging.

In one hand was a map of Cuba Libre, in the other a lamp post.

[Copyright: 1920: By John T. McCutcheon.]

"Where have you been keeping yourself, Mr. Patchmore?" asked the reporter, as man to man. "Your friends thought you had died or something."

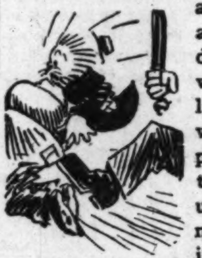
"Neither," answered the Rest King; "and I haven't been keeping myself. They've been keeping me." It was then noticed that Mr. Patchmore's complexion, where visible, showed the bleaching effect of about thirty days of sedentary life.



IN HEAVEN DE CUBA.

"Why are you leaving town?" persisted the scribe. "The snow shoveling season is about over." The mystery was more baffling than ever. "You don't seem to be in your old spirits."

"Nor they in me," said Mr. Patchmore bitterly. "Good spirits and I are strangers," he added with a deep sigh which waved his beard like a gust of wind through the pampas grass of the Patagonian uplands. "I have not smiled once in nearly two months. There is not a single titter left in me. The only thing I can get with a kick in it is given me by the police department. The world is full of unrest, and I love rest."

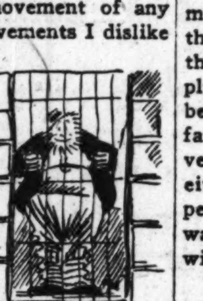


ONLY THING WITH A KICK IN IT.

"Am I to infer that you disapprove of this prohibition movement?"

"I don't like the prohibition movement," exploded Mr. Patchmore.

"I don't like movement of any kind, but of all movements I dislike that one the most. In the first place, it's unconstitutional so far as my constitution goes. I like to take a drink when I can get it, or leave it alone if I can't. If they have to prohibit something why don't they pick women or song? Why pick on wine all the time?"



HE BELIEVES IN PERSONAL LIBERTY.

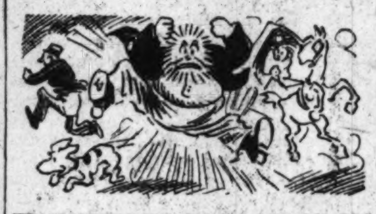
"What are your plans, Mr. Patchmore?" inquired the scribe.

Before answering Mr. Patchmore shifted his weight from one curbstone to another.

"I'm off to Cuba!" his eyes gleamed with the ardor of a crusader.

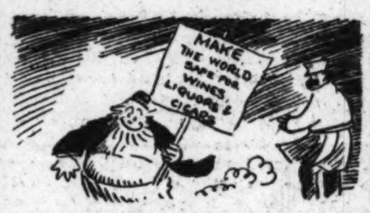
"But aren't you afraid of going down there, where there's so much drinking and everything?"

"It will be a great temptation," said Patchmore, scrambling to his feet and hurrying south again. "But that doesn't make me waver. After I get there I can do my wavering. In fact, I hope the wavering may be fine."



HE ADMITTED HE WASN'T STRONG FOR PROHIBITION.

"But you surely won't desert your country right on the eve of a presidential election, Mr. Patchmore. Your votes will be needed."



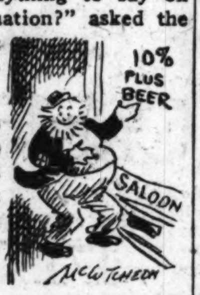
MAKE THE WORLD SAFE FOR WINES, LIQUORS & CIGARS

MR. PATCHMORE'S SLOGAN.

"There isn't room in this country for me and the eighteenth amendment."

"Have you anything to say on the political situation?" asked the reporter. "What is your platform?"

"Well, you may say for me that I believe in the 10 per cent plus as applied to beverages, am in favor of free silver or copper, either one, let people save all the daylight they want, and make the world safe for wines, liquors and cigars."



HIS IDEAL SUMMER BEVERAGE.

"Anything more?" murmured the scribe.

"Yes; change the name of the White House to Wet House."

Mr. Patchmore then resumed his way toward Cuba.

BRUNDAGE TO ASK INDICTMENT OF CHAMBLISS

Will Urge Hoyne to Act on Felony Charge.

Attorney General Brundage announced yesterday that he would ask State's Attorney Hoyne to cause the indictment of Dorsey Chambliss, Negro ex-policeman accused by Bertha Wiebeck in her dying statement of placing her in a disreputable house, where he and other Negroes visited her.

The attorney general said he would suggest to Mr. Hoyne, when they meet Monday, that the prosecution of Chambliss on misdemeanor charges before Judge Steik in the Municipal court be dropped and that Chambliss be prosecuted on felony charges.

Assails Merit Board.

He denounced the action of the city civil service commission in permitting the resignation of the patrolman before the accusations of the white girl, who had recently come to Chicago from Pawnee Rock, Kas., had been thoroughly sifted.

"Chambliss," the attorney general said, "should have been tried and dismissed from the force. To accept his resignation was to do him too much honor; in addition, it paves the way for his reinstatement in the event his attorneys are able to free him from the criminal charges by a technicality."

Lowden Opens Inquiry.

Mr. Brundage has had the case under investigation for more than two weeks, at the instance of numerous women's clubs and, more recently, of Gov. Lowden, who received a personal request from Gov. Allen of Kansas to exert all efforts to bring Chambliss, if guilty, to justice.

Henry Barrett Chamberlin, director of the Chicago crime commission, which has made an extensive investigation of the girl's death, said he could see no objection to dropping the prosecution before Judge Steik, if the ex-policeman and his co-defendants first were indicted.

Ask Lyle Firm to Drop Case.

Ald. John H. Lyle was requested during the day by the Chicago Political Equality league to take out of the hands of his law firm, Lyle & Harrold, the defense of Chambliss.

Ald. Lyle was reëlected recently, through the heavy vote of the women of his ward. His partner, James P. Harrold, is handling the Chambliss case. Ald. Lyle denied any personal interest in the case in a recent public statement.

The resolution did not pass without some bitter argument, in which the race question cropped out. Mrs. Irene Goins, a colored woman, who belongs to the league, opposed the position that Bertha Wiebeck was an innocent country girl. Her statements brought a storm of protest from some white members and support from others.

Resolution Sent to Lyle.

Ald. Lyle will receive a copy of the resolution, which reads:

"A most shocking crime has been committed in Chicago, resulting in the death of a young girl, Bertha Wiebeck, a stranger in our city, who appealed to Dorsey Chambliss, an officer of the law, for information which resulted in the most brutal treachery at his hands, culminating in her death. If he escapes just punishment for this most heinous crime, we realize the grave danger in the future for other women and girls. We, the Chicago Political Equality league, do strongly urge the law firm of Lyle & Harrold to withdraw their support from the defense of Dorsey Chambliss."

"Must See Justice Done."

"We must see that justice is done," Mrs. Marion Biel said, "and that the death of this poor, helpless, homeless 16 year old girl does not go unpunished."

"This resolution seems to convict this man in advance of his trial," Mrs. Richard West Temple replied, "and I don't care how heinous the man's crime is, he should have a lawyer. If we want to take the position that an alderman shouldn't defend Chambliss, that is all right."

"Ald. Lyle was elected by the vote of the women," Mrs. Dora Earle said. "It is no case for such a man."

Demands Proper Trial.

"You have only one side of the question," Mrs. Goins declared. "The man was not in uniform and the girl was not 16 years old. She was 22, and had half a dozen aliases. I want to see justice done. She's a girl. But I want a proper trial for the policeman."

There were cries of "out of order," and Mrs. Goins sat down. Mrs. Judith Lowenthal came to her rescue.

"We're all prejudiced," she said. "Mrs. Goins is president of the Federation of Colored Women, and she has stated the case justly."

"And it is terrible to put this criticism of Ald. Lyle in the papers," said Mrs. Charles Vickery.

"He's used to that," shouted some one, and when the vote was taken it showed a considerable majority for the resolution.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

Today's Question.

Should trailers be attached to surface cars to relieve the crowded condition of the cars?

The Answers.

MRS. M. MARGRAF, 4750 West End avenue, a housewife—I don't know whether trailers will solve the problem or not; but, if they will, put them on by all means. We must do something.

P. H. DEVINE, 6812 South Racine avenue, a mounted policeman—Trailers would jam up the streets considerably, but if such a plan would provide a seat for every one who rides on the street cars, I guess we could handle the traffic.

MRS. DAVID STEWART, 245 North Mason avenue, a housewife—If trailers are needed to improve the congested condition of the traction system, let's have them.

FRED K. PETMEZAS, 4709 Sheridan road, a business man—I believe the trailer is a mighty good idea. The street cars certainly are jammed during the rush hours, and something must be done to relieve that condition. Yes, let's have trailers.

JOSEPH EBERT, 817 North Hamlin avenue, a locomotive engineer—Yes, let's have trailers. If we can't have a subway—and it seems that we can't—let's do something else to give the thousands of straphangers a seat.

7 I. W. W. FOUND GUILTY OF DEATH OF EX-SOLDIER

Court Refuses Verdict of Third Degree Crime.

Montesano, Wash., March 13.—Seven of the ten Industrial Workers of the World charged with the murder of Warren O. Grimm, one of four former soldiers shot during an armistice day parade at Centralia, Wash., were found guilty tonight of second degree murder. Three others were found not guilty. Loren Roberts, one of the trio, was acquitted on the ground of insanity.

First Verdict Refused.

An earlier verdict was refused by the court, who ordered the jurors to return to the jury room for further deliberations.

It was announced that the first verdict returned acquitted Elmer Smith and Mike Sheehan, declared Loren Roberts insane, found James McInenery, Ray Becker, O. C. Bland, Bert Bland and Britt Smith guilty of second degree murder, and Eugene Barnett and John Lamb guilty of third degree murder.

It was explained the verdict was refused because the court's instructions did not permit of a verdict of third degree murder.

Judge Is Threatened.

The verdict was not read in open court but its contents were made public by one of counsel for the state.

Judge Wilson made known tonight receipt of a threatening letter, the second since the beginning of the trial. Its contents were not divulged.

INDIAN HILL TO BAR SORDID TRADE BY $15,000 GIFT

A campaign to raise $15,000 to purchase property in Indian Hill for the purpose of keeping the suburb free from commercial encroachment was begun last night by a committee of fifteen. Members of the committee subscribed $1,000 and announced that they expected to complete the fund before the end of this week, according to J. T. Pierce, chairman.

Construction of seven small stores near the Indian Hill station of the Northwestern line is being contemplated by several business men. It is planned to erect apartments above the stores.

"The stores are not needed," said Mr. Pierce. "Residents of Indian Hill do all their purchasing in Winnetka and Glencoe. Undesirable tenants may get into the building and perhaps a poolroom which would contaminate our boys."

After the site is purchased it will be given to the Indian Hill Improvement association for use as a park.

3 RESIGNATIONS ECHO TO SUIT IN SCIENCE CHURCH

Boston, March 13.—The trustees of the Christian Science Publishing society, in a statement tonight regarding the resignation yesterday of William P. McKenzie, editor, and two associate editors, of the Christian Science Sentinel and the Christian Science Journal announced that the positions had been filled. They declined to say who had been named.

The statement said that the trustees had requested publication in the Sentinel and the Journal of a circular letter addressed by the directors of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, to the members of the church and of a letter from the trustees to the directors.

The directors' letter, according to the statement, "semed to have the purpose of assuring the field that the fundamentals of Christian Science had not been involved in the litigation" between the trustees and the directors, and the trustees' letter joined in this assurance.

Mr. McKenzie, the statement said, after first approving such publication, informed the trustees yesterday that he had ordered the presses stopped after a few thousand copies of the Journal containing the two letters had been run off and had selected for publication only the directors' letter. By order of the trustees the presses were started again, and the resignations followed.

STRIKE HAWSER TIES UP COAST SHIP TRAFFIC

New York, March 13.—Indications were tonight that the strike inaugurated today by workmen employed on coastwise piers here would not spread to other steamship lines.

A deadlock exists between the strikers and their employers, but it is not believed that the Porto Rican or foreign lines will be affected. About thirty ships, it was said, are tied up in this port and service between Boston and Galveston is crippled.

The strike involves several thousand longshoremen, dock workers, and checkers, who for the second time since last October have walked out to enforce demands for wage increases and adjustment of working conditions.

Ruth's Mother Sues Diary Publishers for $150,000

Suit for $150,000 damages against the Illinois Publishing and Printing company was filed in the Superior court yesterday by Jay Fred Reeve, attorney for Mrs. Jennie M. Vale, the mother of Ruth Randall. The action is based, according to Mr. Reeve, on an unauthorized publication of Mrs. Randall's diary.

British Income Tax May Hit Harder than Yankees'

LONDON, March 13.—The British income tax board, now considering revision of the income tax laws, will recommend exemption of incomes of not more than $750 yearly for single persons and $1,250 for married persons, it was understood here tonight. The board, it was said, also has decided that profits of coöperative societies are taxable.

TURKS FIGHTING ALLIED SOLDIERS IN ASIA MINOR

Moslems Defiant; Unrest Grows in Far East.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 11.—Delayed.—[By the Associated Press.]—Greek, Italian and French forces of occupation in Smyrna, Adalia, and Adana, Asia Minor, are holding their own with difficulty against Turkish nationalist troops, it is indicated in reports received here.

The strength of Mustapha Kemal, nationalist leader, is rapidly growing in the interior, and advices state the Arabs, Kurds and other tribes are carrying on guerrilla warfare.

Fear No Punishment.

Fifty thousand allied troops are in Constantinople and vicinity, it is estimated, this force being sufficient to protect the city, the straits, and the Sea of Marmora, with the coöperation of naval units here. Turkish leaders, however, scout the idea the allies could send a large punitive expedition into Asia Minor to enforce their demands.

At present allied soldiers are guarding the old fortifications along the straits, while the British have thrown strong forces about the terminus of the Bagdad railway at Ismid, fifty-six miles southeast of this city.

London Shows Anxiety.

LONDON, March 13.—[By the Associated Press.]—Official England is showing evidences of anxiety over the settlement of the Turkish problem and the situation rapidly developing in southwestern Asia.

The attitude of indifference or defiance assumed by the Turkish nationalists, signs of unrest throughout the Moslem world and activities of Russian bolsheviki in Afghanistan combine to give a serious aspect to the tangle.

COLBY STILL ON SENATE'S GRILL; POST IS VACANT

Washington, D. C., March 13.—Again deferring action on the nomination of Bainbridge Colby to be secretary of state, the senate foreign relations committee decided after a long discussion today that at least one more witness would be called before it took final action. The witness, whose name was withheld, is expected to appear Monday.

With the senate's failure to confirm the nomination today, the post of head of the state department technically becomes vacant, department officials holding that Frank L. Polk could not continue longer as acting secretary under the thirty day limitation. Committee members asserted, however, that under the Overman war act the president's powers were broad enough to enable him to delegate to any person the functions of any vacancy in the executive departments.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL HONORED.

The professor was presented with a $100 suitcase by Miss Anna Robin in behalf of the faculty. They will spend several months in assisting in the reorganization of the public school system of Bohemia.

AT MARRIAGE CROSSROADS

"Velvet Slipper Girl" and "Contract Wedding" Husband, from Whom She Has Obtained a Divorce.

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK A. CARPENTER.

The final chapter in the marital history of Frederick A. Carpenter, manufacturers' agent, and Mrs. Gertrude Wakefield Hassler Carpenter, once known as the "velvet slipper girl," was written yesterday when Judge Charles A. McDonald signed a decree granting her a divorce. Charges of infidelity, on which Mrs. Carpenter won separate maintenance in April, 1918, were the basis of the divorce decree.

A hearing was held soon after the divorce bill, which charged Carpenter with improper conduct with "Mary Doe and other women" in March and April, 1917, was filed by Attorney Lewis A. Stebbins. Judge McDonald affixed his signature to the decree shortly thereafter. By its terms Mrs. Carpenter is to receive lump sum alimony of $700 and property worth $3,000.

Only formal testimony to establish Mrs. Carpenter's residence was given yesterday, and the divorce action was not contested by Carpenter, who was represented by Attorney Daniel L. Cruice.

A divorce bill filed by Carpenter some time ago, accusing his wife of friendship with several men, was dismissed recently by Judge George F. Barrett in the Circuit court.

Mrs. Carpenter was given the title of "velvet slipper girl" several years ago when she sued Carl G. Fisher, millionaire Indianapolis sportsman, for $500,000 for alleged breach of promise. She was awarded a verdict of $25,000.

A few years later she and Carpenter, then just divorced from his first wife, entered into a "contract marriage." Later they were remarried legally.

BRITISH BOMBARD CAUCASIAN TOWN RAIDED BY 'REDS'

Refugees Panic Stricken Till Bolsheviki Flee.

NOVOROSSIYSK, March 9.—[By the Associated Press.]—Delayed.—Consternation reigned among refugees here tonight when revolutionary forces attacked the radio station, wrecking it. A general alarm was sounded and the British ship Empress of India, lying in the harbor, fired its big guns in the direction of the fighting.

Rumors were current that the town was about to be taken, but it was found later that the attack was made by a small force, which was speedily dispersed.

Successful raids by revolutionary or "green" units on communications here create the impression that the evacuation of the city may become necessary any day.

Families of officers belonging to the staff of Gen. Denikine are being taken to Constantinople on American destroyers.

PAINLEVE PROTESTS WILSON CHARGE

BY PAUL PAINLEVE.

[Former French Premier and Minister of War.]

PARIS, March 13.—I have not seen the text of President Wilson's letter to Senator Hitchcock, but I regret exceedingly that he calls France militarist and imperialist. France has been invaded four times by the Germans in the last century and feels the necessity of protecting itself. If the United States ratifies the defensive military treaty, France will feel safer, but at present France lives in the shadow of German aggression. France did not insist on a strategic frontier along the Rhine and did not insist on dictating a crushing military peace.

Who are the military leaders President Wilson accuses of usurping power today? There is only a strong nationalist feeling in certain quarters, but that can't be confused with imperialism.

I fervently hope the United States accepts a mandate over Turkey. I am willing to let the United States have a mandate over Constantinople if it will accept. Leaving the situation as it exists it will be a perpetual firebrand in Europe, which will result in future wars. If the United States declines the mandate over Constantinople it would be better to let the Turks remain.

PLAN NO FORMAL PROTEST.

PARIS, March 13.—[By the Associated Press.]—The French government has not sent and will not send any instructions to Ambassador Jusserand in Washington regarding President's Wilson's charge of militarism against France, it was said at the foreign office today.

A report received from the ambassador stated that on his own initiative he called upon Undersecretary of State Polk.

No comment was obtained in official circles with the exception of expressions of curiosity as to whether President Wilson would take the opportunity afforded by M. Jusserand's call on Secretary Polk to correct the disagreeable impression his assertions have made here.

Turk Prohibitionists to Ask Aid of "Pussyfoot"

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 13.—[By the Associated Press.]—William E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson or some other American anti-saloon organizer will be asked by the Turkish Green Crescent society to come here and direct the absolute prohibition campaign inaugurated on March 5.

At the opening of the campaign the presiding officer was Shiek Ul Islam, representative of the sultan and actual head of the Moslem church, who said he would throw the full influence of the church to the support of the society, which is carrying on the work.

At present saloons are not allowed within fifty yards of a mosque. Stamboul, the Turkish section of Constantinople, has no saloons.

MURDER, PILLAGE, ARSON, SUPREME ACROSS BORDER

Killing Yanks Is Cheap, Popular Pastime.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

New Orleans, La., March 13.—[Special.]—"Pay my agent 30,000 pesos before a certain day or take the consequences," was the burden of a note received from Felix Diaz, outlaw and rebel leader, by an American merchant in Mexico recently. The money was paid.

"Pay me 2,000 pesos at once," read a similar note which came along a little later from Higinio Aguilar, the aged bandit of the Vera Cruz hills, an active old rascal who is said to be able to leap on his horse without touching the stirrup. The money was paid.

"We always pay—there is nothing else to do," said another man, who had often been approached by bandits at his place in the country for supplies of various kinds.

Where Is Government?

Where is the government? During the last few months Carranza has sought to give greater protection to the Vera Cruz district. He has 5,000 federal troops in the district. Most of them hang around the railroad or the towns, trying to live on their one peso a day.

In the hills, forming a semi-circle around the town, are at least 5,000 rebels. Diaz has his headquarters northwest, in the foothills between Misantla and Nautla. Just south of him is Aguilar, who is a follower of the Villa cause. Pedro Godoy is west under the Diaz banner. Further south are more bandits around Puerto Mexico.

Americans are having their sad night in Mexico. They are heartsick. There is no feeling of security outside of the federal district. They are not permitted to carry arms, although the oil men and the plantation owners declare they could defend themselves if the government would permit them to do so. During the last month two or three Americans have been taken and held for ransom, one was killed, and a passenger train was blown up.

Short Travel Almost Safe.

The way from Mexico City to Vera Cruz is perhaps the safest travel route in the republic. Trains leave the capital at dawn and arrive in Vera Cruz in the evening. All through the mountain passes the government has built strong concrete blockhouses. Behind the portholes are men with rifles watching for an attack on the train. Once off the plateau and out of the great mountains the way is through fertile, well watered valleys, which are under cultivation along the railroad line at least.

In this great grazing country I saw only one herd of cattle while I made the journey from the border to the capital and down to the sea. The bandits have killed this industry.

Vera Cruz, the scene of the American occupation, has few Americans in it now. The Spanish merchants are living off the fat of other years, for this port has suffered during the war.

Lighter Forms of Brigandage.

The first German ship came in last week. The native population seems to have taken to bootblacking, seeking porter jobs, and other light forms of brigandage. The porters swarm around the train and literally mob the passengers, charging exorbitant sums for carrying grips a few blocks. The beggars are numerous and terrible to look upon.

There is little sentiment in favor of a revolution in Vera Cruz. Obregon's strength lies more to the north, in Senora, Tamaulipas, Zacatecas, and Chihuahua.

In the Tampico region there are about 5,000 rebels operating under Pelaez. The oil men have been forced to pay big sums in tribute to this leader. Pelaez is a land owner himself and has oil land which he intends to hold against the Carranza forces. Having a big pay roll to meet and finding need for frequent requisitions for food and clothing, he comes to those nearest who are helpless.

His demands are met immediately. He has demonstrated, through murder and arson, that he means what he says. Carranza holds soldiers along the sea coast and collects tolls from the oil men in another way, through the customs officers. As 80,000,000 barrels of oil are produced every month, this forms one of the biggest revenues that the government has.

A Steady, Thriving Industry.

The American government is kept accurately informed as to all payments to the bandits in this region. Despite all tribute, the killing of Americans employed in the oil fields still goes on. One of the great problems the managers of the various companies has to meet is to get the pay rolls out to the field forces who are working fifty or sixty miles away from the city.

The commandant of the Carranza garrison is held responsible for guarding this money. He is informed when the messengers start out and how much they are taking. Holdups of messengers have been of regular occurrence, and it is said without qualifications by the oil men that the Carranzistas are responsible for this—that the soldiers themselves are the holdup men.

"We have the documents to prove it," said one oil manager.

FEAR "IMPERIALISM" OF U. S.

Washington, D. C., March 13.—The state department's reply to Salvador's request for an interpretation of the Monroe doctrine has not satisfied Mexican jurists, according to advices today from Mexico City.

The newspapers generally, according to the advices warmly praise President Wilson's address before the Pan-American financial congress, in which he outlined the interpretation of the Monroe doctrine incorporated in the reply to Salvador.

An unnamed official, however, is quoted as saying that Mexico will not accept the principle that a nation, however powerful, shall fix any line of policy affecting the Latin-American republic, especially in international affairs.

El Excelsior, one of the leading newspapers of the Mexican capital, says that if the covenant of the league of nations is aimed to prevent European aggression the Monroe doctrine is useless. It adds that there is nothing to fear now from aggression by European countries in Latin-America, but that "from American imperialism we have much to fear."

DANIELS' PLANS TO BOOST NAVY ARE DISREGARDED

Washington, D. C., March 13.—"In the interest of economy" the three naval construction programs recommended by Secretary Daniels, depending on disposition of the peace treaty, were disapproved today by a house naval subcommittee.

An appropriation of $72,000,000 for continuing the unfinished 1916 program was decided upon by the subcommittee as the only ship construction funds to be provided for the next fiscal year.

The subcommittee decision, although yet to be approved by the full committee, is regarded virtually as final. Total appropriations for the department under the subcommittee bill would be approximately $400,000,000, or $165,000,000 less than required by department officials.

P. W. SUMMERS RESCUED FROM MEXICO BANDITS

Mexican federal troops rescued Peter W. Summers, a former Chicagoan, from his rebel captors and saved his relatives the cost of a $5,000 ransom, according to a telegram received by the Associated Press from Mexico City. Mrs. S. K. Switzer and Mrs. J. A. Humphreys, sisters of Summers, residing at 11133 Vernon avenue, expressed great relief.

Summers, owner of a large ranch in Mexico, was captured near Salina Cruz last week by bandits under Jesus Morellas. The amount of the ransom was raised from $500 to $5,000, and his relatives in the United States were frantic in their efforts to find the money.

Friday was set as the "deadline" for payment of the ransom. It was Friday that the telegram, signed by Peter W. Summers, was received, telling of his release.

IDENTIFY YOUTH AS ROBBERS' AID IN RAID ON CAFE

Grab 2 Others Bringing Boy to Hospital.

A revolver battle between four robbers and a saloonkeeper yesterday had its climax late last night at the Norwegian Deaconess hospital, when a dying patient was identified as one of the robbers.

He had been brought there with a bullet in his right lung by Dr. G. Alonzo McDowell of 2337 West Twelfth street. The doctor said the victim was Charles Allen, 20 years old, of 2149 West Thirteenth street.

Allen was identified by Otto Bertsche of 3203 Garfield boulevard, and three other witnesses as one of the men who held up the saloon of his son-in-law, Otto Gross, of 3159 West Chicago avenue. They shot Gross, wounded his wife, and escaped with $1,000.

Grab Two from Auto.

Walter Allen of 2149 West Thirteenth street, brother of Charles Allen, and William Griffen of 2238 West Thirteenth street, who were with McDowell in the auto that brought the patient to the hospital, were held by the police, and will be confronted by the witnesses today. The machine in which they were riding was identified as that used by the robbers.

Two of the Allen band entered Gross's place by the side door. A third entered by a rear door, and the fourth from the front.

The robbery of the Gross place was followed a few hours later by the robbing of the offices of Hinckley & Schmitt, Inc., at 420 West Ontario street, where five men obtained nearly $2,000.

Rob 7 and Office Safe.

The Hinckley & Schmitt visitors were nervous but efficient. They lined seven persons, including three women, against the wall, facing it. Two stood guard. Another held a pistol on O. W. Hinckley, the president, and Otto Hall, the cashier.

The other two opened the safe, took therefrom $580, found $1,100 on the cashier's desk—money just drawn to pay off the employés—and robbed all but the women.

Hall pleaded to keep his ring, saying it was a gift from his mother.

"All right, Hall," said the robber, "you can have it."

The fact that the robber knew the cashier leads the police to believe the robbery was planned by a former employé.

The police immediately went to 1449 North La Salle street and inquired for Thomas Garrity, who had worked for the concern four days and had quit yesterday noon. They found nobody of that name ever had lived at the address. They suspect Garrity had something to do with the robbery.

THE RECURRENT ISSUE.

The movement to submerge the United States in a league of nations comes faithfully within the traditions of a political obsession which, since colonial days, first under one name and then another, has been and persists as the spirit of dissolution.

It never has been soundly national. It always has lent its support to things vague, inchoate and essentially inimical to the sovereign American interest.

The movement so obsessed proposes to subvert an American entity, a known and fixed purpose, for something that is unknown, unstable, and intangible. In this it is true to its political antecedents. It represents in nimble phrase and in strict furtherance of an obnoxious principle the doctrine of denationalization which has persisted in one form or another since the colonies.

It was this anti-national movement which greeted Samuel and John Adams as they drew near the first continental congress. These intent patriots, who had been agitating independence for years and could only with difficulty comprehend American opposition to such a project, were halted by a reception committee which explained that the Adamses must on no account provoke hostility by talking of independence.

This was no slight or guarded interference. It was a determined opposition to American independence and it was supported not alone by English tories but by Americans as well possessed of American traditions as the Adamses themselves.

We are accustomed to think of the Adamses and Patrick Henry as riding on the crest of popular approval. Far from it. They are famous because they overcame, after much labor, the faltering, shifting spirit of anti-nationalism. The opposition to a firm and united America which now is apparent was just as apparent then.

If there be those who think that the struggle for American liberty converted the denationalists into strong patriots, they have only to investigate the making of the constitution of the United States.

"It is probable," said Washington, "that no plan we propose will be adopted. Perhaps another dreadful conflict is to be sustained. If, to please the people, we offer what we ourselves disapprove, how can we afterward defend our work? . . . The event is in the hand of God."

The denationalist principle was reappearing. Its proponents were abundantly content to see thirteen limping, independent "nations," each one at the mercy of the first foreign power to snatch it by the nape. Those who were anti-freedom before the revolution were anti-nation after it.

It is important to note that Washington urged the election of Federalists to congress so that the constitution might have support and a chance to operate. It is important to note that Washington, Hamilton, Jay, and Marshall, Federalists all, were the moving spirits of the constitution.

Madison, once the confrère of Hamilton, was to be won over to the principle of opposition and left to fight an ironic war with the "toy gunboats" bequeathed him by Mr. Jefferson.

Washington, Hamilton, and Jay and their companions preached nationalism and insisted upon unity. They made the nation only after a struggle against internal enemies as bitter as the war against royal tyranny. It was John Marshall, the Federalist chief justice, who expounded the constitution after 1800.

It was just before Marshall became chief justice that nullification became an issue as a state right. That same issue raised its head again in South Carolina in 1833. Threats of nullifying the constitution were made and Andrew Jackson threatened to hang a few nullifiers. The spirit of constitution and nationalism prevailed.

The principle of obstinacy to freedom, to the constitution, and in behalf of nullification was manifested in a hundred ways. It projected itself into the struggle for better highways and closer communications between the states. Henry Clay, the Whig, spent a lifetime seeking compromises with this spirit of disruption. Daniel Webster, the Whig, spent his life defending and supporting the constitution.

The heritage of denationalism leaped into its own in 1861. It had been left in its full bloom by John C. Calhoun, the very embodiment of secession, of slaveocracy, of disunion and denationalism.

It confronted Abraham Lincoln at every step. It villified him and sought to obstruct every Union principle. Even though Lincoln's policy was so broad that it was willing to accept any compromise that would save the Union, still the exponents of this doctrine of denationalism persisted.

Washington swarmed with office holders who converted to secession the secrets of the government, the public stores, and the leads to foreign hope, and who drew aid from the south and from the copperheads of the north alike. It was that heritage which gave aid and comfort to the rebellion and sought and received aid and comfort from foreign nations in the gigantic plot to overthrow that which still stands attacked but triumphant.

The spirit of disunion always has persisted and still persists. It persists in the perniciously un-American doctrine that we should throw down the safeguards of national unity and wait for something to happen.

In spite of the principle of nullification in this country the United States has established the absolute validity of republican government, of free suffrage, of universal opportunity and universal intelligence. It has made a mighty nation of a forest, it has made self-respecting governments out of broken monarchial provinces and made a laughing stock of European pretensions to human progress. The record of the United States is a record of advancement. What better lesson can we teach the world than that?

The nullification mood is moving again. It would abolish the strength we have for the weakness that is discernible all about us. The United States has gained its place in the world by hard work. Its best advice to the rest of the world is "go thou and do likewise."

This disruption movement in the form of anti-dependence assailed Washington in 1776, but he routed it. It assailed constitutional unity in 1787 and again it was defeated by Washington. It raised its head again when Lincoln was elected and sought the destruction of the Union, and it was again defeated. And yet again it recurs. But it shall be struck down again by those who love the Union.

We have here a principle of national unity. It shall not be subordinated to foreign interest. Disruption has been discredited before and it shall be again.

BETTER PAROLE AND BOND LAWS.

Our weak parole law is a menace to the public. The total absence of a criminal bond law is another. The parole law should be repealed and a strong one enacted. The Barrett bond law or one that shall insure the validity of bonds should be in force.

Under the present parole law the way is wide open for freedom for the prisoner. A murderer goes to prison with the legal assurance that after eleven months and with a careful showing he shall have a hearing and good chances for liberty. This is not the purpose of justice. It is not just to the thousands of persons who every year are robbed and murdered in Chicago and the state.

What this community needs for its own protection is not the easiest method of freeing its criminals but the surest way of isolating them. If potential criminals know for a moral certainty that upon conviction they shall go to prison to stay there for the length of their term, we shall see them tampering less boldly with the lives and property of others.

It is the knowledge that there is a way out that tempts the criminal to take chances with the law. This knowledge comes from the known futility of the parole law and the known worthlessness of the bond laws. All the hazards of crime put together can be nullified by a cunning manipulation of bonds and parole applications.

It is no hazard for a criminal to be arrested. Within a short time he can be liberated on a fake bond and he knows it. The officials who have been handling criminal bonds in Cook county cannot be ignorant of the utter futility of trying to hold a prisoner on such bonds as commonly are offered.

For every bond that is made as surety and is forfeited there should be the face value of that bond forfeited to the state by the man who makes it.

Even if a prisoner is so unfortunate as to be sentenced after missing the opportunities of the bonds he has only to utter solemn and insincere repentances, behave himself in prison, and he is likely to get the benefit of sobbing sentimentalists before the parole board.

Murder and robbery have grown to be too certain in Chicago. Penalty is not certain. When we make penalty as certain for the murderer as he makes death certain for his victim we shall see a social betterment.

THE ATTACHED CITIZEN.

The present period of income tax payments revives and emphasizes the personal relation of the private citizen to the government of the United States. Payment of income taxes carries with it a value to the government beyond the monetary value of the receipts. It carries with it a value to the citizen beyond the governmental protection made possible by the cash in the federal treasury.

Let us consider the case of an unattached young man with an income of $1,400 a year. He makes his return, deducts his $1,000, and pays $16 to the government. As he hands over the money he is likely to wonder what he is getting for it. The first thought, naturally, will be that he is paying for the privilege of living in the United States. What good does that do him? It provides him with opportunities for work and play, education, development of his ambition, protection of his home and associates, justice, progress, and stability.

That is a simple line of thought. It leads to another.

The government does a number of things not so pleasant. He sees some crooked politicians in office. Why should he pay to support them? Why should he provide money for some pork barrel appropriation? Why, indeed? Yet he has been forced to pay.

The next step in his mental process is easy.

How can he avoid paying for things of which he disapproves? The government which forces him to give it $16 allows him in return a vote. He can help to select the men who decide such issues as the amount of his income tax, pork barrel appropriations, and whether he shall be allowed a glass of beer.

Thinking along these lines, he is more than likely to go to the polls at the next election and vote with some degree of care toward the betterment of the government and its personnel. Similar trains of thought are likely to be developed with similar results among millions of income tax payers who never before realized the close personal relation between themselves and the government.

The days in which a man might live like a bird under the protection of a game law are gone. The government now has his number. It also has his address. It grabs him and demands its fraction of his income. He pays because the government requires it. Then suddenly he realizes that he is a part of that government. He has both a financial and a voting interest in it.

The unattached young man has become the attached citizen. Many such will go to the polls to cast their ballots thoughtfully where in the past they have cast them indifferently or not at all.

Editorial of the Day

"AMERICANISM" IS THE REPUBLICAN KEYNOTE.

[From the National Republican.]

The keynote of the Republican national campaign of 1920 is the single word "Americanism."

Americanism means not a race, nor a language, nor a mere area on the map but a working program of government which has withstood the test of a century's practical experience, and has contributed more to the welfare of mankind than any other plan for the regulation of human relations the world has yet devised.

Americanism means the maintenance and further development of representative republican government as conceived by the founders of this nation and embodied in a written constitution, the most beneficent charter of ordered liberty ever evolved by the hand and brain of man.

Art in the Provinces.

Sir: I was delegated to accompany a light opera company in a special car, making one night stands in the Peninsula and Northern Wisconsin. We were playing to packed houses. The opera was one of De Koven's and the company excellent. Business was fine until we hit Sheboygan, where at the rival opera house an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company held the boards. That night the Tommies cleaned up, simply turned them away, and the opera played to fifty-six people, many of them deadheads. It was wonderful the amount of stuff the Tom Co. could stow away in one car, which was an old revamped tourist sleeper with a "possum belly," a false bottom built underneath to store away scenery, and where also were domiciled the pack of four ferocious man-eating bloodhounds. The parade was nothing less than a miracle, as it was almost a mile long. The band was stretched out so far that it was only by instinct that all the members were able to keep on the same street with the leader. OLD TIMER.

THE HIGH COST OF PEACE.

Sir: In one of his European articles Frank H. Simonds states that resistance by the Roumanians "will merely mean an invitation to the Germans and the Hungarians to attack them in the rear and they will be crushed in the end. This will be a terrific price to pay for peace," he goes on to say. I'll say it is. HOOK.

WE have read half a ton of golf books, and in none of them is it advised to start the hands back before the club head. Yet, as C. B. Lloyd's moving pictures show, many if not most of the crack players employ that method. Don't they know what they do?

ON A PICTURE.

Led on by Faunus, piping, here are seen
Ungirdled maidens, dancing hand in hand
About a pleasant meadow newly green,
Their garments by a playful zephyr fanned;
Their brows with blossoms crowned; their nimble feet
Bare; their eyes like pools of radiant light
Shining; their lips like roses, ruddy, sweet—
How far, how very far away from night!
And yet not far, if seeing beauty, we
Adore it not, feel not our pulses thrill,
Disdain its rhythm and its glory scorn;
For then it is that cold Eternity
Doth mock us, yea, with desolation fill
The soul and bar the portals of the morn.

Just as We Were Getting Interested.

Sir: You're "I'll wait" story of the cub reporter at the home of the dying financier reminds me of the night on the St. Paul Pioneer Press when a more than bass voice on the phone said, "This is Rev. Mr. So-and-So. I am at the bedside of Rev. Mr. What-Do-You-Call-Him. He is dying. I think he will be dead within an hour. I called so you could be preparing appropriate biographical mention. I will call again as soon as he dies." An hour later, near the dead-line, the phone rang again. "The parson's dead," predicted a reporter, and so 'twas. Your trade classic of the lawyer who objected reminds me of the story told by Jim S. He knew a cub lawyer who anticipated a certain line of questioning by the opposition, so he prepared an air-tight and thoroughly inclusive objection, memorizing it in all its details. Sure enough, he had a chance to spring it. The judge heard him through. "Ed," he said to the other lawyer, "that means the young man doesn't want you to ask that question." Jim S., I might add, pulled a gorgeous boner on the Kansas City Star telegraph desk a few years ago, attributing a Paris statement to L. E. Matin. The "Who's Sick?" expense account classic reminds me of H. C. F.'s experience in Canada, where he was sent once upon a time to get a series of special stories for a Frisco paper. He was in one-train-now-and-then territory, and drove from town to town to save time, but his livery bills appalled the paper. Finally he got a wire from home. "Return to San Francisco at once," it ran, "but for God's sake don't drive."

FOR ALL THOSE WHO EAT.

PROFESSOR HAWK of Jefferson Medical college has been overturning a good many generally accepted notions since he left the middle west. If you do not think so read his answers to the following questions. He and his associates have had a well equipped laboratory in which to work.

They have had an instrument by which thye could record the temperature of food in the upper part of the digestive traqt as one of their working tools. They have been able to introduce food into the stomach and withdraw it for analysis, just as they wanted, because they had another piece of apparatus available.

They have been able to X-ray and fluoroscope the stomach at work with the latest thing in apparatus. They have had the service of a man who could empty his stomach at will at all times. They have had the assistance of a large number of medical students, willing to serve on digestion experiment food squads. Finally, they have had the services of cooks to prepare foods just as they wanted them prepared.

The result is a series of conclusions that go the limit in knocking out the food faddists, and incidentally overturn some of the generally accepted opinions of everyday people. Here are questions and answers:

Should we drink water with our meals? Answer—If you are normal by all means drink all the water you wish with your meals.

Is it well to drink water just before or after meals? The drinking of water before a meal is a good practice. It is also good practice to drink water immediately after a meal.

Does drinking water with meals make you fat? That depends on the individual.

Should we ever drink ice water? Ice water remains in the stomach only a few minutes. The stomach will warm it to normal in about twenty minutes.

What is the best temperature for water? About 60 degrees.

Does water with meals retard digestion? No.

What is the value of a glass of water the first thing in the morning? It cleans the stomach and promotes digestion.

Should it be cold or hot? As you prefer. For most people cool water is better.

Does a physical worker require more water than a brain worker? Yes.

How much water should a normal person drink in a day? At least two quarts. Three pints with meals and one between meals. However, much depends on weight, food, occupation.

Is it harmful to drink distilled water? No.

How long does water remain in the stomach? A very short time. Two glasses of water have been seen to leave the stomach in ten to twenty minutes.

FINDS HE'S HALE AT 92.

G. E. H. writes: "I was much interested in the article of W. M. G. in your column and wish to add my approval of the method which he adopted. I shall be 92 years of age on April 7, 1920. A few years ago I was taken with influenza, followed by pneumonia, and my physician gave up all hope of recovery. But I survived and I wish to say that for many years I had adopted the habit of taking a cold water bath each morning on arising, followed by a rubdown with a coarse towel and the further habit of eating only at meal time, and that habit I still follow. I have abstained from intoxicating drink since 1862, but have smoked regularly but not to excess. I also was troubled with nasal catarrh for years. Otherwise I have not been obliged to call in a physician during my whole life."

CLIMATIC EFFECTS SLIGHT.

N. B. writes: "Will you please tell me the best climate for one to live in who is troubled with catarrhal deafness? Is Florida or California good? Or would a drier climate be better?"

REPLY.

I do not think climate will help much. Perhaps you may gain something from spending your winters and springs in Florida or California.

LOTS OF DOGS HAVE GOITER.

M. writes: "Can a dog get goiter? My beautiful Scotch collie, the handsomest of his kind in Oregon, has a lump forming on his neck just above the breast. I found it today while bathing him. He is 5 years old. Is there anything I can do? Where can I take him?"

REPLY.

Dogs are frequently affected by goiter. See a veterinarian. Possibly something can be done.

EAR TROUBLE AFTER FLU.

Mrs. H. D. writes: "I was taken down with the flu on Jan. 30. A couple of days later my small children came down. The fever was so high I found it necessary to get up and bathe them to take the fever down. The next morning I had a cold in my head, and by Feb. 4 I had awful earache and cracking in the ear. It is getting worse every day, and I am doing nothing for it. It does not run, so cannot be an abscess. Can it be a mastoid? What is mastoid like? Is it dangerous and can it be cured without an operation?"

REPLY.

No. You probably have an infection of your middle ear, involving your eustachian tube. In all probability no operation will be required. Infection of the middle ear is not infrequently a complication of influenza.

EAR DISEASE PROBABLE.

Mrs. C. J. R. writes: "Will you please tell me the cause of a thumping and roaring in the ear, and what to do to relieve it, as it is very unpleasant and annoying?"

REPLY.

You have chronic middle ear disease. Treatment by an ear specialist sometimes gives relief. Just as often nothing avails.

TO CURB NAIL BITERS.

Mrs. H. S. writes: "My daughter has a habit of cracking her nails. I have put bitter almonds on them, but still she bites them. How can I get her out of the habit?"

REPLY.

To prevent a person from biting the nails paint on the following: Alcohol, 1¼ ounces; chinoidin, ¼ ounce; gum mastic, ¼ ounce; gum myrrh, 1¼ ounces. Mix. Let stand forty-eight hours. Shake the bottle occasionally. Apply with camel's hair brush. The varnish can be removed with alcohol or hot water.

PNEUMONIA IS CONTAGIOUS.

R. G. writes: "'A' claims pneumonia is contagious. 'B' claims it is not. Will you settle this?"

REPLY.

Ordinary pneumonia is not contagious to the degree that measles and scarlet fever are. However, the disease is spread by the sputum and mouth secretions and health departments frequently require a modified isolation with disinfection of sputum and saliva.

BILLS FOR SOLDIERS' GRATUITIES.

Chicago, March 9.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—What is congress going to do about gratuity to men who served in the late war? Do you think the bonus bill will go through? M. A. C.

A resolution was passed directing the committee on ways and means to take over for consideration all bills relating to gratuities for ex-service men. About seventy are before this committee now. We do not know at present and therefore cannot state what policy will be adopted in this respect.

BONUS MEETING.

Adjt. Gen. H. O. Weber, head of the United States Knights of Liberty and father of the soldiers' bonus bill of the state of Minnesota, is here to organize the state of Illinois for a soldiers' bonus patterned after the Minnesota bill. The Minnesota bonus bill provides for a payment of $15 per month for every month in the service, with a minimum of $50. Gen. Weber has called a meeting of all service men, nurses and women engaged in the war, at the Coliseum annex next Sunday at 3 o'clock.

ANSWERS.

L. W. Van Meter, Janesville, Wis.—Communicate with the sales and issues branch, zone supply office, 1819 West Thirty-ninth street, Chicago, regarding your army overcoat.

Mrs. R. C. Coulson, Scotland, Wis.—To arrange for the educational benefits from the state you will have to write to the state board of education, Madison, Wis.

H. R.—If you wish to remain in the Naval Reserve you must make arrangements for training this summer. If you will communicate with your district commandant you will be furnished with all information available at present.

W. W. W., St. Paul, Minn.—So far the state of Illinois has not provided a bonus, land grant, or other form of emolument for its citizens who served during the late war. The question will doubtless be debated at the next session of the state legislature.

M. Hummer—You cannot get a duplicate of your discharge, but, if you will communicate with the adjutant general of the army, Washington, D. C., he will issue a certificate of service to you.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

EXPATRIATED.

Iron Mountain, Mich., March 9.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Would an American citizen [naturalized], who has been in Italy for the last ten years and who has fought in the world war, have his American citizen's rights if he wanted to come to the United States? If not, could you let me know the reason why? Hoping that you give this your attention, I remain, J. C.

The letter does not afford sufficient information. The act of March 2, 1907 commonly known as the Expatriation Act, provides that,

"When any naturalized citizen shall have resided for two years in the foreign state from which he came, or for five years in any other foreign state it shall be presumed that he has ceased to be an American citizen."

It may be that the person referred to expatriated himself by his residence for ten years in Italy. It may also be that he expatriated himself by taking an oath of allegiance to a foreign government referred in the same act as follows:

"That any American citizen shall be deemed to have expatriated himself when he has been naturalized in any foreign state in conformity with its laws, or when he has taken an oath of allegiance to any foreign state."

H. L. ROETHE,
Acting Chief Naturalization Examiner.

A WOMAN'S AS GOOD AS A MAN.

Chicago, March 9.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Can a woman stand as a witness for any one taking out citizenship papers, providing she is a citizen and a taxpayer and property owner? F. D.

The naturalization law provides that a petition for naturalization shall be verified by the affidavits of witnesses, citizens of the United States, and it does not discriminate as to sex, so that a woman who is otherwise qualified is as competent to act as a man.

H. L. ROETHE,
Acting Chief Naturalization Examiner.

THE THOUGHTLESS TENANT.

Chicago, March 10.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a tenant who is very destructive. Instead of taking his time to do things he does it quickly and breaks whatever he is working on. He broke my furnace by putting a lot of ashes on top of his coal, which melted the upper part of the furnace. This put me to a great expense. Then he forced some stone through the grate instead of taking them out, and broke the grate. He put a new one in himself, but deducted the cost of it from the rent. Now he has taken a stove up to his kitchen, and lives in one room, in order not to use the furnace, and freezes the water pipes.

Can I make him pay for the damage he does? Also, can I make him use the furnace so as to keep my building from spoiling? M. I.

Most leases provide that the tenant shall, at the end of the term, yield the premises in as good condition as when he moved in, but do not require the landlord to repair.

If the freezing was due to the fault of the tenant, he is chargeable with the damage.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEASE QUESTIONS.

Chicago, March 5.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a lease in an apartment building which expires on Sept. 30, 1920. Said building was in the hands of a receiver when I rented the apartment and lease is signed by the receiver. Receiver had control for about two years. Building was just sold and new owner claims that all the leases are automatically canceled by the termination of receivership.

Is his contention correct?

SEVEN OF THE TENANTS.

If receiver's leases were authorized by the court upon notice to all parties, they are valid. If not so authorized, they are probably voidable.

THE FARM TALKS BACK.

Harvard, Ill., March 8.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—What's the matter with the farmers? Are they going to let Mr. Poole's statement in THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE of March 2 go uncontradicted? No wonder the people of Chicago think the farmers are rolling in the coin.

The farmer surely could if he fed dry feed until March 1, then started to feed silage and turned the cows out to pasture in April and May, as Mr. Poole states. May I take the liberty to correct you, Mr. Poole?

Farmers commence feeding silage about Sept. 1, if they have it—not March 1. What did you think the farmer did who had two to four silos on his place—feed his cows silage all summer? No; as a rule, he does not. Did you know, Mr. Poole, that the pastures are not ready for grazing cattle until about May 10? Evidently you didn't, or you would not have made the statement you did. If you don't believe me, ask any farmer—I'll furnish any number of addresses free of charge.

Mr. Poole, where did you get your ideas? From some of Chicago's noted officials? Some of their statements on dairying in the last two years have been just as ridiculous. Take a day off in April and come out to the farm. Hubby will meet you at the depot and take you around to see the cattle grazing in the pastures (it's a beautiful sight in April), and I'll prepare an old-fashioned "boiled dinner" for you. Milking cows has made me rich, but I'm too stingy to treat you to a dinner such as you no doubt are accustomed to.

MRS. HERMAN GUTTSCHOW.
R. D. No. 3.

O, YOU MUSTN'T MIND THEM.

Chicago, March 6.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—How is it that Canada newspaper and magazine editors are so unanimous in abusing all the American senators who are opposed to the league of nations? According to these writers, all who are opposed to it are "from cornfields," or are "small bore politicians," etc. Those championing the league are "big men," "statesmen," "progressive," "enlightened," and so on. Can you explain? I hope you can. G. H. HARRIS.

THIS SIMPLY HAS TO BE PRINTED.

De Soto, Wis., March 9.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—"The Voice of the People" department of THE TRIBUNE is one of the most interesting and most admirable—as well as most amusing—features of the W. G. N. Most interesting I suppose, because it is so closely related to the people; most admirable because it reveals more accurately perhaps than anything else about your publication its publishers' fairness and breadth of mind; and most amusing because through it we, the people, so often render ourselves ridiculously ridiculous by our petty outbursts of intolerance of anything and everything which is contrary to our own narrow personal opinions.

Among these outbursts one of the most narrow and unbecoming, it seems to me, as emanating from a class which prides itself upon its alleged Christianity, are those from the irate "drys," peeved because your editors are broad minded enough to recognize even this great question of national prohibition has its two sides. They accuse you and B. L. T. of coloring your columns too highly with amber and wine (to me they are delightful tints), but, for my part (and I have read your editorial columns quite closely), I have yet to see where you have assumed an emphatic stand either for or against John Barleycorn. So far as I have been able to detect, your editors have merely discussed the question from both angles, as they certainly have the right to discuss any public issue. All that hurts the "dry" readers of THE TRIBUNE is that you have not landed with both feet hard upon the "wets." Unfortunately, there are a lot of folks in the world who think that the only way a newspaper can be fair in its handling of any question is to espouse and defend their side of it—that is, agree implicitly with them.

O. BYRON COPPER.

THE LAW AND THE WILL BEHIND IT.

Chicago, March 1.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Nearly every time THE TRIBUNE publishes an anti-prohibition editorial, up comes a howl. Do these writers think that THE TRIBUNE, or any other paper, could have any influence on stopping a man from hunting up a drink if he can find it, and wants it? The prohibitionists know that a law is no stronger than the sentiment behind it. If prohibition is popular with the people, as the Anti-Saloon League claims, why the necessity for congress to appropriate so much money to enforce it, and what excuse is there for the Anti-Saloon League now that national prohibition has been adopted?

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago bookstore were:

FICTION.

"September" [Doran], by Frank Swinnerton.
"Sheila Intervenes" [Doran], by Stephen McKenna.
"The Romantic Woman" [Knopf], by Mary Borden Turner.
"The Best Short Stories of 1919" [Small-Maynard], edited by Edward J. O'Brien.
"The Man of the Forest" [Harpers], by Zane Grey.
"The House of Baltazar" [John Lane], by William J. Locke.

NONFICTION.

"The Economic Consequences of the Peace" [Harcourt, Barce & Howe], by John Maynard Keynes.
"White Shadows in the South Seas" [Century], by Frederick O'Brien.
"Body and Raiment" [Knopf], by Eunice Tietjens.

UNDER the intriguing title of "Hey Rub-a-Dub-Dub," Theodore Dreiser has collected his thoughts about American life. Bernard Shaw has one of his characters in "Antony and Cleopatra" say "The crowds along the Appian way are ever the same age." Theodore Dreiser's book recalls that memorable phrase. Mr. Dreiser seems suddenly to have discovered that fundamental fact. He seems to have extricated himself from the crowds and to have suddenly turned upon them the eyes of a man who was but lately one of them.

He was for a few years the bright light on the American literary horizon—he was in the flow of American life. He was one of the eternal youths of the Appian way. He wrote books which had the quality of what Waldo Frank might call the rhythm of America. And then suddenly he stopped to look in a toy shop window, perhaps, and became so fascinated by the highly sensitized mechanical dolls that the boisterous, buxom, sometimes blowzy crowd seemed unreal to him.

"Hey Rub-a-Dub-Dub" is his attempt to analyze that crowd. It is a book of undeniable facts about human nature—a restatement of the injustices of life, of the unfair distribution of wealth, of the law's unfairnesses, of the wrongs of the ballot, of the injustice of the price of living, of the cruelties of the Negro question, of the autocracy of the government during the war, of the morbid Puritanism of America, of the unbeatitudic attitude of the press, of America's signal failure to realize her ideals. But that is all it is, just a statement of cases. There is no vision, no passionate hope, even, of a change. It is just the picture of the crowds. Waldo Frank in "Our America" really has a vision. He sees where the crowds might go when they have ceased wandering up and down the Appian way, when they have grown beyond the "ever the same age" period. Theodore Dreiser does not.

In the February bulletin of the Chicago Public library there is a selected list of the books of 1919 "which have received the public approval of most frequent and persistent use." It is a useful list. You'd better own it. You can get the bulletin at the library.

"Raymond Robins' Own Story" [Harpers], which has been one of the most compelling features of the Metropolitan Magazine, is now available in book form. It loses none of its force and power by being concentrated into a book. William Hard has done again the rare thing of recording intelligently without intruding his personality. Mr. Robins is definitely and completely not a bolshevist, he declares. He recommends lifting the blockade and sending "American influence by every possible channel into every possible part of Russian life, central and local. Reciprocally admit to this country, and protect while here, the agents of the soviet buying and selling organizations. If any American representative in Russia mixes himself into Russian internal politics let him be deported, after proper punishment in Russia. If any Russian representative in America mixes himself into American internal politics let him be deported, after proper punishment in America." Mr. Robins' book is not only the latest word about Russia but it is one of the sanest sounding.

I heard a most amusing story about John Masefield the other day from some one who must be nameless, but who knows him very well. Masefield is married, it seems, to a lady with notions about his habits which are not the ideas usually fluttering about in a poet's mind. He thinks that he must work like a fiend because after 45 he will cease to write—it is a sort of phobia with him. To foster that eagerness for creation his spouse sets him to work at 9 o'clock. At 12 he is called and sent out with the baby in the pram. He must be back at a quarter to 1 for luncheon. Kensington gardens is distant exactly twenty-three minutes of stiff walking. Day after day Masefield starts for Kensington gardens, and each day at exactly one-half minute from his goal he must turn around and start home—for tardiness at luncheon would be high treason. "And that," said his jovial friend, "is what causes that unspeakably sad look on Masefield's face. He is always almost but never quite reaching Kensington gardens."

Eric Fisher Wood—not related to the general—has written an exhaustive though not exhaustive life of Gen. Wood [Doran], which is obviously propaganda for his nomination as well as an interesting biography. It is rather amusing to have "literature" take the place it has in presidential campaigns. Gen. Grant and others of the olden days had their biographies written—or wrote their memoirs—after they had been chosen by the republic. In accord with the present system of the potential presidents ogling Columbia before God and everybody, the potential presidents allow the stories of their lives to be written and published. There have already appeared "The Life of Gen. Pershing" [Appleton], "The Career of Leonard Wood" [Appleton], this new "Leonard Wood" [Doran], and there is promised for next month a record of the life and accomplishments of Herbert Hoover, also published by Appleton.

C. Le Roy Baldridge, whose cartoons in The Stars and Stripes made him the friend of every American soldier in France, and whose collection of sketches, "I Was There," is the one American pictorial record of the war from the heart of the American soldier, dashed through Chicago last week on his way to New York to start civil life again. He has been, since last August, in China. He sailed before his book was off the presses and he has returned to America to find himself even more famous than he was in France.

Demetra Vaka, herself a Greek and the wife of an American, Kenneth Brown, has written, with her husband, a novel of young Greece and its struggles to slip the noose of Prussianism from its neck, and a love story of a Grecian princess and an American attaché, which gives one, nicely coated with sugar, the pill of the political situation which brought forth Venizelos. Unconsciously, while enjoying a very good yarn about a romantic land, the reader "gets learnin'," as our black cook used to say, in "In Pawn to a Throne" [John Lane].

CITY HALL OUT FOR COMPLETE PARTY CONTROL

Division Among Foes Gives It Edge.

Mayor Thompson's political organization that responds to Fred Lundin as its actual leader is out in the open to make a cleanup of the Cook county Republican organization at the direct primaries on April 13.

While the mayor's machinery is running at high speed, with a candidate for ward committeeman in each of the thirty-five wards, former Governor Charles S. Deneen and Attorney General Edward J. Brundage are attempting to annihilate each other, although the political fortunes of both depend largely upon their combined ability to keep control of party affairs in Chicago away from the city hall during the coming four years.

City Hall Confident.

The city hall makes the claim that it will elect not less than thirty of the thirty-five ward committeemen in Chicago. It is not claimed substantially, either in the Deneen or the Brundage camp, that either of those factions can win an unquestioned majority of the county organization. There are not enough Brundage candidates running to do that, and it cannot be figured how the Deneen faction could win a clear majority except by a landslide that would overturn city hall majorities that have been established in recent municipal campaigns. The Thompson claim of thirty, undoubtedly, is based upon the expectation that the Deneen and Brundage wings will fight to a finish and enable the city hall candidates to get pluralities, through three man contests, in such wards as the Sixth and Twenty-fifth, both of which have great voting strength under the cumulative system in the county convention.

Powers of Committee.

Under the revised primary law the ward committeemen who will be elected on April 13 will hold office for four years instead of two. The powers of the new committee are these:

> To formulate the policies and control party affairs within the city and county, which means the making of the regular organization slate for county offices, for the mayoralty election of 1923, and similar exercise of authority.
> To nominate directly, without a primary, twenty Circuit court and one Superior court judges in 1920, and all Circuit and Superior court judges whose terms expire during the four year period.
> To select all delegates to the congressional, district, and state conventions that will name the delegates at large and district delegates to the national convention next June.
> To nominate directly the clerk of the Appellate court in the First (Chicago) district.
> To control, through the organization, party nominations for congress in the ten Cook county districts, and for the Illinois legislature in the nineteen senatorial districts in Cook county.

There are forty-one members of the county committee, one from each of the Chicago wards and six from the country towns. The six from the country towns, known as the Weber-Hoffman group, now act independently of any of the Chicago factions, and probably will continue to do so.

Ten Wards Conceded.

In the following wards the election of the Thompson candidate for committeeman practically is conceded:

First—FRANK P. BRADY.
Second—EDWARD H. WRIGHT.
Fourth—BART J. EVANS.
Eighth—PATRICK H. MOYNIHAN.
Tenth—THOMAS CURRAN.
Eleventh—CHARLES V. BARRETT.
Twelfth—AUGUST W. MILLER.
Nineteenth—CHRISTOPHER MAMER.
Twentieth—MORRIS ELLER.
Thirty-fifth—C. J. PETERS.

Mr. Barrett, in the Eleventh ward, is included in this list because he is supported by the city hall faction. Heretofore he has lined up with the Brundage forces.

Two-Man Fights.

Wards in which there are only two candidates of importance are as follows:

Fifth—E. R. Litsinger, present committeeman, has moved out of the ward into the Twenty-first. His old organization is attempting to elect Henry W. Langosch in his stead. The city hall is with L. F. King. This ward is claimed certainly by the city hall.

Seventh—This has settled into a two man fight, due to the withdrawal of G. W. Porter, backed by former Ald. Snow. Isaac N. Powell, with the Deneen group, is not a candidate for reëlection. He and the Deneen forces are with Charles N. Goodnow, former judge and now county commissioner. The city hall has A. C. Metzger. With Porter out of it, the chances at this time favor Goodnow.

Thirteenth—David W. Clark, old timer on the county committee, who has been with the city hall for several campaigns, has a real fight on his hands, brought by Peter Kane, a Deneen man now, two years ago a chief lieutenant of Clark's. The influence of Homer K. Galpin, considerable in the ward, was against Clark in 1918, and is now for him. The city hall is certain that Clark will be reëlected.

Fourteenth—Former State Senator William H. Dellenback, a Deneen man, is making a hard fight against A. N. Todd, the present city hall committeeman. It is now a tossup between the two, but the city hall claims the ward absolutely. A heavy Negro voting strength has entered the ward recently.

Fifteenth—Congressman Niels Juul, a Deneen man, is not a candidate for reëlection to the county committee, and his organization has named Paul H. Wiedel of the board of assessors office. The city hall is with James J. McComb, former member of the state board of equalization and of the state board of agriculture. William Ganschow of the West Park board, who has been aligned with the Brundage wing, is supporting McComb. This will be one of the real contests.

Sixteenth—The city hall expects to win this ward, and is for Daniel D. Coffey in seeking the scalp of Joseph P. Kinsella, a Deneen man. Kinsella says that he knows he is up against a genuine battle, but thinks he can win.

Seventeenth—Here is where the city hall banks heavily upon picking up a ward. It expects to defeat former Alderman Lewis D. Sitts, a Deneen man up for reëlection, with Fred E. Erickson, for many years a member of the house, at Springfield.

Brundage Faces Fight.

Twenty-third—In this ward, the city hall put up Eugene H. Dupee against Attorney General Edward J. Brundage. Mr. Brundage supported Dupee for delegate to the constitutional convention and got into trouble in the Twenty-fifth ward as a result, and it was a surprise when Dupee, who is attorney for the board of local improvements, became a candidate against him. Mr. Brundage, of course, is confident of reëlection, backed by a strong organization; but Michael J. Faherty is handling the Dupee campaign, which is scheduled to be one of the hottest scraps in town.

Twenty-fourth—Leonard Brundage, aligned with the Brundage wing, is expected to be elected without great difficulty over A. A. Huhnke, the city hall entry.

Twenty-eighth—County Recorder Joseph F. Haas, one of the Deneen organization leaders, is marked for slaughter in this northwest side bailiwick. The city hall has as its candidate Thomas H. Byrne, superintendent of streets. "We would rather beat Joe Haas than any man in town," is the word from the Thompson camp. This is admittedly one of the closest contests in the city.

Twenty-ninth—Leonard Withall, present committeeman, who switched from the Deneen camp to the Brundage, and then to the city hall lineup, is a candidate for reëlection. The combined Deneen-Brundage strength in the ward is with Leonard C. Reid, a law partner of Edward R. Litsinger. The city hall is charged with having produced a G. W. Reid as a third candidate. Thompson leaders claim Withall's reëlection a sure thing.

Breen Against Healy.

Thirtieth—Thomas J. Healy, always one of the conspicuous leaders in the Deneen organization, is again a candidate. His city hall opponent is James W. Breen, an assistant corporation counsel. The prospects are in Mr. Healy's favor, although the city hall is leaving nothing undone for Mr. Breen.

Thirty-first—Dr. William H. Reid, now commissioner of public service in the mayor's cabinet, has a genuine fight on his hands. The opposition forces are concentrated upon David I. Swanson, who was a candidate for alderman in the recent nonpartisan election. Swanson's friends claim to be embittered against Dr. Reid because he supported the Democratic alderman for reëlection, Terence F. Moran. This is former Gov. Deneen's home ward. This is a ward where a city hall loss might be recorded.

Thirty-second—In this ward a combination was effected between the Deneen forces, led by Charles W. Vail, and the Brundage men, led by Charles A. Williams. Mr. Williams was not a candidate for reëlection as ward committeeman. They agreed to support J. A. Johnson, against former Ald. James Rea, who is one of the chief city hall lieutenants in the Town of Lake.

Chance for Devine.

Thirty-third—In this ward, on the far northwest side, the city hall stands to lose a committeeman, it is claimed by the inside politicians. George Hitzman, who was the city hall candidate for sheriff, and was walloped by Charles W. Peters in the 1918 primary, is the Thompson candidate for reëlection. John F. Devine, clerk of the Probate court, is the candidate of the combined city hall opposition. The city hall people are factionally split, it is claimed, former Ald. M. A. Michaelson figuring in the trouble, and Devine may win out.

Thirty-fourth—Seven candidates filed petitions, but the fight here is between Charles Vavrik, present city hall committeeman, and State Representative Sol P. Roderick, allied with the Deneen faction. The city hall doesn't expect to lose the ward, but Roderick claims he can win if there are some withdrawals.

Three Cornered Fights.

In seven wards there are genuine three-man contests, and it is in this list that the Thompson management expect to make enough gains to obtain unquestioned control of the county organization, as follows:

Third—Robert R. Levy, who always has voted with the Brundage men, is a candidate for reëlection. The Deneen organization is for C. Arch Williams, present chief counsel for the sanitary district. The city hall candidate is William A. Bither. The city hall claims a sure victory for Bither, with the opposition split two ways. It counts confidently upon the support of the heavily populated Negro precincts for Bither.

Sixth—Roy O. West, former Republican national committeeman and chairman of the state committee, and closest political and personal friend of Charles S. Deneen, is a candidate for reëlection. Largely because the Deneen organization on the north side put in Sheriff Peters as a candidate against George K. Schmidt, a Brundage man in the Twenty-fifth ward, and Edward R. Litsinger against James F. Burns, a Brundage man in the Twenty-first, the Brundage leaders in the ward have named Sanitary district trustee and former Ald. Dr. W. O. Nance. With this sort of a fight on, the city hall has an active candidate in R. J. McLaughlin. The city hall wants this ward badly because of the big voting strength that it has in the county committee.

Ninth—This is now a Brundage ward, represented by Edward E. Ertsman, chief of police of the sanitary district, who is a candidate for reëlection to the committee. The Deneen element is with W. G. Davis and the city hall claims it can slide past with A. Zylstra, while the other two factions are fighting each other.

Bitter in Twenty-first.

Twenty-first—In this north side ward, Edward R. Litsinger, now a Deneen committeeman from the Fifth ward, and recently emigrated to the Twenty-first, became a candidate for committeeman. The Brundage organization named ex-Ald. James F. Burns to take the place of Judge Oscar Hebel, who quit the committee when he went on the bench. The city hall candidate is Charles E. Peace, who is backed principally by ex-Controller Pike. The three factions went to a tryout at the aldermanic election, the split of the Deneen and Brundage factions preventing the reëlection of Ald. Earl J. Walker and permitting the city hall candidate to run first. On the confidential lists of the city hall the Twenty-first is put down as a sure thing for the hall.

Twenty-second—Three candidates here, one for each faction makes it somewhat uncertain but the reëlection of Charles G. Kempff, a Brundage man is expected. A. J. Schoeter is the Deneen man. The city hall has Titus Haffa as its dark horse.

Twenty-fifth Battle Ground.

Twenty-fifth—George K. Schmidt, aligned with the Brundage wing, asks for reëlection. Sheriff Charles W. Peters, one of the big Deneen men downtown, filed against him. Whereupon the city hall produced Commissioner of Public Works Charles R. Francis as its candidate and fully expects him to slide by while the other two are at the throats of each other. The Brundage claim is that Sheriff Peters has broken his word in getting into the ward committeeship contest and that he is trying to reconstruct the old Pease organization around himself. The ward is just beginning to get stirred up over the three cornered contest, which will be without quarter when it gets to going.

Twenty-sixth—The contest really is between John C. Cannon, present committeeman and lined up with the Brundage forces and William H. Wesbey, who has been organizing the ward for the city hall in the last three campaigns. Emil J. Heine is the entry of the Deneen organization in the ward, which is taking votes away from Cannon.

Twenty-seventh—LeRoy Milner, now committeeman has been acting with the Brundage forces ever since he became a member of the committee. The Deneen men in the ward claim that he was elected as a Deneen man, and their candidate against him now is William C. Eggert. The city hall has produced Thomas T. Quinlan. A close finish between Milner and Eggert may let Quinlan get through with the necessary plurality, which is precisely what the Thompson leaders expect him to do.

CHICAGOAN CHOSEN TO HEAD POLYGLOT MINISTERS' SCHOOL

THE REV. F. L. ANDERSON.

New York has come to Chicago to find a head for its polyglot training school for Baptist ministers and missionaries. The Rev. Frank L. Anderson, superintendent of the Chicago Baptist executive council, was named yesterday as president of the New York institution.

The appointment was made after a month's conference with leaders of the Northern Baptist convention in New York, where it was decided $1,000,000 of the $100,000,000 New World Movement fund would be set aside to train foreign speaking theologians.

Dr. Anderson will remain in Chicago until after the annual conference of Baptist ministers on May 15, when his successor will be chosen.

HOME FROM OVERSEAS TO AID ENDOWMENT FOR MOUNT HOLYOKE

MISS MARY RUHL.

Miss Mary Ruhl of Clarksburg, W. Va., and Miss Katherine Condon of New York were the chief guests at a Mount Holyoke luncheon held at the College club yesterday. Miss Ruhl just returned from overseas duty with the Y. M. C. A., and Miss Condon is student representative in the finance department of the National Y. W. C. A. Both young women are in Chicago in the interest of the $3,000,000 endowment fund for Mount Holyoke.

WOOD READY TO TAKE LEAGUE AND TREATY TO POLLS

New York, March 13.—Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood is willing to have the peace treaty and the league of nations made a campaign issue. The general's position on the question was made public today at the Wood headquarters in this city.

"As a people we are all anxious for definite action on the treaty," reads the statement. "I think that we should approve the league with reservations which thoroughly Americanize it, which will leave America absolutely free to follow out her traditional policies, to control without interference her own internal affairs, which should preserve as far as possible the machinery provided by the league to bring the representatives of the people of the nations together to talk over before they resort to force.

"I believe that we should accept the league, with the Lodge reservations.

"I am in favor of, and shall continue to be in favor of the well established foreign policy of this government which conserves and protects the interests of our own country. I do not think this treaty with the reservations impairs that policy."

EDWARDS QUITS AS CANDIDATE IN ILLINOIS PRIMARY

Will Fight for 'Wet' Plank at San Francisco.

Gov. Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey quit yesterday as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president in the Illinois primaries of April 13. His name will not appear on the ballots, Secretary of State Emmerson having complied with his request of withdrawal after receiving an opinion from Attorney General Brundage that there is no time limit fixed for withdrawal under the presidential preference act.

EDWARD I. EDWARDS.
[Photo Central News.]

Gov. Edwards also withdrew in every other state, where ardent wet partisans, following the lead taken by the United Societies in Chicago two weeks ago, had filed Edwards petitions. In a formal statement issued by him at Trenton, N. J., Gov. Edwards said that the office should seek the man, but that he proposed to carry his fight against the prohibition amendment to the San Francisco convention, which, he hopes, will be composed of uninstructed delegates.

Illinois Democrats are now without a contest in the presidential primaries, and the delegation controlled by Roger C. Sullivan goes without instructions to San Francisco.

POLITICAL NOTES

The George K. Schmidt Young Men's Republican club of the Twenty-fifth ward has been organized for the purpose of re-electing Mr. Schmidt ward committeeman. The effort is being made to enroll all first voters in the club. Henry R. Rathbone and William Karr Steele will speak at a meeting of the organization tomorrow night at the clubrooms, 4816 Broadway.

The Illinois headquarters of the Wood campaign issued a statement claiming heavy Wood sentiment in the Fourteenth congressional district and in the Second ward of Chicago.

The Women's Lowden league announces a registration roundup prior to March 23 to register Chicago women so that they may vote in the presidential preference primary on April 13. The first meeting of the campaign will be held at the Blackstone hotel Wednesday. Miss Dorothy Edwards has been made chairman of the Young Women's division.

Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood starts this morning for an eight day trip through South Dakota, traveling in a special Pullman. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Wood, Mrs. William C. Procter, Miss Johnston and Chief Justice Harry Olson of Chicago. It is categorically denied that Archie Roosevelt will go with the party.

The petition of George W. Reid for Republican ward committeeman in the Twenty-ninth ward has been withdrawn, leaving the contest to Ernest Withell and Leonard C. Reid.

Former Alderman Conrad H. Jahnke yesterday quit as a candidate for Republican ward committeeman in the Thirty-fifth ward, and the fight is now between C. J. Peters, present city hall committeeman, and Beryl B. Collins, Deneen entry. Mr. Collins said last night that Jahnke's withdrawal makes it possible for him to defeat Peters.

A meeting in the interest of William C. Eggert, Deneen candidate for ward committeeman in the Twenty-seventh ward, is announced for next Friday night at Myrtle Masonic temple. Ben Short and Edward R. Litsinger are the speakers.

Wood headquarters announced the creation of an organization in Pennsylvania to secure the state for Wood as second choice to Gov. Sproul, who is conceded the instructions from the state.

Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, who now has a clear field in his state for the presidential instructions in the Democratic primaries, will be the guest of the Iroquois club at dinner March 25 at the clubrooms. Gov. Cox will speak on "Good Faith in Government."

BRYAN TO SPRING AT PRESIDENCY—IF NATION CALLS

But He Doesn't Believe Need Will Arise.

Lincoln, Neb., March 13.—William J. Bryan does not desire the Democratic presidential nomination, but feels it his duty to progressive Democrats to go to the party's national convention to "help them in opposing the reactionaries and friends of the saloon," he announced in a statement here tonight.

His statement took the form of a personal answer to requests that he enter the presidential race. Declaring he "recognized it to be the duty of the citizen to respond to calls of his country in peace or war," Bryan said that "if the situation became such that my nomination was actually demanded, as in time of war a soldier's life is demanded on the battlefield," he would feel he should consider it.

"I hope," he added, "that no such situation will arise, and I do not now see any probability that such a situation will arise."

Bryan said the demands of public life for thirty years had deprived him of the companionship of his family and that he now desired "to look forward to a few years of uninterrupted happiness at home," where he could devote his time to literary work. He added that he had not lost interest in public questions, but preferred to aid young men to "carry on the people's cause."

LONG ILL; HANGS SELF.

Donald Tesinsky, 46 years old, of Stickney, a laborer, who had been despondent because of a long illness, hanged himself in the attic of his home yesterday afternoon.

UNPLEDGED BAND OF 300 GUIDES G. O. P. CHOICE

Agreement Made After Roosevelt Death Binds.

Balance of power in the Republican national convention next June will rest in the hands of a highly organized body of approximately 300 uninstructed delegates. These delegates, who are being elected as rapidly as possible, are to be pledged to no candidate. They may be for one of the candidates now in the going, and they may be for a dark horse. Up to last night 145 national convention delegates had been elected, of whom 111 are uninstructed, fourteen are instructed for Maj. Gen. Wood, two of whom are contested, and twenty-two are instructed for Judge Pritchard of North Carolina.

Permission was granted to THE TRIBUNE during the recent session of the Republican national committee by one of the chief figures in the merger to give to the public the general plan of procedure in perfecting the arrangements for establishing the block of 300 uninstructed and unpledged delegates.

Follows Roosevelt Death.

It started at a secret conference held in Chicago a few days after the death of Col. Roosevelt, in which the participants were certain members of the national committee and representatives from a great many other states who were not national committeemen.

The understanding had been complete within the Republican organization that Col. Roosevelt was to have been the 1920 nominee without a contest had he lived. After his death it was apparent to the leaders that there was no outstanding candidate.

This meeting, it is asserted, was not held in the interest of or against any candidate, and it was the unanimous opinion of those present that conditions were ripe for an "old fashioned" convention, at which the candidate would be nominated by the delegates on the Coliseum floor.

Bound by Promise.

An organization was perfected and formally organized to carry out the plan of electing uninstructed and unpledged delegates. Members of this organization are bound together by a sacred promise, it is said, to each other not to pledge themselves to any candidate before the meeting of the convention, and to stand together for whichever candidate is then agreed upon by them.

The fact that the southern states are rapidly selecting their delegates and without exception sending them to Chicago without instructions indicates to the inside politicians that the organization is strong and far reaching. No one seems to know just who are the members except the members themselves.

Has No Favorite.

It is understood between the members of the organization that it shall not advocate the cause of any candidate, but shall come to the convention unpledged and be free to vote for any candidate who then appears to be the most available. "Nominate the candidate who is absolutely sure to win the election in November," is the unwritten law of the organiaztion.

"These men at this time are neither for nor against any one of the candidates," said one of the men who is known to be an important member of the organization. "Their final choice may be any one of the avowed candidates or some one whose name has not been mentioned. All depends upon existing conditions and the public sentiment at the time of the convention, after a free and full discussion of the merits of each candidate.

"In this organization are some of the best known and most influential Republicans of the country. It is not composed of a few politicians who will sit on the outside of the convention, but it is largely made up of men who are or will be delegates.

Must Nominate Best.

"This organiaztion," he continued, "appears to have been formed by a master hand, not for the purpose of mere control or for any selfish purpose. It was formed upon the theory that the Republicans must nominate their best man this year, and that the best way to do that is to express their deliberate choice without dictation from any one."

Enough delegates have now been elected in different parts of the country to indicate almost certainly that the plan is working out, and not until this fact had developed, was it possible to get satisfactory corroboration of the fleeting rumors that such a project was in process of consummation.

Under the laws of the direct primary states, it is necessary, in most of them, that one of the contending candidates come out with instructions of one sort or another. The direct primary states, however, are amply represented in the makeup of the organization as outlined above.

Few delegates were elected during the week just ended. The New Hampshire direct primary was held, with an indicated victory for Gen. Wood and Wood instructions to the eight delegates.

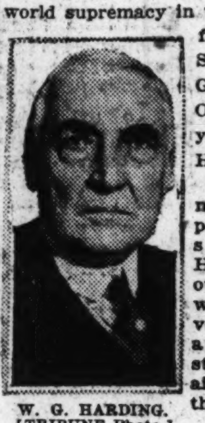
SENATOR HARDING WANTS AMERICA TO RULE IN AIR

Also Urges Larger Army and Ample Navy.



W. G. HARDING.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

An ample navy, a larger army, and world supremacy in the air is the defense policy of Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, who spoke yesterday at the Hamilton club.

"We ought to more than keep pace in the air," said Senator Harding. "We ought to lead the world in the development of aviation and be stronger in the air than we are on the sea.

"We ought to have a stronger army than we have ever known in peace times and we ought to have all the young manhood of the republic know the benefits of discipline and physical betterment that comes of military training. But it ought to be voluntary and not compulsory, supported by the government in camp and in the national guard, in schools and in colleges. It ought to be made so popular and so helpful that every young man would seek it as a privilege rather than accept it as a duty.

Would Free Business.

"I'd unshackle business and restore free speech and free press and free thought. I'd say we are everlastingly opposed to government ownership. I'd add that any American should go anywhere, on a rightful mission, on land or sea, in safety under the American flag.

Against Watchful Waiting.

"I wouldn't have watchful waiting five minutes longer in Mexico. We ought to have an understanding with Mexico about the rights of American citizens in the protection of their lives and property and we ought to make Mexico keep that understanding."

Senator Harding spoke for a merchant marine and urged that the shipping board vessels be sold only to Americans sworn to sail them under the American flag.

Loesch to Speak on "Right of Free Speech"

Attorney Frank J. Loesch, former president of the Union League club, will speak on "The Right of Free Speech" at the men's fellowship meeting to be held at the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A., 1400 East Fifty-third street, at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon.

LOWDEN'S RACE MANAGER FIGHTS UNIVERSAL DRILL

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Representative Frank L. Smith, chairman of the Republican state committee of Illinois, eastern manager of the Lowden presidential campaign, and possible gubernatorial or senatorial candidate, today took a stand against universal military training in a speech in the house.

"There are what seem to me to be four good reasons why America should not adopt a policy of universal and compulsory military training at this time," he said.

"In so far as I have been able to read the public mind, an overwhelming majority of the people are against such a policy.

"The cost of such a policy at this time is prohibitive. Estimates of the cost range from $600,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 a year. It is too much to be added to the public budget.

"Such a policy will foster a military caste.

"A nation trained for war invites war. It is futile to say our people would be trained for defense only."

Mr. Smith said tonight that he was speaking for himself only.

WOMAN DOCTOR IS FREED.

Dr. Florence Bego of 2500 North Clark street was released from custody yesterday upon recommendation of a coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Forster, as there was only hearsay evidence against her.

AMERICAN ASKS PERMIT TO RAISE EXPRESS RATES

Washington, D. C., March 13.—Increased express charges, ranging from 10 to 75 per cent, and estimated to yield $25,000,000 additional revenue annually, were asked by the American Railway Express company in a petition filed today with the interstate commerce commission.

Increased cost of conducting its business, as well as the urgent need for more complete facilities and equipment, were given as grounds for the request.

The company estimated its deficit for 1919 at $22,036,000 and for the last six months of 1918 at $15,723,000. A deficit "even greater than for the corresponding period of 1919" was declared probable for January and February of this year.

The company asked for a flat 25 per cent increase east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio rivers.

Between points in that district and other sections of the country, the increase would be 10 per cent. Rates on milk and cream would be practically the same as charged by the railroads.

The largest increase sought was for actual hauling, for which the company asked 75 per cent additional in the eastern district and 50 per cent elsewhere.

An increase of 33 1-3 per cent was asked for terminal handling of shipments, more than half of which would be turned over to the railroad companies.

FOREST OF WHITE CROSSES HAUNTS HOUSE DEBATERS

Victims of Pacifism Hear Army Bill Talkfest.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Specters of the American boys sent into battle untrained and martyred to a nation's unpreparedness have haunted the house of representatives during the debate on the army bill, from which all provision for universal military training had been eliminated.

Again and again during the debate these concrete instances of the tragic cost of unpreparedness to the folks at home have arisen to plague those congressmen who have defended their opposition to universal training on the ground that their constituents are against it and would retire them if they should vote for it.

Here is a sample, Representative Caldwell of New York, Democrat, speaking:

Unfamiliar with Guns.

"After the greatest war of all times, when America sent her young manhood over there to fight for the cause of humanity, how did she send them? Some of my Democratic friends over there who are against universal training will tell you. Mr. Bryan told us that a million men would spring to arms overnight, and they did. Yes, and they sent those poor boys across to the other side, a great many of them without ever having been told how to load a gun. When I was over there a captain who had seen service in the trenches told me of cases where men in the trenches, ready to go over the top in a few minutes before the zero hour, said, 'Captain, I do not mind going over, but will you not please show me how to load the gun so that I can shoot when I get over there?'

"In my district there was a boy who was drafted and was sent to three camps and then shipped across, and was buried in the trenches in France within five weeks from the time he was drafted, and he never before he was called by the draft had a gun in his hands.

Lesson Unheeded.

"Figures from Fort Slocum, N. Y., show that out of ten men taken in the ordinary enlistment seven of them never had a gun in their hannds before in their lives. Yet here at this time, when the country is still technically at war, when all the world is a seething volcano, when no man knows when the next outbreak will be, when no man knows what hour the clock will strike and the men of America will be sent again to defend the flag of our country, you, under the tutelage of men who are against training and were against the war, come in here and destroy the military bill designed before the war, paying no attention to the great lesson taught by this great holocaust. Shame on you men sent here to defend and protect the country, who will destroy the only means of defense we have and give us nothing in its place, so to speak."

Sent Boys to Death.

"The gentleman from New York will undoubtedly admit that if the case he cited is true, that there was a boy from his district who did not know how to load his gun, that such an incident was absolutely inexcusable in this last war, and that the officer who was called upon to furnish troops for replacement and sent this young man should have been court martialed," interposed Representative McKenzie of Illinois.

"Then you will have to court martial your Republican friend, Peyton C. March, for he issued the order that kept the units here and required untrained men to be sent over as replacements to the other side," responded Mr. Caldwell. "It did not happen in one case, but in hundreds of cases, and any officer who served in the trenches in France will be able to point out repeated instances.

"I want to say that in nearly every instance when they found it out the boys were sent to the rear, but in many instances the poor boy who had never been given an opportunity to train himself was sent to his death because of the neglect of legislation of this country."

Mr. Caldwell pooh-poohed the "bugaboo of militarism" and continued:

"What else? Because it costs money? It costs $59 for every man who enlisted under the voluntary enlistment before the war. Under this bill you will have ten times the overhead charge, $30 a month for the cheapest man; and under this bill the private soldier in many instances will draw more than $100 a month. Add up the expenses, total it, and you have an army of 125,000 men costing you a half a billion dollars a year, and then on the other side figure the cost of equipment and clothes on the average to the man that you would get under universal training. Five dollars is his pay, and he will be well paid because of training that he gets. Added together, when you do so, you will find that your universal training proposition will cost you less than any kind of a decent regular army will cost.

"All Want Middle West."

"What is the excuse for this pigheadedness, this reactionary method the people here have shown? Ah, forsooth, you have heard some politician say that the middle west is against it, and the Democrats want the middle west and the Republicans want the middle west, and each think they have it, too. But I want to tell you something, as a man who has studied some politics in his life, and that is that politicians think they make the issue. Politicians struggle to make the issue, but there has not been a campaign for the national election in my time in which any issue made by a politician was ever voted on by the people.

"I would not be surprised but that every man, Democrat and Republican, who has a contest at the other end of the capitol will be defeated. It does not make any difference which side they are on. The American people have made up their minds that they want things done and not talked about, and the man who is afraid to do things is the man who is going to be turned out. I assure you that when you are trying to play politics with the American defense you are playing with a two-edged sword."

"WAKE UP, CHICAGO, AND CAPTURE AIR SUPREMACY"—CLARK

"Chicago lost the automobile industry twenty years ago because of a lack of interest," said Sheldon Clark, newly elected president of the Aviation Club of Chicago, yesterday. "Chicago cannot afford to lose the airplane industry and its chance to become the center of aviation in America because of indifference. The air roads are already built. We have got to wake up and go after the flying game, and go just a little faster and harder and higher than the cities surrounding us."

SHELDON CLARK.

Mr. Clark was elected president of the club yesterday. At the annual election the following were appointed to the board of directors: D. F. Kelly, B. M. Winston, John Fletcher, H. H. Merrick, John W. O'Leary, Rufus Abbott, Thomas E. Wilson, B. J. Arnold, E. L. Ryerson, Arthur Cable, and Lawrence Wilder.

GAS POISONING PROVES FATAL.

Christ Ring, who roomed at the Stockholm hotel, 465 West Chicago avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital from the effects of gas. Ring was found in his room in the hotel on March 8 with gas flowing from a defective jet.

"U. S. Turned Tide, but Did Not Win War."

Washington, D. C., March 13.—While refusing to comment on military plans or policies, Herbert Hoover today told the senate committee investigating the navy department's conduct of the war that owing to shortage of food and heavy sinking of allied merchant ships by German submarines conditions abroad were critical from April, 1917, until September.

Hoover was called before the committee at the request of Rear Admiral Sims, who asserted that he was best qualified to support his contention that the allies were losing the war when the United States joined them, and that only a vigorous campaign against the U-boats could bring about victory.

Declines to Comment on Navy.

Asked if the navy department could not have offered more complete cooperation by sending more vessels to the critical zone, Hoover declined to express an opinion except to say that he supposed "everything was done that could be." He told the committee that he did not consider himself competent to testify regarding technical military and naval matters and that his business was to "get food to the allies."

Declaring that the allies "were on the verge of starvation" from April to September, 1917, and that they would "have lost the war in a moment almost," Hoover expressed the belief that American participation turned the scales in favor of the allies at the critical period of the war, adding that it was "incorrect to say that the United States won the war."

Sims Tells of Handicaps.

Efforts to prove that the navy's failure to keep him informed of important developments and changes in policy caused his associates on the allies' naval councils to believe he was not in the full confidence of his government formed the burden of Admiral Sims' testimony today. He criticized particularly the assignment of vessels to the Azores islands, without first informing him of the department's plans, asserting that Washington officials "played into the enemies' hands" by permitting a submarine attack on an Azores port to cause the diversion of American naval forces to those waters. He characterized the incident as a "violation of the fundamental principles of warfare" and an indication of the "effectiveness of German propaganda."

Not Consulted on French Deal.

The officer also charged that without notifying him beforehand the department arranged with the French naval attaché to send ten or more yachts to combat submarines off the French coast, arranged to establish two naval bases in France, sent naval aviation forces to that country; dispatched six destroyers from Boston; sent a hundred cannon to France on naval colliers; started a campaign in the newspapers for a North sea mine barrage; dispatched the 5th destroyer squadron from St. John's to Queenstown, and sent four additional destroyers from New York to join his forces.

The admiral declared that while he protested continually against the department's failure to keep him informed, the situation was not remedied.

EXPERT ADVISES NATIONAL RULE OVER MINERALS

Geologist Guest of the Commercial Club.

Prof. C. K. Leith of the geology department of the University of Wisconsin spoke at the Commercial club dinner in the Blackstone hotel last night. He was mineral adviser to the war industries board in Washington and to the economic section of the peace commission in Paris.

Prof. Leith discussed the world's mineral resources and emphasized the interdependence of the nations in respect to mineral supplies. He said no country, not even our own, was self-sufficient in this respect. America lacks some of the essential minerals and must obtain them elsewhere. He pointed out that the governments of all the other nations still retain a control over movement of minerals, and said that unless they should relinquish their hold, which they are unlikely to do, our government also should resume a direction of the export and movement of our vast mineral supplies.

Sees Defects in Treaty.

In connection with reparation decisions and the fixing of new boundaries in Europe, Prof. Leith said the distribution of raw materials was not sufficiently considered.

"From the mineral standpoint," he continued, "the peace treaty is based too largely on political and sentimental considerations and must inevitably be modified to adjust it to the cold facts of the situation."

He presented figures regarding coal which seemed to indicate the impossibility of Germany's meeting the treaty demands in respect to coal.

Must Modify Lines.

Touching on boundary line questions, he mentioned one case where a boundary line between nations was drawn between certain mines and their smelters. He thought such artificial lines would have to be modified if the national rearrangement of Europe was to work out successfully.

Frank O. Wetmore presided at the dinner, in the absence of Edgar A. Bancroft, president of the club.

Bill Will Not Only Oust Burleson, but Ends the Job

Washington, D. C., March 13.—A bill to abolish the office of postmaster general and to provide for creation of a postal commission to direct the business of the postoffice department was introduced today by Representative Igoe, Democrat, Missouri.

"The postoffice department should be administered as a great business institution and removed from politics forever," Mr. Igoe said.

15 EXPERTS TO SPEED PORTABLE HOUSE PROJECT

Scheme Stirs Up Lively Debate at Meeting.

Solution of the high rent problem through the portable house plan was brought nearer yesterday at an open meeting of the Chicago real estate board. It was decided unanimously to appoint a committee of fifteen experts to expedite the work. Adolph F. Kramer, president, was authorized to name the committee.

Following the meeting, Mr. Kramer went into executive session with leaders of the movement. He announced he will have his selections made by tomorrow.

Some obstacles to the plan bobbed up at the meeting, and addresses took the form of debate, especially when there were objections to suggestions by the various building interests.

City Approves Project.

Charles B. Ball, chief sanitary inspector of the city health department, representing Dr. John Dill Robertson, his chief, put his stamp of approval on the portable house project, with the proviso that the houses be set up only in conformity with the health and fire laws and where the property is improved with water and sewer connections.

"Portable houses can be erected in conformity with the Chicago health laws," said Mr. Ball. "They can withstand the elements and are not any more difficult to keep warm than any other dwelling."

Cold water was thrown on the plan by William Schlake, president of the Illinois Brick company, who hinted all houses should be made of brick.

"Chicago can manufacture enough brick to keep all the workmen busy all the time," he said. "The use of portable buildings will turn the city into another Ghetto. I think families ought to double up until the rent situation is cleared."

R. E. Watkins, representing the Portland Cement association, advised a careful inquiry on prices. He declared published estimates regarding the cost of building portable houses were below his knowledge of present prices.

Blames Workers' Bosses.

"The term 'portable house' is a misnomer," said D. J. Jefferies of the Carroll Wood Products company. They are factory made houses and are as stable as any house of the same material and size made on the ground. They can be sold at the prices quoted in THE TRIBUNE on Friday, not only by my company but by others.

"The trouble with building construction in Chicago is not trade unionism. It is the bosses of the workmen who are to blame. They won't let outside material come in here. They have a combination and won't allow a window sash or a manufactured door to go into a building unless they dictate the terms."

Financing of small contractors to enable them to build houses to sell on the payment plan was suggested by Lawrence Mills, west side builder.

"Tenants won't live in portable houses," he said "They want the same accommodations they have now. Permanent homes are the thing."

The factory-made home plan was defended by R. S. Bassett of the Alexander Lumber company.

"There is nothing wrong with the factory made house," he said. "Opposition to it probably will be found in some building material and labor circles, but careful work may overcome it.

"Factory made houses are made for as high as $8,000 to $10,000, and are every bit as good as other houses. If labor and other difficulties can be overcome, the plan will succeed."

Huge Tracts Available.

L. M. Smith, "dean of renting men," came forward with a plan to solve both the high rent and the Negro housing problems through the portable home scheme.

"Chicago real estate men and landlords are pikers as profiteers compared with those in Washington, New York, Baltimore and other eastern cities," he said. "Problems on the south side can be solved if the portable home plan is worked out.

"Portable homes are infinitely better than the dwellings occupied at present by thousands of colored families. There are vast tracts south of the city where thousands of these homes could be built and sold to colored people on terms suitable to their ability to pay."

Objects to Suggestion.

Objection to Mr. Smith's suggestion was made by Charles W. Novak, a director of the Cook county real estate board.

"Your suggestion to move the colored people south of the city meets with strong opposition," said Mr. Novak. "There is only a quarter of a mile along the Rock Island tracks, from One Hundred and Fourth street to the Calumet river, where you could put these people, and then you would have the same troubles you have in your neighborhood. The people of Roseland, Washington Heights, and West Pullman never would stand for it."

U. S. REALTY EXPERT, CHICAGOAN, AWARDED MEDAL FOR SERVICES

GILBERT F. WOOD.

Gilbert F. Wood has been awarded the distinguished service medal for his services as director of the real estate service of the United States during the war, according to a letter he received yesterday from the assistant to the secretary of war. Mr. Wood held this position from June 15, 1918, until Feb. 15, 1920.

The problem of obtaining all real estate needed by the war department, except in the A. E. F., was in Mr. Wood's hands. This included camp sites, flying fields, hospitals, and office buildings. Disposition of these properties when no longer needed also was under his direction.

The real estate service was established to do away with confusion arising out of the huge needs of the various branches of the war department.

ECHO OF ATTACK ON OLSON LOUDER THAN THE BATTLE

Judge and Chief Prepare for Legal Fight.

Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court and Chief of Police Garrity dug themselves in for battle yesterday as a result of Friday night's atack on the judge in a city hall corridor.

The corridor fight, when Judge Olson took on three intoxicated employés of the county treasurer's office and then grappled with Detective Sergeant Phillip Carroll, will probably prove a tame affair to what is coming, though law books instead of fists have been chosen as the new weapons.

"Comedy of Errors," says Chief.

"I have no intention of filing charges against Detective Sergeant Carroll," said the chief yesterday. "I have listened to his story and am convinced the fracas was a comedy of errors and a case of mistaken identity."

"There will be action on Carroll's case when I get back in the city from my trip with Gen. Wood through South Dakota," said Judge Olson. "I will not ask the chief for it, either. I have looked up the law. Carroll broke at least three statutes when he garroted and manhandled me and refused to arrest my assailants. There will be action when I return."

The chief justice showed not so much as a scratch as a result of his twenty minute battle in the dark. His anger had completely subsided against all except Carroll.

Three Men Suspended.

When Assistant County Treasurer Jacob Lindheimer called to say that George Langan, Edward McNally, and James White, three of the men who jumped on the judge when he called a policeman, were suspended, Judge Olson asked him to rescind his order.

"The only serious angle to this affair is that after three detectives, including Carroll, had struggled and argued for ten minutes, no one was under arrest accept the chief justice of the Municipal court and one man who was so drunk he could not run away, said Judge Olson.

"When Carroll jerked me inside the city hall and throttled me against a post he said, 'Let those men alone, judge; let them alone. It will be the best thing for you if you let them alone.'

"Carroll knew me from the start, for he called me judge."

New Elements Appear.

Warrants charging Carroll with allowing prisoners to escape and refusal to carry out the orders of a judge will probably be sworn out when the judge returns. In that case Corporation Counsel Ettelson, who of late rendered an opinion suggesting that the judge has drawn his $15,000 salary illegally for six years, will assign an assistant to defend Carroll.

When Langan and McNally appeared before Judge Haynes yesterday they demanded jury trials. The complaint against them was signed by Carroll. They were released on $400 bonds.

ARBITRATION OIL CALMS SEA OF RENT PROTESTS

Tenants, Agents, Bow to Realty Board.

Tenants and landlords met again yesterday before the city council rent committee and in nearly every case agreed to submit their differences to the rent committee of the Chicago real estate board.

The case of Dr. M. L. Weinstein of 5482 University avenue, whose rent was raised from $45 to $75, was typical. O. B. Marsh, representing W. K. Young & Co., the agents, appeared to represent the owners of the building.

Want Only Square Deal.

"My employers take the attitude they are willing to arbitrate all such cases as this," said Mr. Marsh. "We want only what is fair for our clients. We will not be the goats for either landlords or tenants."

Tenants of a building at 2535 Orchard street said sewage has been allowed to back up in the basement. Chairman Mulcahy spoke of calling this condition to the attention of the health department, "not because the rent was raised from $50 to $90, but because the chances are good that we can bring the owner to time that way."

Then J. E. Cable, the owner, made himself known. He was enthusiastic for arbitration and the cases against him also went to the real estate board.

Some Landlords Dodge.

Several landlords failed to appear in answer to "invitations."

"I have ordered a list made of these men and before they are granted any permits or privileges from the city they will have to appear before our committee," said Ald. Mulcahy.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

A cable dispatch from Vienna reported that the marriage of divorcees would be instituted under authorization of the pope. No such authorization has been made, according to a later report.

WIFE'S ADMISSION STOPS DECREE.

Mrs. Catherine Settles, of Los Angeles, was refused a decree of divorce yesterday, on the grounds of desertion, when she unexpectedly told Judge McGoorty that she had lived with her husband once during the last two years.

HENRY FIELD'S SON IS DENIED SHARE IN ESTATE

Court Finds Peggy Marsh Is Not Provided For.

Judge Denis E. Sullivan of the Superior court yesterday denied to Henry Anthony Marsh, 4 year old son of Peggy Marsh, English actress, and Henry Field, a share in the Marshall Field estate.

The judge said it is against the public policy of the state "to provide for future illegitimate children of one's own children not born or known of at the time of making a will."

Edward F. Dunne, former governor of Illinois, attorney for the guardian of the boy, said he would appeal the case.

Share of $5,000,000 Sought.

Attorneys for the boy, who is now in London, brought the action for a share in the $5,000,000 trust fund left by Marshall Field to his heirs, Marshall Field III., Gwendolyn Field, and Henry Field, and "their issue."

The attorneys contended that by the use of the word "issue" in this portion of the will, and the phrase "lawful issue" in another, the testator meant to provide for any possible illegitimate issue.

Judge Sullivan decided that the clarity of Mr. Field's mind and the competency of the legal aid he had in drawing the will precluded this supposition, and that the statutes would render such intent void at any rate.

The judge's decision held that the sum which would have gone to the children of Henry Field, if born in wedlock, must be paid to Marshall Field III. and Gwendolyn Field.

Formal Decision.

The decision reads:

"At the time that Marshall Field made this will, on the 25th day of February, 1904, and two codicils thereto dated June 14, 1904, and Sept. 5, 1904, his three grandchildren, Marshall Field III., Henry Field and Gwendolyn Field, were, respectively, 10, 8, and 2 years of age.

"It is impossible for the court to believe that the testator had in mind not only the possible but the probable delinquencies of these children of tender years when they would approach manhood and womanhood and to tacitly give his approval to their dereliction by making provisions for the support of illegitimate children which might come into being as a result of their violation of law.

"The will shows an evident pride in the perpetuation of the name of Field, and this could scarcely be considered as consistent with the evident intent to have the name and the bulk of this fortune linked together for the future and at the same time a fund should be created for the support of children who could not legally bear the name of Field.

Law Precludes Sympathy.

"This court is not unmindful of the unfortunate position in which the denial of the relief asked by the guardian ad litem places the innocent child, who is the helpless and unoffending result of this illicit relation, and a feeling of sympathy is naturally evoked in any human breast. But cases must be decided on the law as it exists and not as any one may think it should be.

"So the court is forced to the conclusion in this case that Henry Anthony Marsh, the minor, is not in the class of persons who was contemplated by the testator as being one of the heirs to his estate, and is not such an issue of the grandson, Henry Field, as will be permitted to share in any part of the share of Henry Field under the terms of said will."

Fight Not Yet Finished.

Another action pending in Judge Foell's court will seek to have Peggy Marsh's son come into the share of the huge residuary estate of Marshall Field through inheritance from his father, Henry Field.

Attorneys in the case yesterday said that the sole intent of Marshall Field III. in contesting the claims of Henry Field's child was to protect the interests of Nancy Perkins Field, the widow of Henry, who received nothing under the Marshall Field will. She married Henry Field but a few months before his death and after his affair with Peggy Marsh, which resulted in the birth of the child whose interests are now in litigation.

CANADA TO HELP STOCK GREAT NEW ZOO HERE

Pledges Specimens of All Wild Life.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Ottawa, Ont., March 13.—[Special.]—Canada is going to draw upon its great supply of wild animals and feathered creatures from coast to coast and present many pairs to the people of Cook county. The donation will be made through the Canadian department of the interior to the Cook county forest preserve commissioners for the benefit of the great McCormick zoölogical gardens on the west bank of the Desplaines river at Riverside. The tract of 300 acres was presented to the county by Mrs. Harold F. McCormick of Chicago.

Rockefeller Gift Helps.

Canada's government is jealously guarding its animals and birds. But when County Commissioner Frank J. Wilson, chairman of the zoölogical committee, recently wrote to the wild animal bureau of the department of the interior in Ottawa officials here recalled that Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick is the daughter of John D. Rockefeller, who recently made a bequest of $5,000,000 for the extension of medical research in Canada.

The animals and birds to be selected for the zoo will be taken without injury by government game wardens all the way from the Labrador coast to British Columbia on the Pacific and northward into the Yukon and Hudson Bay country.

Will Get Buffalo.

At Wainwright, Alberta, is a herd of 4,000 fine specimens of buffalo and it is probable that breeding animals will be selected from that herd. There are great herds of moose, elk, and caribou and many other varieties of the deer family from which to make a zoo selection. Bears of all kinds are plentiful in the forests in the more northern regions and in the Canadian Rockies. Polar bear also are plentiful and they manage to thrive in Chicago's latitude, Lincoln park having specimens.

The Canadian donation will follow necessary formalities and delivery made at the pleasure of President Peter Reinberg and Commissioners Wilson, MacLean, and Miller, who, as the zoo committee, have set in motion the plans preliminary to installation. Of course, many animals, birds, and reptiles will be procured from Africa, India, and many other countries.

COLD SPELL CAUSES ILLNESS, SUFFERING; AID THE COAL FUND

SUFFERING due to the continued cold weather has been reported by the United Charities, and another appeal is made for more contributions to THE TRIBUNE free coal fund. Considerable sickness in congested districts has been traced to cold homes, in which the price of coal has been found prohibitive.

The greatest number of appeals for coal have come from the Haymarket district of the United Charities, where $187.85 was spent in January and $87.21 in February. The DeKoven district came next, with $100.09 in January and $54 last month.

There has been suffering, particularly in homes where there are small children and heat throughout the day is necessary. TRIBUNE readers have contributed $838.65 in all to the fund. Further contributions will be credited and immediately put into use so poverty stricken homes need not suffer further during the next few weeks.

Is your Business in BALANCE?

TO keep any manufacturing business "in balance," we believe six factors must be constantly watched. Today most manufacturers are devoting their attention largely to only two of these factors:

Factor No. 1 is Finance. (See chart at right.) The financial pages of any newspaper reveal the fact that manufacturers are not overlooking their financial requirements. Thousands of enterprises have been re-financed within the past two years.

So long as the American people have money to invest, manufacturers will doubtless have ample capital.

Factor No. 2 is a Good Product. It is obviously true that many manufacturers today are not maintaining quality. Ultimately they will pay the penalty. On the other hand, those who maintain quality at all costs will eventually reap great rewards.

Factor No. 3 is Production. Production now occupies the center of the stage. The average manufacturer, thinks, dreams and lives "production." Of course, production is the most vital factor in business—at this moment. But let manufacturers beware! Market conditions may suddenly change.

From under-production today we may be faced with over-production tomorrow. When this happens, as it eventually will, how many manufacturers will be prepared to meet the crisis?

Factor No. 4 is the Sales Department. Most manufacturers are carrying full quotas of salesmen. Ostensibly the sales organization is in good shape. But the morale of the average sales force has been allowed to sag—woefully. Salesmen are not as alert as they were three years ago. They are not as considerate of their customers.

So long as merchandise is scarce and selling is easy, this lack of morale will not be noticed. But, when production overbalances demand—when salesmen have to go out and fight for business again—then their weakened morale will be revealed.

Instead of waiting until business conditions force them to it, alert manufacturers are speeding up their sales organizations right now.

Factor No. 5 is Advertising. It is a fact readily proved that a large number of our most progressive manufacturers are today advertising more vigorously than ever before. They are not seeking immediate orders so much as prestige—the good will of jobber, dealer and consumer which will carry them safely through any possible period of depression.

On the other hand, many advertisers seem to have practically abandoned advertising, under the mistaken belief that, being oversold, no advantages are to be gained through advertising.

When these oversold, non-advertising manufacturers are faced with a declining volume of business, they will discover that it requires at least a year's aggressive advertising to again get under full momentum—a year that may represent an irretrievable loss.

Factor No. 6 is Dealer and Jobber Co-operation. Scarcely one manufacturer in five hundred is today giving his jobbers and dealers adequate sales and advertising co-operation. Consequently the jobbers and dealers do not co-operate with the manufacturers. There is no organized effort, no team work. The result is a tremendous loss to all concerned.

Just now some manufacturers do not seem to care.

But, when the day of reckoning comes—when production overtops demand—when orders are hard to get—the manufacturer who fails now to improve his opportunity with the dealer and jobber will pay a heavy toll to his more progressive competitor.

Inevitably the pendulum will swing back. Will it find you prepared for stern competition? Is your business now in balance? Are you sure that factors one, two, three, four, five and six are all having the proper attention—now?

NOTE: No effort has been made to indicate relative importance of the 6 factors. These vary in accordance with different industries and varying economic conditions.

The BALANCE WHEEL of Business

Ample capital and financial backing to handle all needs of growing business.

a. Modern manufacturing plant and equipment.

b. Employes on efficiency basis, properly paid, with ideal working conditions.

c. Practical man at head who can maintain production under all reasonable circumstances.

b. To perpetuate trade mark or trade name.

FOULING COSTS I. A. C. RUNNERS TITLE IN RELAY

Ray Is Disqualified in National Medley.

New York, March 13.—The Illinois A. C. relay team, after winning the 1½ mile medley relay race at the national A. A. U. indoor championship meet tonight, was disqualified through the fouling of another runner by Joie Ray of the Chicago team. Ray, in the last lap of the mile which finished the event, cut inside of Mike Devaney of the Millrose A. A.

The features of the meet were the double brackets earned by Loren Murchison, formerly of St. Louis, running for the New York A. C. in the 60 yard dash and 300 yard race, and the establishing of a new American record of 9 1-5 seconds for the 70 yard high hurdles by Walker Smith of Cornell university. Both were defending their titles in these events which they won last year.

Ray Winner in 1,000 Yards.

Joie Ray was well up during the first half of the 1,000 yard run and took the lead on the third lap. Baker passed him in the beginning of the final lap, but Ray sprinted, regaining the lead, and romped home a winner by ten yards. Catbill of Boston passed Baker in the last thirty yards and finished ten feet ahead of the New York man for second honors.

Murchison won the final heat of the 60 yard dash in :06 2-5, equaling the A. A. U. record.

Earl W. Eby of University of Pennsylvania won the 600 yard final, for which he was reserved, not having started in the 1,000 yard run. Eby won easily by six yards from Murray of Princeton, who was second.

Whalen in Jump Record.

In defeating Erickson in a jump off of a tie at 6 feet 2½ inches in the running high jump, Whalen of Boston was credited with a new championship record of 6 feet 3½ inches, but as there was a decided sag of the crossbar it may not be accepted. Summaries:

GRID COMMITTEE VOTES PUNT-OUT BE ELIMINATED

New York, March 13.—The football rules committee finished its meeting today without adopting any radical changes in the rules governing the gridiron game. Some minor changes to clarify doubtful phraseology were made.

One feature was the abolition of the punt-out following a touchdown. Under the new rule, after a touchdown is made, regardless of where it is made, on the goal line, the ball shall be brought out and an attempt at goal kicked from any point in front of the goal posts that the kicker may select.

The definition of a player when not in motion was qualified to read: "Come to a full stop with both feet on the ground and still."

In the future when a substitute reports to the referee the player he relieves is officially out of the game, whether he is off the field or not before the next play is started.

Hagen Leads in Opening Round of Pro Tourney

Belleaire Heights, Fla., March 13.—Walter Hagen of Detroit, open champion, led the field in the west coast open championship on the first thirty-six holes of play. He totaled 143, but was one stroke behind Jim Barnes of St. Louis at the finish of the morning round. The St. Louis pro scored 70, while Hagen required 71 in the morning. Barnes totaled 151 for the day. Louis Teller and Eddie Loos tied for third position with 155. Tommy McNamara tied with Jock Hutchinson of Chicago and Wallace Nelson of Indianapolis at 157. Hutchinson led the field on the first nine holes with a brilliant 33.

GEORGES CARPENTIER SIGNS WITH COCHRAN FOR TITULAR BATTLE

PARIS, March 13.—Francois Descamps, manager of Georges Carpentier, heavyweight champion of Europe, yesterday signed a contract with C. B. Cochran, the British boxing promoter, for a fight between Carpentier and Jack Dempsey in Europe.

M. Descamps telegraphed this information to the Associated Press previous to Carpentier's departure from Havre for America this aftrenoon. The European champion is due in New York on March 21.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 13.—Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, said today that Dempsey would meet Carpentier whenever terms already tentatively discussed were agreed upon by some person having authority to complete the match.

MAXINE RELATES 'SLACKER' STORY TO FEDERAL JURY

Los Angeles, Cal., March 13.—[Special.]—A statement to the federal grand jury in this city, making an investigation into the charges that she had been "induced" to leave the country in order to avoid testifying in the slacker case against Jack Dempsey, her ex-husband, Mrs. Jack Dempsey, or Maxine Wayne, as she is better known, made a clean breast of the transaction in which it was said she was paid a sum of money to repudiate her first statement involving Dempsey in the slacker charges.

Admits Receiving $1,500.

Mrs. Dempsey said she was given $1,500 in cash in Los Angeles. It is claimed by the department of justice investigators that she later received other substantial sums.

Arrangements were being made, she said, to send her out of the country when the department of justice operatives blocked the scheme. Offers to pay her money to leave, said to have been made in telegrams sent to her over fictitious signatures, will be substantiated, it was claimed, by the messages themselves. They were seized by the government. Letters written by Dempsey with reference to his draft status also are in possession of the government.

Once Supported Dempsey.

Mrs. Dempsey frankly stated her earnings has helped to support Dempsey before he became the world's champion heavyweight.

Julius E. Gardner, who was arrested at San Diego, is involved in the plans to get Mrs. Dempsey out of the country, according to the federal authorities.

Mitchell and Duncan Not Coming for U. S. Golf

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—Lawrence Ayton, the Scottish golf professional, who has been offered a position with the Evanston Golf club of Chicago, arrived today on the Mauretania. Ayton greeted local pros at the pier with the news that Abe Mitchell, greatest of present day English players, had changed his mind and will not come to this country in July.

He also said that George Duncan, another of the quartet of Britishers who have been reported as intending to invade America, would not arrive, if at all, until too late in the season to play in the title tournaments.

BY ALBON HOLDEN.

Selecting an all-conference basketball team for the season of 1920 presents a tough problem. Never in recent years has there been such a fine batch of guards to choose from, and the forward material is almost as deserving of great honor. On the other hand the centers are hardly up to grade, and there are men in the conference playing forward and guard who are of more value to their teams than several of the centers.

The real star of the conference, the man who stands above them all, is Carney of Illinois. He played on an evenly balanced team that was in the fight until the closing weeks of the season, but he stood out above every other man of Illinois, or any other team. Sixty baskets in twelve games was his scoring record, a mark probably never reached before in the conference. He was a good free thrower and a fine floor man.

Campbell on Second Team.

Campbell, the scoring center of Purdue's great offensive team, is given the second center position. Halladay of Chicago, who finished in a great burst, earns favorable mention, along with Dunne of Michigan, Dean of Indiana, and Zulfer of Wisconsin.

For forward berths nearly every team had its candidate for honors. Two of the best, Oss of Minnesota and Felmley of Illinois, were laid low with influenza when at their height, and can hardly be considered. Capt. Tilson of Purdue, who was outscored by only two other men, is given the first berth. He is a good shot and a good mixer. Birkhoff of Chicago, the firebrand of the Chicago champions, is also put on the first team. He was feared as a scorer, but his terrific bursts of floor dribbling and his great free throw record were valuable assets to the Maroons.

Places for Vollmer and Arntson.

For the second team Vollmer of Chicago and Arntson of Minnesota are chosen. Vollmer is better than some all-conference forwards in past years. His ability to shake off guards was almost uncanny. Arntson, on a weak team, had to dribble the ball down the floor all alone for most of his long brilliant shots. He had his bad nights but his good nights were superb. Church of Purdue, a brilliant floor man Capt. Knapp of Wisconsin, Francis of Ohio, Taylor of Illinois, Karpus and Rea of Michigan, and Shimek and Finlayson of Iowa were strong players, with Shimek particularly effective on free throws.

The two Chicago guards are chosen for their ideal work together, Crisler for breaking up a passing game and getting the ball and Hinkle for starting down the floor with it. Hinkle captain of the Maroons for the second time, is an all-conference guard for the third year.

White Great Guard.

It is hard to leave White of Purdue off the first team. He started as a forward but was later shifted to guard where he sank baskets as if it were child's play. He was superior to any guard in the Big Ten on offense, but not up to the two Maroons on defense, which is, after all, the main work of a guard. Weston of Wisconsin and Walquist of Illinois deserve mention.

Illini Athletes Defeat Hawkeyes in Dual Meet

Urbana, Ill., March 13.—[Special.]—Illinois defeated Iowa in a track meet today, 73 to 31. Belding's victories in both hurdle events were the only firsts gained by the Hawkeyes. Aubrey Devine tied Buchanan in the pole vault The Illinois relay team, Schlaprizzi, Donohoe, Spink, and Emery, set a new armory record of 3:28 3-5 for the mile, clipping a second from the former mark. Summary:

Pole vault—Buchanan, Illinois, and Devine, Iowa, tied for first; Hoffman, Iowa, third. Height, 11 feet 5½ inches.

75 yard dash—Won by Nagel, Illinois; Prescott, Illinois, second; Colby, Iowa, third. Time, :08.

75 yard high hurdles—Won by Belding, Iowa; Shope, Iowa, second; Buchanan, Illinois, third. Time, :10.

Mile run—Won by Yates, Illinois; Wharton, Illinois, second; McGinnis, Illinois, third. Time, 4:36.

75 yard low hurdles—Won by Belding, Iowa; Prescott, Illinois, second; Rich, Iowa, third. Time, :08 3-5.

Broad jump—Won by Kinney, Illinois; Jaqua, Iowa, second; Overbee, Illinois, third. Distance, 21 feet 6¾ inches.

Quarter mile run—Won by Emery, Illinois; Spink, Illinois, second; Donohoe, Illinois, third. Time, :51 1-5.

Shot put—Won by Weiss, Illinois; Slater, Iowa, second; Cannob, Illinois, third. Distance, 41 feet 9 inches.

High jump—Won by Osborn, Illinois; Hoffman, Iowa, second; Brigham, Iowa, third. Height, 5 feet 10 inches.

New York, March 13.—The Goullet and Magin team won the six day bicycle race here tonight. The race was cinched for this team when Egg and Madden were lapped during a wild jam in the seventh sprint. Up to that time the lead swung from one team to another. When Egg and Madden left the race Goullet and Magin had enough points to win.

In the Wake of the News

BARNUM WAS RIGHT.

The tin pan alley plumbers rhyme
The neatest "line" with sweetest "time";
The song is full of rot and bunk
And every word of it is punk;
The air is stolen from some tune
Of '82 or not so soon. . . .

And still it gets over,
It most always gets over,

IT MUST BE GOOD TO LAST SO LONG.

Though why, is a mystery to me.

A daub, supposed to be a dame
Of ancient eminence or fame,
Has neither beauty of the face,
Nor yet of figure any grace:
Some rich gazook a million pays
And brings it home, and critics praise. . . .

And thus it gets over,
The Old Master gets over,
I pass—it's a mystery to me.

A long haired gink hurls words at us
In jangled sentences, and thus
Creates a new "poetic school"
In which no sense or reason rule:
The book reviewers, easy fish,
Find "charm" and "whimsy" in the dish. . . .

And while it gets over,
How in hell it gets over
Is the world's greatest mystery to me!

Great Athletes.

Dear Wake: I well remember WAY BACK WHEN Ed Merrill won the quarter mile in the first conference track meet, beating Bill Maloney in :49 4-5, the first time the race was run under :50 in western intercollegiate history.

I also remember that on that same day Merrill won the 220 around the turn in :22 flat, placed second in the shotput, and took his heat in the 100 yard dash in :10 flat and probably would have placed second in the final of the 100 yard had there been more than a three minute interval between the finish of the quarter mile and the start of the 100 yard final. He was some boy! No, I am not a Beloit college man, but always have thought that Ed Merrill was one of the greatest track athletes the west ever turned out.

Who, while our fingers still were numb

And Gayly shouted "Spring is here"?

The Call of the ——?

Which is the stronger—the call of the game or the call of the dollar? We have Eddie Cicotte as an example. The Sox hurler came to Chicago to demand a substantial boost in the salary offered him in a contract. He didn't get the boost and said he was going back to his home at Detroit. Today he is a long way from home.

Cicotte was immovable right up to the time his mates pulled out of here Friday night, bound for Waco, Tex. He had said good-by to his playing pals and stood unnoticed on the outer fringe of the crowd that came down to see the champs off.

With only a few minutes to spare Cicotte suddenly decided he'd go along. He grabbed his grip and jumped aboard. He wasn't under contract, but that made no difference to him. He can fix that detail later. He simply wanted to go with the gang, proving that after sixteen years in baseball he hasn't had his fill.

Perez vs. De Soto Nine in K. C. Flag Series Tuesday

The second battle of the triangular series between division winners for the Knights of Columbus indoor league pennant will be held Tuesday night at St. George's hall, Thirty-ninth street and Wentworth avenue.

TEN CENT LIMIT POPULAR AS SOX ROLL SOUTHWARD

Wichita, Kas., March 13.—[Special.]—By a display of patience the White Sox finally have attained the region of green grass, and the train bearing them to Waco is proceeding on its way after the fashion of trains in the south. However, none of the athletes appear to worry because the 10 cent limit games flourish, and there appears to be an abundance of eating tobacco aboard.

The Sox were out of luck in one respect: the dining car was dropped at Kansas City this morning and some of Mr. Comiskey's hired hand overslept and didn't get to put on the burse till the early part of the afternoon, when the train hesitated at a place entitled McFarland. At the hour of writing the food problem again looms large, it is impossible ot catch another eating house this side of Caldwell and the choo choo wasn't due there until half after eight p. m. black faced type.

Sure Tough to Miss a Meal.

Nothing distresses a major league ball player more than to be deprived of food when the club is paying the bills, and this is the first time since the lamented world's series that the boys have busted bread at the bosses' expense.

The caravan is due in Waco at noon tomorrow, and Manager Gleason has issued a call for initial practice Monday morning. After squinting at the list of persons present, the boss decided to put on a helper for Trainer Doc Stephenson. Nineteen pitchers will develop at least eighteen sore arms, and Bill fears some of the hurlers might have whiskers a foot long and grandchildren if they waited for Doc to get around to rub them all, even if he toiled with his usual diligence and regard for the well known flight of time. Hence a native will be employed to help.

Kid Wondering About Holdouts.

Gleason is wondering if the California contingent will be in Waco when this squad arrives. He hasn't been informed about Swede Risberg or Chick Gandil, but it is assumed that Owner Comiskey and Tip O'Neill, who have been in California, will work a compelling influence to pry them loose from the land of sunshine and real estate sharks.

Today it looked as though Eddie Cicotte never had an idea of being a permanent holdout, although he didn't sign until after he had left Chicago. For the last month Eddie has toiled diligently and is down to weight, and as evidence of his physical endeavors he displayed a set of well calloused hands. Eddie long since discovered that work is a blessing for little fat men and so he never lets himself get very much out of condition.

More Rookies Picked Up.

A few miscellaneous athletes joined us during the day's journey and it is suspected that they are pitchers of more or less repute. Manager Gleason has so many hurlers he has to get to an adding machine to compile an authentic count.

Everything appears to be lovely as the train rambles southward. The air is balmy and but for the infrequency of dining halls life would be complete.

Catholic League Holds Ball Meeting Monday

A call has been sent out by the National Catholic Athletic association for a meeting to be held at the Windsor-Clifton hotel on Monday for the purpose of organizing the baseball league for the coming season. The preliminary work which has been done during the winter months has shown results, and a large number of teams are expected to enroll. An endeavor is being made to have the league consist of six divisions of six clubs each.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 13.—The Cubs inhaled their first 1920 dose of defeat today when the Vernon Tigers clawed them for a score of 5 to 2 in the second game of the Wrigley cup series. The fans need lose no sleep, however, for it was due mostly to rookies.

Manager Mitchell had a couple of additions to his crippled corps today in Merkle and Herzog. The latter is the more seriously injured of the two, as he wrenched his side laughing at Cozy Dolan's contribution to a circus at the Green hotel last night, and woke up with a knot in his groin which was too painful to permit either practice or exhibitioning.

Merkle Hurt in Practice.

In the morning workout at Pasadena Merkle fell on his arm and lamed it against the hard pan on the base lines so badly that he was excused from the afternoon battle. That necessitated using three recruits in the infield, and in company with a pair of rookie pitchers they were responsible for the runs made by Vernon.

Hippo Vaughn labored for four innings at the start, and demonstrated he has been busy since starting work this spring. He was able to use his hook as well as his fast ball and stood the Tigers on their tails with consummate ease, striking out four of them. One hit was made off Hippo, and Mitchell thought four rounds enough.

Hanson Picked by Tigers.

Earl Hanson then tried his hand for two innings, during which four runs were made by the home folks. A three bagger by Mitchell in the fifth was the chief cause, although a boot by Lear helped. Two errors counted the sixth inning tally.

Newkirk officiated in the last two innings, and was tagged for a run with the aid of a passed ball. O'Farrell still has a lot of lame limbs, and tossed in a tally in the sixth.

Art Fromme buffaloed the Cubs for five innings, allowing them only four hits in that time, and they came one to a round. Lefty Mann, a product of the navy yard at San Diego, finished the game for the Tigers, and, although hit freely, held the Bruins to a pair of runs, one of which was due to a muff by High in the eighth.

Hollocher Keeping in Trim.

Hollocher was out in uniform, but used only his right hand in fielding the ball. He is ordered to keep in good physical shape, so as to be ready as soon as his carved hand will let him get back to work. Same teams tomorrow.

INDUSTRIAL A. A. DEFENDS TEAMS' AMATEUR RATING

Akron, O., March 13.—National officers of the American Industrial Athletic association in meeting today challenged the rights of the A. A. U. to question the amateur standing of its athletes. In a statement yesterday by one of its officials, the A. A. U. asserted that participants in A. I. A. A. contests would not be eligible for places on the American Olympic teams.

A committee of three members was appointed to file an answer to the A. A. U.'s statement and show that the amateur standing of athletes would not be harmed by participation in its contests.

A. H. Wyman of Carnegie Steel company, Pittsburgh, was elected president at the meeting. Eddie Connelly of the B. F. Goodrich company, Akron, was named secretary and Thomas Williams, Akron, treasurer.

The next tournament will be held July 4 at Pittsburgh.

It is the second game of the series for the championship of Chicago. The Dodgers captured the first game. C. H. I. will depend on Tom Shanley to do the twirling with Feldstein behind the bat, while the visitors will use Red Kaufman and Ivy Spreitzer as their battery.

C. G. Burmeister won the high score trophy and R. C. Millen the added score trophy in the weekly shoot at Lincoln park traps yesterday. Burmeister, Millen, M. E. Roets, Gene Pope, and F. G. Bills were tied with 47 each at the end of the regular 50 target event. Bills, a professional, and Millen, who won the added score trophy, having a three target handicap, withdrew. Lincoln Park Yachtsmen Seal Merger with Chicago

At the annual meeting of the Lincoln Park Yacht club last night at the Hamilton club it was voted to amalgamate with the Chicago Yacht club and form one big organization under the leadership of Commodore Sheldon Clark. Several days ago the Chicago Yacht club at its annual meeting voted for the consolidation. The new club will be called the Chicago Yacht club, but the officers will be those of the Lincoln Park Yacht club:

Commodore, Sheldon Clark; vice commodore, L. J. Lambin; rear commodore, E. M. Railton; treasurer, R. G. Jones; secretary, Harold Bradley.

A directorate composed of the trustees of the two clubs will be formed.

The pennant and anchorage of the new club will be that of the Lincoln park organization.

North Shore Legion Post to Hold Bowling Tourney

In a recent tourney of the North Shore post, Albright was high in all events with an average of 196 1-3.

Yachting Rage Once More; George V. Sails Own Craft

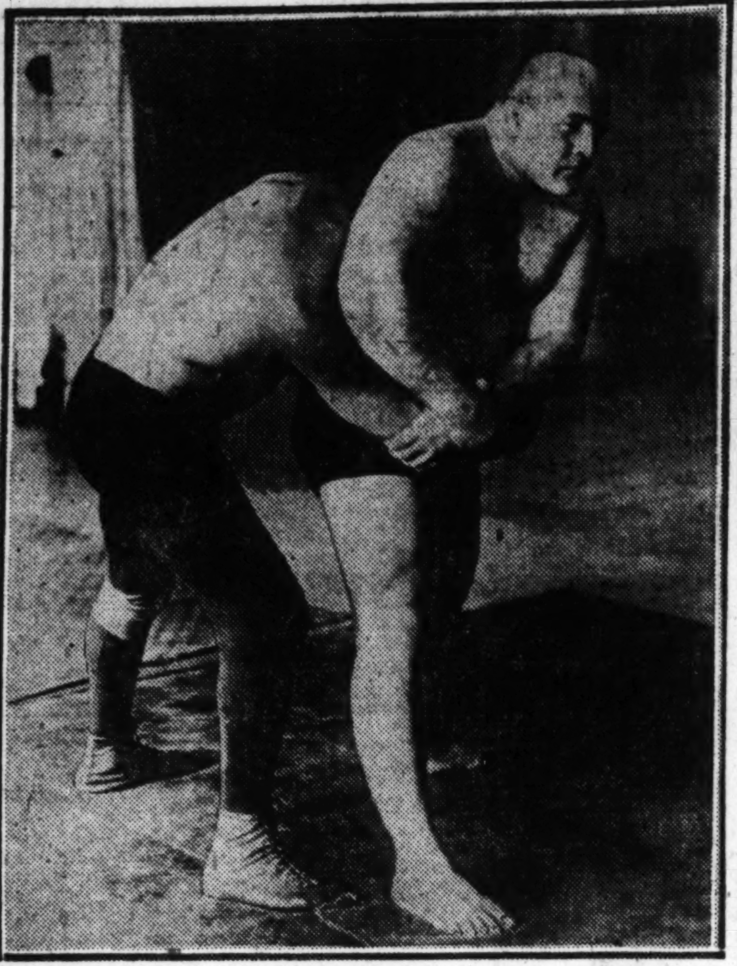
LONDON, March 13. — With the American cup races assured this summer, there has been a tremendous revival of interest in yachting, and this year all the popular pre-war regattas are to be resumed. At the annual meeting of the yacht racing association it was announced that King George again will take a prominent part in the sport and proposes sailing his racing yacht Britannia in person at the Royal Clyde meeting in July and probably also at Cowes in August.

Caddock-Lewis Victor to Get Chance at Stecher

New York, March 13.—[Special.]—The question of who shall meet Joe Stecher for the wrestling championship of the world, will be decided at Madison Square Garden Monday night, when Earl Caddock and Strangler Lewis grapple. Both men are in good shape for the test. The victor will have the chance of challenging Stecher for the crown.

POLISH GIANT IN ACTION

Stanislaus Zbyszko, Who Wrestles Jack Linow in Chicago March 18, Shown Gripping Wrestling Partner in Headlock. Zbyszko Recently Returned to America After Four Years' Absence Due to the World War.



Realizing he has the opportunity of his career to break into the foremost ranks of the heavyweight grapplers, Jack Linow, who is matched to meet Stanislaus Zbyszko in the main bout of the wrestling show to be staged by the Eleventh infantry, I. N. G., at the Second armory next Thursday, is learning a few of the fine points of the game from Earl Caddock, former holder of the world's title.

Linow has been in New York for the last week or ten days working with Caddock every day. According to Capt. Sultan, who has charge of wrestling at the armory, Linow is working for endurance. He believes his chances of victory rest in his ability to outlast the giant Pole. Linow does not believe Zbyszko has reached a point of condition which will permit him to wrestle for a long period.

Zbyszko will arrive in Chicago tomorrow, accompanied by his manager, Jack Herman. The semi-windup between John Kilonis and Johnny Meyers should be an interesting contest. Kilonis is considered the logical contender for the middleweight crown held by Meyers because of a recent victory over Ketonen. Two other bouts will complete the program.

SIXTEEN CLUBS TO FORM LEAGUE OF SEMI-PROS

Compact Organization Is Perfected in Chicago.

When the directors of the Chicago Baseball league get through with reorganization plans the old circuit will hardly be recognized. They have drawn up and adopted a new constitution and by-laws that will make it the most compact semi-pro organization that has ever been perfected in this city.

According to the new plans, the circuit will be composed of sixteen clubs—twelve park and four traveling teams. It is to be a park owners' association, with the travelers merely as an auxiliary.

The teams are: Normals, Logan Squares, Ciceros, Pyotts, American Giants, Melrose Park, Albany Park, Whitman & Barnes, Joliet, Waukegan, Beloit, Janesville, Magnets, Romeos, Dodger Trainings, and Gunthers. The four clubs last named are travelers.

Under the new plan each of the park teams will rely to a certain extent upon the new Central Industrial association for its main attractions. The travelers will be permitted to book games when and wherever they please, provided they do not schedule with teams that are not antagonistic to the league.

The circuit may be enlarged at any time upon a full vote of the board of directors. A valuation of $1,000 is put on each home club franchise, which must be paid in cash by the new applicant. No formal schedule will be played. The playing season will open April 25.

Athough the league has ignored the application of the new Oak Park club, George Flint, the owner of the latter, is going right along preparing for the coming season. His company has incorporated for $15,000 to build a plant.

The first open meeting of the season of the league will be held tomorrow night at 128 West Randolph street.

Young Shea Scores Fall Over Chapelle on Mat

Young Shea defeated Ed Chappelle with a body scissors and wrist lock in 26:39 in the main bout of the wrestling show at the C. A. A. last night. Shea was the aggressor throughout the contest and was easily the best grappler. John Frieberg took a one fall contest from Carl Zoll in 12:20 with an arm scissors and wrist lock, while Vic Soldat won from Orlando in the opener in 15:20 with a body scissors and wrist lock.

QUAKERS ENCOURAGE ATHLETICS.

Quaker city industrial plants find the encouragement of athletics among employes beneficial and as a result there are soccer, baseball, bowling, and basketball leagues in operation, with rowing talked of as an additional means of relaxation.

SOCCER PLAYERS TRY AGAIN TODAY

Having been frustrated twice in their efforts to get the spring season under way, local soccer teams will make another attempt today. Eleven league games and one National cup match are billed for decision. The cup game is scheduled for Bricklayers' park, Thirty-fifth street and Wentworth avenue, with the Olympias of the first division and Palmer Park, leaders of the second division, as the contestants.

Some interesting tilts will be played in the first division of the Chicago league. At Cicero avenue and Sixteenth street the undefeated Bricklayers will tackle the Innisfails. The Thistles will hook up with the Hill Pumps, formerly the Magyars, at Cicero and Belmont avenues, and the Swedish-Americans will entertain the Alvernos, formerly known as the Lincoln Parks, at Winnemac avenue and Robey street.

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

by A. R. METCALFE

CARDS of exit are frequently of more value than cards of reentry; the deuce of more value than an ace. One player showed a fine understanding of this principle in the beautiful deal which follows:

West secured eight tricks.

Trick one revealed the club suit as hopeless on account of the exhibit in dummy. South, therefore, started his rather cheap heart suit, which he finally established, despite the great strength of the declarer.

West made no mistakes whatever and against ordinary play would have secured game easily. North frustrated his plans by magnificent play at trick ten in discarding the ace of spades and retaining the deuce. In making this play north had no means of knowing that his partner held the spade king, nor did he care.

He did know that if he kept the ace of spades, west, a good player, would lead spades at trick eleven, forcing north to play into the club tenace in dummy. Playing the ace of spades might lose a trick but, also, it might save the game and no good player would hesitate over such a proposition if he understood it.

Had the declarer made the queen of clubs at trick eleven, the result would have been the same, as south would have discarded the ten of spades.

Some nice points in bidding are shown in the next deal.

Score: 0-0. North dealt and bid one heart, east doubled, south passed, west bid one spade, north passed, east bid two clubs, south passed, west bid two diamonds, and the bidding closed.

The double by east was correct, as he would be satisfied with three of the four bids his partner might make, clubs, diamonds or no-trump. He could not, however, compel his partner to bid and allow the bid to stand when holding the singleton ace.

The proposition for west was more difficult. By the double east had advertised a no-trump holding except in hearts. His rejection of the spade bid showed that his strength was nearly all in diamonds or clubs. The club bid was as undesirable for west as the spade bid for east. By elimination, therefore, the only thing which could be satisfactory to both partners was the diamond suit, and that bid was the only one which could secure game.

Hilton Ranks Yankee Amateur Golfers Above British Stars

BY JOE DAVIS.

Harold H. Hilton, former British champion, by reason of two visits to this country is well qualified to discuss the merits of British and American golfers.

On his first visit in 1911 the British amateur won the United States title at the Appawamis Country club when he defeated Fred Herreshoff at the thirty-seventh hole. He came again in 1912, and after tying with Chick Evans for low score in the qualifying round at Chicago Golf club, was defeated by young Gilbert Waldo of Detroit, then a student at Yale.

Respects U. S. Amateurs.

These two experiences gave him cause to respect the American amateurs and in a recent article he expresses the belief that our amateurs have a better chance to win the British amateur title than the American professionals have to win the British open.

Hilton's belief that a number of American amateurs would invade Great Britain was based on rumor, and at present there is no indication of any leading players making the trip. In his opinion there has been little difference in the skill of the leading amateurs of the two countries during the last few years, but he still pins his faith in the British professionals against Hagen, Brady, and the British born pros who have developed their games largely in this country.

Cannot Grasp Our Idea.

On this topic he says: "I can quite appreciate a little of the American optimism in regard to winning the amateur cup, but cannot quite grasp their belief in their players proving equal to the task of lifting the open championship.

"Walter Hagen, the present open champion, and the man who generally is acknowledged to be the best player by strokes in the United States, may be an infinitely better golfer than we are inclined to give him credit for, judging by past experiences in com tion with American professional in this country, he will have to be few strokes a round better than we have seen play on this side to any chance against Vardon, Mitchell and the other leaders.

Hagen, Barnes, and Jock Hutch son, if he goes, will compose a invading contingent than any cessor, and it will surprise Americ golfers if they do not finish well up the British classic. On the other it will be a surprise if one of the iting British professionals win United States open championship Toledo, especially if the course be hard baked.

Co-Eds Plan Courses.

Women may shortly enter the fession of golf course architec Tom Bendelow, who once a year tures to students in the landscape partment of the University of Illi has two blue prints of courses signed by Miss Josephine Burt Miss Josephine Blair, the latter daughter of Prof. Blair, head of landscape department.

The students were given a tract 125 acres at Urbana to work over, each submitted his or her desig which were forwarded to Bendelo for criticism. Both young wo showed skill in the utilization of land and placement of the holes. eral of the plans submitted by the also contained ideas of merit.

HYDE PARK AND LANE WIN WAY TO PREP FINAL

Beat Basketball Rivals at Bartlett Gym.

Hyde Park and Lane will battle for the heavyweight basketball championship of the city high schools, as the result of semi-final games at Bartlett gymnasium last night. Hyde Park beat Phillips, 16 to 12, while Lane crushed Harrison 42 to 8.

Lane and Hyde Park will meet in the finals Monday night at Bartlett gym with the league title and a chance to enter the second annual basketball interscholastic of the University of Chicago at stake.

Hyde Park was always out in front of the Phillips team, but the margin was slight all the way. Phillips played a strong defensive game, but Hyde Park had a machinelike attack that registered on most of its chances to score. In the second game the Harrison was clearly outclassed, the fast passing of Lane piling up a score of 19 to 4 at the half. Graessel was the star with nine baskets. Lineups:

SEARS-ROEBUCK LEAGUE.

Mohawks had a close call, but a basket and a free throw in the final minute of the game gave them a 30 to 27 win over the Iroquois in the Sears-Roebuck Indian Basketball league at Sears "Y." Apaches downed Seminoles, 17 to 10, in the opening contest. Quinn led the Mohawks' scoring attack with five baskets. Sweeney caged five ringers for Iroquois. Farber was the leading point winner for the Apaches, caging three baskets and three free throws. Lineups:

From 10 to 50 Miles Per Hour in 16 Seconds

THE Marmon does not have to rely on fancy-worded claims for its appeal. It can point to actualities in performance. In recent tests for acceleration the new series Marmon accelerated from 10 to 50 miles per hour in high gear in 15.8 seconds. These tests were made with a standard seven passenger Marmon, the car being fully equipped for the road, with top and windshield up, with spare wheel and tire, and with tire, gas, oil and water compartments filled—gear ratio 4 to 1. The car carried a driver and an official observer from the Class Journal Company, publishers of automobile trade papers.

Let us tell you of other interesting performance tests that were made. Or better still, let us show you the abilities of the new series Marmon in an actual demonstration.

"Nothing Great was ever achieved without enthusiasm"

IT IS CERTAIN that Emerson did not have in mind those temporary excitements that change with the wind; he was speaking of that enduring, forward-looking earnestness that achieves its finest expression in the attainment of a long-sought ideal.

Here in the Peerless factory we have no love for excitable people, the peaks and valleys of whose natures are reached with a sudden change of the weather, or the blare of a brass band or a fluctuation of the stock market.

We have a task to perform here which requires poise, self-control, orderliness and concentration—a task that has meant for more than eighteen years the removal rather than the circumventing of obstacles.

We have held our course steady in storm and fair weather. We have seen many a motor car model come and go these past five years since the birthday of the Two-power-range, Eight-cylinder Peerless. We have seen the wind of public opinion blow hot and cold upon each new design. But this car, built upon a foundation of pioneering experience, designed to meet every demand, put together part by part from the product of our own factory, has remained fundamentally unchanged, the expression of a long-sustained enthusiasm for an ideal.

Those who are driving today the first cars of this great two-power-range, eight-cylinder line are experiencing the same deep satisfaction and pride of ownership as those who yesterday drove their 1920 cars away from our sales rooms.

AWARD CHICAGO SWIM TRIALS FOR OLYMPIC TEAM

Women's Tryouts in N.Y.; Cable Hockey Entry.

New York, March 13.—Active participation by the United States in the seventh Olympiad at Antwerp, Belgium, will begin with the cabling of the entry of a hockey team on or before next Friday, which will be America's first formal entry.

This was one of many decisions reached at the meeting of the American Olympic committee this afternoon.

Quick action was necessary, owing to the fact that the entries close March 19 and play begins April 20.

Halpin to Manage Team.

President Wilson was elected honorary president of the committee and Matthew P. Halpin of New York A. C. team manager, the same position he held on the American Olympic teams of 1906, 1908, 1912. Dates were also selected for the sectional trial games to be held at Chicago, Philadelphia, and Pasadena on June 26 and the finals tryouts allotted to the Harvard stadium on July 17.

Gustavus T. Kirby, president of the American Olympic committee, stated that close to $200,000 would be required to transport and house the American teams while competing in Belgium and made a plea for the necessary funds. The first subscription was donated by Col. Robert M. Thompson, who telegraphed $5,000. The New York A. C. followed with $2,000.

Swimming Trials Here.

The swimming tryouts for men will be staged in Chicago the second week of July and the test for women entrants held in or near New York at the same time. Wrestling and boxing trials will be held about the same time, but the places have not been selected.

Justice Bartow S. Weeks, one of the American members of the international committee, stated that the American team would sail from New York on July 24 and arrive at Antwerp about Aug. 2, which would give the athletes about two weeks to complete training and become acclimated before the track competitions begin.

K. C. LEAGUERS TO MEET.

The Knights of Columbus Baseball league will hold a meeting tomorrow night at 8:30 at 165 West Madison street. Councils going to have teams are requested to send a representative to the meeting.

THE BEST TABLE FISHES.

JUST which fish is entitled to the honor of being the best from the food standpoint is something that can never be settled as long as people's "tasters" vary as they do now. However, there are certain species that possess extraordinary merit in delicacy or richness of flavor, texture or flakiness of flesh, and other qualities that go to make a first class table fish. These are the fishes we are now going to discuss.

A few weeks ago we asked our readers to express their opinions as to which are the best table fishes. The answers we received may not prove anything, but they throw some light on an interesting subject; from them we learn, among other things, that "the finnan haddie is the best eating fish that swims in the American continent!" Another reader, apparently an old seaman, takes our rotogravure section to task for showing a picture of fishermen throwing away skates. "I would rather eat skate than any other fish," he says, "and they are often prescribed to sick people by physicians."

Outside of these odd views there is considerable likeness of opinion in many instances. Fourteen readers, for example, pick the brook trout as the ace of all food fishes. This is a good sample of their reason for so choosing:

"You, Mr. Editor, know that there can be only one answer to your question. Take a nice day in May or June. You get up early at camp, nervously gobble a little breakfast, washed down with coffee; your mind on something more important. Then you rush for the stream. About 11:30 you have worked off your excessive 'steam' and something tells you that it is time to eat. So you dig out the coffee can, and while it brews you clean some of your small trout, skewer them on a green twig, with pieces of bacon in between, and put over the fire. In a little while you are partaking of something the richest man in America cannot buy but the poorest one can afford—trout caught, cleaned, and cooked in the open by your own hand."

That's powerful argument, folks. Those of us who have followed just such a program as he pictures feel that the last word has been said. We have always believed that the Creator made seven and eight inch brook trout to be eaten by hungry anglers at the streamside!

Another reader, who has traveled far and has eaten many different fishes, says: "A real piscatorial epicure has no one favorite, there being a good fish for every mood. The bluefish and the Spanish mackerel, with the tang of the sea, represent one extreme; the dainty smelt or cisco, the other. The pompano is a truly great food fish; so is the Lake Superior whitefish."

The whitefish has many admirers, as it richly deserves. Usually they are all sold as "Lake Superior" whitefish, although most of them come from Lake Erie. Those from Lake Michigan are equal to any in flavor, for they eat the same food as the Lake Superior variety, a small crustacean—fresh water shrimp—about the size of your thumb nail.

As to be expected, other anglers come to the defense of their favorites. Thus speaks one bass fisherman: "When you hear people speak of the black bass as only a fair food fish, you can be sure that they have eaten only the large mouthed species from warm, weedy waters. This fish, and especially the small mouthed bass, from cold water with rocky or gravel bottom, is the equal of any food fish. I have lived on both coasts of Florida, and know our sea fishes, but take a fresh small mouthed black bass, roll him in corn meal or crumbs, cook in sizzling hot butter, and you have a fish equal to the famed pompano."

The pike-perch came in for considerable praise, as did the blue gill and rock bass, but it is remarkable what a host of admirers the lowly bullhead, catfish, and yellow perch can muster. As we have often stated in this column, we place the bullhead and catfish, especially the fork tailed channel cat, among our very best food fishes.

As to the merits of the yellow perch, no less an authority than Dr. David Starr Jordan, one leading fish expert, says:

"As a pan fish, we do not know of any better among American fresh water fishes. We have experimented with the yellow perch and several other species, including both species of black bass, the blue gill, wall eyed pike, and rock bass, eating each for several days in succession, and found the yellow perch the sweetest and most delicious of them all."

Taking the opinions of our readers and our leading fish experts and anglers for a guide, we believe that the dozen leading American food fishes would stack up something like this:

Fresh water—Whitefish, pike-perch (wall eye), yellow perch, channel catfish, brook trout, small mouthed black bass.

Salt water—Pompano, bluefish, Spanish mackerel, eulachon (Pacific smelt), striped bass, common grunt.

NAME ENTRIES FOR "BIG TEN" INDOOR GAMES

Track and Swimming Title Meets This Week End.

The official list of entries for the annual indoor track and field games of the Western conference, at Patten gymnasium, Friday and Saturday, was announced yesterday by Secretary Warren D. Howe of the graduate managing commmittee.

Although every institution in the Big Ten will be represented, the fight for honors will rest between Michigan, Illinois, and Chicago, with the Wolverines ruling favorite. Coach Farrell has another well balanced team at Ann Arbor, and in Capt. Johnson has an athlete sure to win at least two events. Illinois and Chicago will be strong in the runs, and if Coach Gill's men score an average number of points on the track they will force Michigan to win.

Swim Prelims on Thursday.

Avery Brundage, president of the graduate managing committee, yesterday announced that trials for the swimming championships will be held on Thursday night. The finals of the swims will be held on Friday night.

Trials in the quarter and half mile runs will be held Friday night. Races in the quarter mile will be held at 7:30 o'clock, and in the half mile at 8:30.

The first events of the track and field games on Saturday night will be called at 8 o'clock.

Billiard Notes

BOB CANNEFAX, the three cushion champion, is billed for the Illinois A. C. tomorrow night, meeting the winner of a game betweeen Charley McCourt, and Otto Reiselt, which will be the opening event.

* *

A season's high run of 9 by James Shea of the Ace room featured last week's play in the Chicago Billiard league, but as he lost the game to Kieckhefer by two points, the run failed to help his standing, and he fell to third place. Augie Kieckhefer won two games and still tops the field with 9 wins and 3 losses. Bert Tredick of Burdick's is second with 8—3, and Shea and Ben Klatcher of Schueneman's are tied at 7—4. Charley Morin is ill, but Kenny, who substituted for him, won his maiden game, leaving Morin in fifth place with 7 wins and 5 losses.

GREATEST FIELD IS NOMINATED FOR DERBY RACE

Kentucky Classic Draws 107 Nags of Class.

Louisville, Ky., March 13.—One hundred and seven of the most royally bred animals in the turf world have been nominated for the rich Kentucky Derby, the classic of all classics to be decided on the American turf. In keeping with the new mark set by the event with its $50,000 estimated value. America's richest stake is this large entry which exceeds by nearly a score any previous eligible list since the Derby has become a late closing event.

The cream of this continent's horseflesh will vie with choice importations in this mile and a quarter struggle. While the race retains its international flavor, it also holds to its standard of recent years as America's greatest intersectional turf combat. Never before has the east made such a lavish bid for Kentucky's big race. No more representative collection ever has gone to the post in a championship event.

$30,000 in Coin Added.

The huge money value of this fixture, with its $30,000 added, presents an attraction to all horsemen—to the wealthy sportsman who is not averse to making the earning pay for costly upkeep, as well as to the poor racer of thoroughbreds to whom the purse represents a fortune, the opportunity to realize dreams of opulence wherein rise of a few cents in the price of oats is a matter of no great concern.

But above all is the glamour that clusters around the owner of the winning horse. With this prestige in view many of America's wealthiest sportsmen have unloosed fortunes in quest of animals capable of gaining the coveted crown. And to this search has been due the great onslaught of foreign blood.

To Harry Payne Whitney, the eastern millionaire, goes the distinction of leading the owners in point of number of nominations, and it cannot be denied that the caliber of his representation gives him the post of favoritism. With nine high class 3 year olds eligible to bear his colors, Yale blue and bronze cap, the owner of Regret, winner of the 1915 Derby, and the only filly ever to capture the classic, holds a brilliant hand.

John P. Grier for Favorite.

Among those from which James Rowe will select the Whitney standard bearer are John P. Grier, Upset, Wildair, Damask, Amaze, Leviathan, Cobwebs, Afternoon, and Dr. Clark. Many shrewd horsemen have held to the opinion that John P. Grier, a striking son of Whiskbroom II.—Wonder, should he train well, will go to the post favorite for the race. He was recognized as the best juvenile in the east last season, barring the champion, Man o' War, and it was believed that with the change from 2 to 3 year old form he might even take the measure of the remarkable Riddle colt. With Man o' War out of the race John P. Grier will make a strong bid for favoritism.

Good Racers in String.

Upset, a son of Whisbroom II., out of the good mare Pankhurst, which boasts a victory over Man o' War on the occasion of the latter's only defeat; the striking Wildair; Damask, best of his age at the winter tracks, and the other strings to the Whitney bow, give this stable an enviable assortment from which to choose.

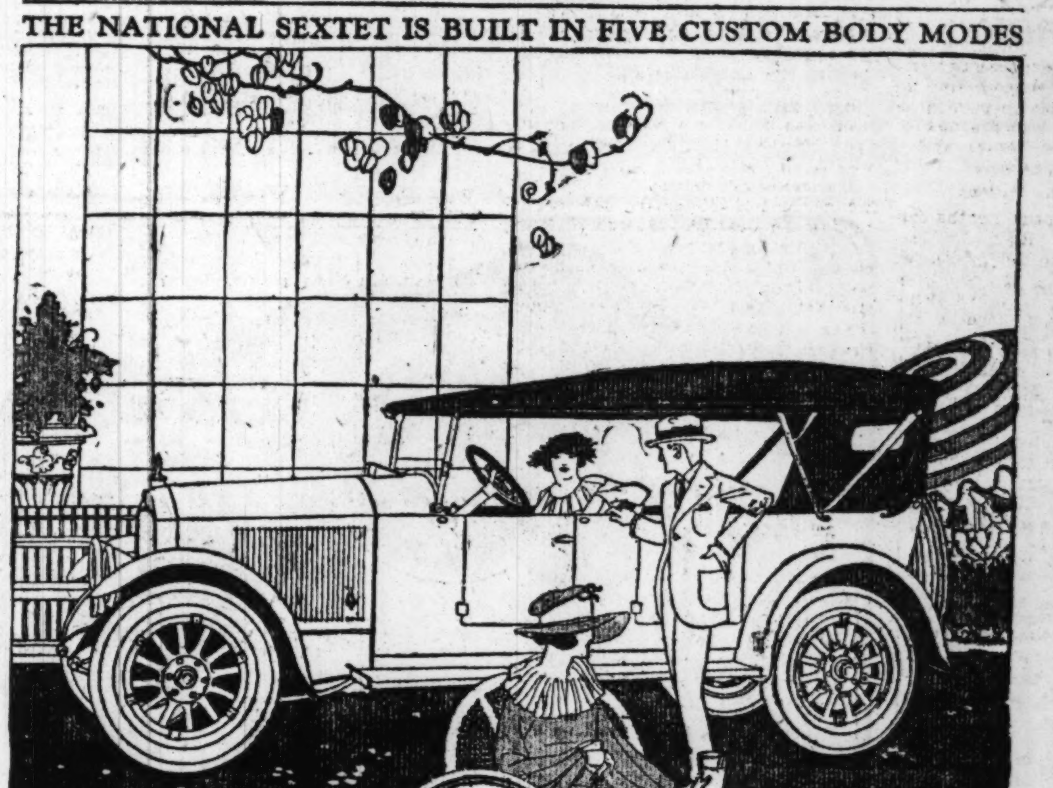
THE NATIONAL SEXTET IS BUILT IN FIVE CUSTOM BODY MODES



THE NATIONAL SEXTET SEVEN-PASSENGER TOURING CAR

Designed for the Comfort of Seven

While the strikingly low National Sextet Touring Car is exceedingly good to look upon, its pronounced style has not been gained at the sacrifice of comfort.

There is no misnomer, in fact, in calling the National Sextet Touring Car a seven-passenger model. It is that and nothing less, measuring 130 inches from hub to hub, and what is more to the point, all seven ride without crowding or cramping.

Though slim and narrow to the eye, because of the long, arrow-straight lines, the custom-built body of the Sextet is notable for generosity of room.

The rear seat is especially worthy of note in this respect. While seemingly narrow, it embodies the utmost comfort for three large persons.

The seats are built well below the upper edge of the body, giving a satisfying sense of security. They are tilted, as well, at just the right angle for lounging ease.

The cushions are wide and deep, upholstered in the finest pleated leather and stuffed with genuine curled hair. Permanency of shape is assured by the use of double non-sag springs.

The smartness of Sextet body design is matched by smartness of appointment. The robe strap is of Cordovan; the lock-fitted cabinets in the center cowl are finished in walnut; the top is individually tailored and lined.

The equipment is most complete, including such unusual items as transmission theft lock and auxiliary gasoline tank, while the high efficiency six-cylinder engine is quiet in operation, ever obedient to the accelerator, and dependable always.

We would be pleased to demonstrate the National Sextet at your convenience.

SOCIETY WOMEN REACH HELPING HAND TO INSANE

Give Time and Money to Lift Up Unfortunate.

BY LEOLA ALLARD.

So many stories of women of wealth and social position have had to do with tea dances, permanent waves, and late breakfasts in bed that there is a joyous thrill in the news of what some of Chicago's women have been doing with their time and money of late, all unbeknown to the gossipy world.

MISS CORDELIA CARPENTER.
[Photo Copyright by Moffett.]

Miss Cordelia Carpenter, Miss Polly Hubbard, Miss Laura Griswold, Miss Margaret Jones, Miss Ruth Wright, and Miss Barbara Blatchford all have been giving their time and loving services to the insane women at Dunning asylum. They have given money, too, and have taught the women with patience and care. They have given tea parties in the patients' workrooms on afternoons when the work grew a bit monotonous. They have bought equipment for the gymnasium and kilns in which to bake the pottery that is being made by the patients under the guidance of Mrs. Anna Tompkins, head of the educational therapy department.

Help to Effect Cure.

"You don't mind if I give a little party," Miss Margaret Jones, who lives at the Moraine hotel in Highland Park, would say to Mrs. Tompkins. Assured that it was all right, she would drag in from her car boxes of dainty sandwiches she had set up late the night before to prepare, and nuts, candies, cakes, and tea.

The patients adore these good women and sometimes kiss their hands when they came near to instruct them. The visitors' appearance in the institutional workrooms is a signal for fleeting, appreciative smiles.

Stories of the occupational therapy work introduced so recently into the state insane institutions by Charles H. Thorne and A. L. Bowen of the state welfare department, reached the ears of the Chicago women and inspired their visits. They spent months learning to teach the patients how to help themselves toward recovery, or to make themselves less unhappy.

Months with One Patient.

One social worker spent months caring for one patient, Ruth Petriak. Ruth held her hands so tightly clasped together in her lap that she could not work and she would not unfold them. Finally Dr. C. F. Reed, head of the institution, placed a brightly colored ball on her hands and thus aroused her attention. She was in this way started toward recovery by the occupational therapy route.

At first she was graded so low mentally that she was able only to unravel burlap and tie the strings together, but now, through the kindness and patience of the social workers and the hospital authorities, she is out in the world again and able to earn $20 a week at her work.

Help Work with Checks.

Miss Polly Carpenter gave many weeks of her time to the hospital and then sent a check for $450 to buy some equipment for the school gymnasium.

Miss Laura Griswold of Evanston not only helped the individuals but also sent a check for $250 to buy a kiln in which the patients can bake the pottery they mold.

Miss Ruth Wright of Evanston gave her time and money and Barbara Blatchford, daughter of Dr. Paul Blatchford of Oak Park, was one of the most faithful and earnest workers.

Miss Jones is doing work among the soldiers at Fort Sheridan now, but she still makes visits to the classes of the insane, sends checks, and phones to ask Mrs. Tompkins about the patients' welfare.

Keep Women Occupied.

Mrs. Tompkins and Dr. Reed grade the patients in their new work and keep their tasks just one lap ahead of them, so they are required to use their minds and are given no time to think of their misfortunes. Patients who come to the hospital utterly without interest in their gray world are taught gradually to do useful things and in this manner their zest for life is reawakened.

The minds of some patients are being restored by the new methods and these Chicago women of the top crust have belt a keen joy in going down to the bottom one and painting bright pictures for the wrecks of life there.

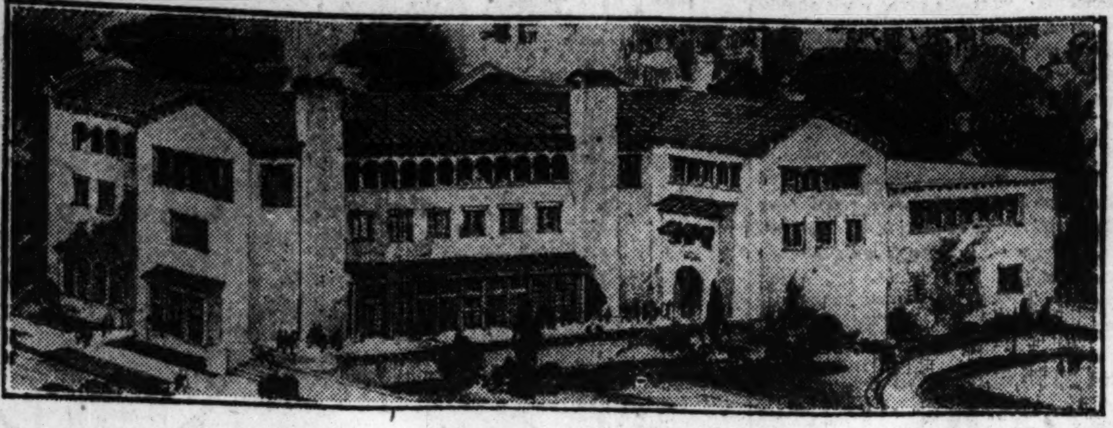
Guildhall for Hyde Park

Plans Complete for St. Thomas' Church, $400,000 Social Center.



$400,000 SOCIAL CENTER PLANNED FOR HYDE PARK

St. Thomas' Church to Build Guildhall.

BY THE REV. F. L. GRATIOT.

Plans for the $400,000 community center at Fifty-sixth street and Kimbark avenue, to be known as "The Guildhall," have been completed, and the campaign for funds has been launched. The center will be for all the people of the community of Hyde Park. It is being erected under the auspices of St. Thomas' Roman Catholic church, the Rev. T. V. Shannon, pastor. The land was donated by Archbishop Mundelein.

"Guildhall is to be nonsectarian, nonpartisan, nonexclusive," says the announcement of the drive. "It will provide a home for recreation, education, and comradeship, accessible to all the people of Hyde Park."

For Young and Old.

The center will be equipped for recreation and education purposes for young and old. A large athletic field adjoins the building. The women's and girls' department consists of parlors, rest rooms, library, domestic science rooms, and music rooms. It has a swimming pool, gymnasium, handball and tennis courts, and bowling alleys.

Boys and men will have a completely equipped athletic department, with large swimming pool, showers, lockers, basketball court, handball courts, and running track.

For the general public there are reception rooms, café, and auditorium with stage and balcony seating 700.

A day nursery with attendants is also provided.

Modern Building.

The building will be of steel, concrete, and brick of the best construction. Modern lighting, heating, and ventilating systems are provided for.

The campaign for $400,000 has the indorsement of 250 leading citizens, including the most Rev. George W. Mundelein, Mayor Thompson, Harry Pratt Judson, Julius Rosenwald, Ozora Davis, Marquis Eaton, Charles W. Folds, Marshall Field, M. E. Greenebaum, Maclay Hoyne, Edward Hines, Mgr. Francis C. Kelley, A. TRIBUNE TAX BUREAU AGAIN HELPS OUT U. S. WITH BLANKS

AGAIN THE TRIBUNE came to the government's aid yesterday by supplying the internal revenue department in the federal building with income tax blanks for incomes of less than $5,000. On Friday Harry W. Mager, internal revenue collector, called on THE TRIBUNE to help him out by printing the blanks and yesterday morning, while the last blanks were being delivered he called up and requested another 10,000 to carry him over until the missing government shipment should arrive.

THE TRIBUNE had these printed and they were delivered in lots of 1,000 or 2,000 during the remainder of the day as fast as they came off the press. Mr. Mager believes the government blanks are in the city, but did not wish to keep the public waiting until they could be located.

Tomorrow is the last day allowed for the filing of individual returns. They must all be in the hands of the collector before midnight on Monday.

THE TRIBUNE's income tax bureau has been taking care of from 2,000 to 3,000 taxpayers during the last few days and has supplied blanks and given assistance to more than 45,000 since the beginning of the filing period. This bureau is the only income tax office in Chicago which has never been without Form 1040 A.

The bureau opens at 9 tomorrow morning and closes at 5. Its service is free to the public.

Elevators and stairways of the federal building were jammed during the day with the anxious income tax laggards. Hundreds waited in line and five fought for the attention of every government agent.

SIGN CONTRACT FOR COMPLETING SPEEDWAY WORK

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—The long controversy over the Speedway hospital was ended today when the contract for the completion of the building was signed by Secretary of the Treasury Houston.

The closing of the deal, by which the treasury department takes over the property at Broadview, Ill., for the public health service, followed the signing by the president of the deficiency appropriation bill, which included additional legislation relating to the project.

Under the terms of the new act an additional $400,000 was made available besides the $3,000,000 originally appropriated.

Edward Hines, owner of the hospital, has stated that the building could be completed within ninety days after the signing of the contract.

FARMERS PLAN UNITED BUYING TO CUT COSTS

Convention to Open in City Tomorrow.

The Farmers' Grain Dealers' National association, representing 4,000 companies with an investment of more than $80,000,000 in grain elevators, coal houses, lumber yards, and warehouses, will hold its annual convention at the Great Northern hotel tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

These companies do $1,000,000,000 worth of grain business or more every year and handle more than $140,000,000 worth of farm supplies, lumber, coal, flour, feed, fertilizer, and building material.

Herman W. Danforth, president of the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis, is president.

Steps are to be taken to reorganize the association and to hold an annual meeting at which it is expected more than 3,000 delegates will attend.

Another plan to be discussed is that of collective purchasing of farm supplies. The association by taking a blanket bond for the managers of the elevators and thereby cutting out the selling cost has reduced the price of these bonds from $15 to $3. It is expected that by cutting down the manufacturer's selling cost through a pooling of orders a great saving can be made in purchases.

BANKERS REFUSE TO ACCEPT CITY LICENSING PLAN

Only a "legal principle" stood between the city of Chicago and $17,000 at yesterday's meeting of the council license committee. The bankers were before the committee, which is seeking to increase revenues by new licenses.

"We cannot admit that there is a legal principle giving the city the right to license us," said Frank C. Wetmore, president of the First National bank, on behalf of the loop banks. "The $17,000 which the city would raise by the proposed license is not the important question. If the city needs it we can raise a fund and give it to the city."

But Chairman Cermak declared that the city was not looking for charity.

John A. Carroll, president of the Hyde Park State bank, representing outlying banks, agreed with Mr. Wetmore that the "principle" would never permit a license for the banks.

"The banks I represent," he said, "paid $500,000 in personal taxes last year. A license fee would be an injustice."

MENTION WILSON FOR NEW STATE COLLEGE CHIEF

Illini Urge U. S. Search to Find Best Man.

The board of directors of the Illini club of Chicago at a meeting yesterday urged the trustees of the University of Illinois to make a careful investigation before selecting the successor of President Edmund J. James, whose resignation is in the hands of the trustees. It was urged that the search cover the United States and that the best possible man be elected. President Wilson's name was mentioned in the discussion.

Send Plea to Board.

Following is the statement sent to the university trustees:

"The office of president of the University of Illinois is now vacant. The board of directors of the Illini club of Chicago firmly believes that the importance of this position cannot be overestimated, since under a leader of genius and vision the University of Illinois can become the greatest university in the world.

"We urge upon the trustees of the university that wide publicity be given to the great opportunity which here awaits a great man, and that diligent efforts be made to search the United States for the American educator best fitted to guide the University of Illinois to its high destiny and in its all important work for the people of Illinois."

Laud Work of James.

The following resolution commending the work of President James was adopted:

"Whereas, Edmund J. James has retired from the position of president of the University of Illinois after fifteen years of splendid and fruitful service, therefore be it resolved that we, the board of directors of the Illini club of Chicago, tender to President James, in behalf of the alumni we represent, their sincere gratitude for his labors and their best wishes."

COMMERCE BODY OPPOSES COUNCIL ON UTILITY RULE

Plans Prepared for Big Con Con Debate.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

The Association of Commerce is almost ready to announce its attitude on local control of public utilities. It differs widely from that of the city council, and a clash betwen the two seems almost certain before the constitutional convention.

The council asks "exclusive power" to regulate rates and full authority to acquire and operate utilities. The Association of Commerce, in its tentative opinion, questions the wisdom of that policy.

More than a dozen civic and business organizations were invited to send representatives yesterday afternoon to the City club to discuss and agree upon, if possible, a public utility proposal for the constitutional convention. No agreement was reached, and it is intended to continue the discussions this week.

Opinion May Be Modified.

The Association of Commerce has a tentative opinion which may, however, be later modified if a plan can be formulated upon which all of the organizations can agree.

The association stands for "such measures of home rule as will enable them (the people of Chicago) to successfully, promptly, and efficiently deal with problems strictly local in character, as differentiated from those of state-wide concern."

But if, in the application of this principle, "it is found to be impracticable and unworkable, then it would seem that this principle should not operate" in such cases.

Four Arguments Given.

"We submit that the proposal of delegated constitutional power of unlimited control of public utilities, including the regulation of their rates, is financially impossible and economically impracticable for the following reasons," reads the first view of the association of commerce. Then follow four reasons at length.

One reason says that "the economic necessity of state rather than local control is particularly apparent in the case of electricity supplied utilities." Then is argued that a central plant operation is cheaper than local plants. It continues:

"It is more than probable that a very considerable part of the future electricity supply for Chicago will be transmitted long distances from huge steam generating stations located at the coal mines, or on some large river where sufficient condensing water is available as near as possible to coal mines, or located at water power sites. These great generating stations and transmission lines must of necessity be state controlled, because to utilize them to the highest advantage they must not only supply Chicago, but must take on various local businesses.

Railroads to Electrify.

"Practically all engineers are agreed that steam railroads in a great center like Chicago are soon going to electrify, and the electrification zones will usually extend some distance beyond the city limits. The electro-chemical and the electro-fertilizer industries are only in their infancy."

SEEK $1,000,000 IN 2 WEEKS TO BOOST CHICAGO

One million dollars in two weeks to be spent in telling the world Chicago's advantages is the goal of Mayor Thompson's drive for subscriptions from business men. The campaign, supervised by the Chicago Boosters' Publicity club, begins tomorrow.

The money is to be spent under the supervision of Mayor Thompson, D. F. Kelly, Robert J. McLaughlin, Frederick W. Bartlett, and Everett C. Brown, directors of the club, in advertising the city on bill boards, in newspapers, magazines, and movies.

In raising the fund and in spending it, the club directors will have the backing of the following advisory council: Thomas E. Wilson, chairman; E. F. Buffington, James Simpson, John A. Spoor, Robert J. Thorne, Fred W. Upham, Harry J. Powers, Ernest R. Graham, Edward Hines, Samuel Insull, Hale Holden, Frank G. Logan, John R. Thompson, C. A. McCulloch, Alfred Decker, Adolph Kramer, Louis Eckstein, John C. Shaffer, J. L. Coath, Roy D. Keehn, and Robert W. Stewart.

"Every Chicago business man and concern will have the chance to demonstrate concretely their loyalty to and interest in our city's future," said Mr. Wilson yesterday.

"The plan to give the broadest publicity to Chicago's merits deserves the generous support, financial and otherwise, of every loyal Chicagoan. I am confident that the $1,000,000 goal will be reached before the time limit set."

More than 100 chairmen representing as many business branches have been chosen to raise allotted sums to total $1,000,000.

ADAM ADVOCATE LAUGHED OUT OF EVE'S TRIBUNAL

New York, March 13.—A letter from Representative Joe H. Eagle of Texas declaring "women's chief work should be making one good man a good wife and properly rearing a family of children" caused a mild stir today at a luncheon of the Woman's Chamber of Commerce, a national organization of professional and business women.

"Mr. Eagle seems to have forgotten that men have ruled the world ever since the time of Adam, and we all know the terrible mess they have made of it," said Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould, founder of the organization.

The Boiler is the Heart—Examine the Boiler First

Ask any good doctor to examine the Human Edifice and he will immediately begin on the heart. If he finds that all right, he gives you the Laugh and sends in a generous bill. He knows you are joyful enough to pay it. If he finds a few skips and leaks, he tells you to eat less red meat and not to walk up to the 19th floor oftener than once a week.

Ask any building expert to examine some edifice that you want to buy for investment, and he, too, will begin on the heart. And the heart in this instance is the heating boiler. If he finds cracks and leaks in it he tells you to pass on to the next exhibit because a flat with a leaky heart won't do under any circumstances.

And we may as well say to you men who build buildings to sell, that if you try to save money by putting in a cheap heating boiler, you are going to spoil a sale just as sure as the sun rises and sets. If you will put the

KEWANEE

Smokeless Boiler in every building you build, you can state the fact with pride. You've got something worth talking about. Your building has a healthy heart and not the kind that eats up profits. And if you advertise the building for sale, the biggest point in the ad will be that the building is equipped with a Kewanee All-Steel Smokeless Boiler, which burns the cheapest grades of soft coal without smoke.

Don't get it into your little head that people who buy buildings won't LOOK IN THE BASEMENT FIRST. On the contrary they will. They are doing it every day. They are going to do more of it as time goes on. They are fast learning that the heating boiler is the most important thing in any building. So, why don't you minimize the possibility of failing to sell and put that boiler in? It has more to do with the sale and a good price than any other item or group of items.

For heating Schools, Apartments, Churches, Hotels, Factories, Garages, Large Residences, Theatres, etc.

Packard Twin-Six Production Doubled for Nineteen-Twenty

NOT only that, but it will be increased in 1921 and again in 1922. This planning for the future is but another evidence of the secure place the Packard Twin-Six occupies in the automotive world.

The fundamental engineering principles embodied in this remarkably efficient motor were not hit upon by chance—they are not easily improved.

This means certainty. In other words, you know exactly what to expect from Packard by "asking the man who owns one." This, together with its stabilized style, insures that Packard will supply you with dominant motoring satisfaction for a period of years.

The Packard Twin-Six is permanent. It is not subject to experimental changes. The Packard fuelizer, just announced, is but an aid to its worthwhile performance. The air brake revolutionized the operation of railroad cars, but it did not change their construction. It is the same with the Packard fuelizer.

The FUELIZER Another Exclusive Packard Feature

Permit us to demonstrate this "little miracle."

IN 1919 the production of Packards fell far short of meeting the demand. Even with doubled quotas for 1920 there is every indication the ever-increasing popularity of Packard vehicles will cause another shortage. Everything possible is being done to avoid this—but to the man wishing a Packard this season we say:

An early selection is not only advisable, but the only way to be sure of having this desirable transportation.

CHICAGO STOCK EXCHANGE VOTES MARCUSE PROBE

Broker Denies Running a "Bucket Shop."

An investigation of the brokerage business of Marcuse & Co. was ordered yesterday by the governors of the Chicago stock exchange. This action was the outcome of a hearing at which Ben Marcuse, head of the concern, was questioned concerning his deals, which led to his expulsion from the New York stock exchange, suspension on the Chicago exchange, and a receivership for the brokerage house.

The governors of the Chicago stock exchange, after questioning Marcuse, instructed President Aldrich to appoint a special committee to examine the books of the concern. On its findings will depend whether Marcuse will be expelled. At the hearing yesterday Marcuse was asked whether he had engaged in "bucket shop" operations. He denied he had, but admitted on further questioning that he had a "special account" in his firm through which he traded heavily. He said his deals through this account were not commonly known to his partners, but that his office manager, Emil Engstrom, had authority to make trades under it.

"Special Account" Watched.

It is this "special account" that will occupy the close attention of the Chicago stock exchange committee and is expected to figure prominently in the bankruptcy proceedings before Federal Judge Landis, who has ordered Marcuse to appear before a referee tomorrow.

Whatever the loss may be, it will be borne by the customers. Money loaned to the concern by Chicago banks is secured by salable collateral, and the firm's dealings with the banks were in regular procedure. The same was true with the firm's dealings with other stock commission houses until last Thursday, when Marcuse & Co. refused to make good on contracts. But such contracts amount to a negligible figure.

Marcuse yesterday took exception to a remark of Judge Landis in court suggesting that Marcuse & Co. had been "bucket shopping." It is in this connection that Marcuse's "special account" will be investigated.

"Bucket Shop" Methods.

Bucket shopping is not conducted on any exchange, but is done privately in the bucket shopper's own office, and no one but his bookkeeper and himself may know of his dealings.

There are two ways of bucket shopping, a rather refined one and a rather coarse one. And if the firm in question did do bucket shopping it pursued the refined method, which may be illustrated in this way:

If a customer of the firm should, for instance, give an order to buy on margin 10,000 shares of New York Central, he would be asked to put up at least ten points margin on every share, or $100,000. This money of the customer would then be placed in bank to the credit of the firm.

The order to buy the New York Central stock would be duly transmitted to the New York correspondent of the firm and be properly executed on the New York stock exchange. That would mean ordinarily that the Chicago firm would be obliged to advance a certain amount of margin to the New York correspondent who "carried" the stock. If the correspondent should demand ten points margin from the Chicago firm then it would be necessary to advance $100,000 to cover this transaction, and that would take all that the customer of the Chicago firm had paid in.

Another Order Sent.

But shortly after the execution of the buying order for 10,000 shares the Chicago firm might send down an order to sell 10,000 shares of New York Central "short." This transaction might be charged to a "special account." It would square the account with the New York correspondent so that no money need be advanced and the Chicago customer's original $100,000 would still be to the credit of the Chicago firm.

The bucket shopping feature of this transaction is that the Chicago firm merely went short of the customer's order. The bucket shopper sold 10,000 shares that he did not have against the 10,000 shares purchased.

If now the market for New York Central should advance and the customer asked for his profit, the bucket shopper would lose the difference between the purchase price and the selling price. If, however, New York Central should decline and the customer decided to get out, the bucket shopper would be ahead the amount of the decline.

Bets Customer Is Wrong.

This is the course of operations when the bucket shopper bets that his customer is wrong on the bull side. He could reverse and bet the customer to be wrong on the bear side. In either case the broker is merely betting that his customer is wrong.

The rather out of date method of bucket shopping is the one in which an order to buy, for example, 100 shares of stock at $20 a share is taken. The customer advances a margin, but the broker buys no stock, although he may issue a statement to the customer saying that he has. In this case the broker merely bets that the stock will not go up. If it does he pays the customer the difference and takes the loss. If the stock goes down and the customer sells out, the bucket shopper wins the margin advanced.

COMMITTEE IN 'HEADS OR TAILS' STATE ON BONUS

Final Action Will Come After Legion Meeting.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., March 13.—[Special.]—Members of the house ways and means committee appeared to be almost equally divided on the question of soldiers' bonus legislation today as hearings on the subject were brought to a conclusion. The committee will meet in executive session on Monday to consider the proposed legislation in detail. Definite action will be deferred until after a meeting of the national executive committee of the American Legion on March 22 at which new recommendations are to be made, including suggestions as to how the money should be raised.

Representative Fordney of Michigan, chairman of the committee, who has favored bonus legislation from the start of the hearings, said today that he still is for it, but has not formed an opinion as to the best means of raising the money.

Garner Predicts Defeat.

Representative Garner of Texas, Democrat, predicted that no bonus bill would be reported from the committee. He expressed the belief that the committee will line up, 13 to 12 or thereabouts, in opposition to the proposed legislation. Two or three of the Republicans listed by Mr. Garner as opposing legislation refuse to admit that they have formed an opinion one way or the other. These members, who include Representatives Green of Iowa and Treadway of Massachusetts, are expected to cast the deciding votes.

Raising of Money Problem.

The question of raising the money is the chief difficulty. The testimony of financial experts of the government in opposition to any bond issue is believed to have killed any chance of the approval of that plan. Notwithstanding the criticism of the proposed sales taxes on the ground of increasing the cost of living, some of the members are expected to support a special tax. Although Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Leffingwell told the committee during the week that the only sane plan for raising additional revenue was by increasing the normal income tax rate, this plan is not believed to be likely to meet with favor.

May Tax Stock Distribution.

The ways and means committee also will take up the question of providing a means of revenue to make up for the deficit in prospect as a result of the decision of the Supreme court invalidating the taxing of stock dividends as income. Representative Green will urge the approval of a plan for a tax upon corporations distributing earnings in the form of stock. It is his idea to make the tax so high as to prevent corporations from following the practice of issuing stock dividends.

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

The Ideal Five-Passenger Car

Those who know the lofty purpose which inspired the building of our new Paige Glenbrook do not wonder that this Light Six model so quickly gained the distinction of being the ideal five-passenger car.

Our one great aim was to make the Glenbrook so obviously superior to any other car of its class that it would be recognized at once as such.

In building it, therefore, we made no compromises. Beauty, comfort and mechanical excellence all had to meet the high standard of perfection which we had established as the ideal toward which we were striving.

The best evidence of the success of our efforts is the Glenbrook itself.

Powered with a six-cylinder motor—of original Paige design and built in the Paige shops—and equally well equipped in body and chassis, this latest member of the Paige family has brought to American motorists new standards of dependability and economy in five passenger motor cars.

See the Glenbrook—and ride in it. You will then have first-hand knowledge of the qualities which have justly entitled this new Paige model to be called "the ideal five-passenger motor car".

CHICAGO TO BE WORLD'S BIGGEST PRINTING CENTER

Zone Law Forces Eastern Magazines Here.

Chicago has got to become the world's greatest printing center. Nothing can stop it. Magazines can now save such enormous amounts on postage under the new zoning law—and they'll save more next year—and can reach the rest of the country so much quicker and cheaper by freight from Chicago than from the eastern cities, that they've got to come here for printing and mailing. Circulation departments are moving first; eventually the editorial departments will come. Chicago is the logical center for distribution—it's near the center of population, near the paper mills, and is the railroad center of North America. —George Henneberry, vice president of the Cuneo-Henneberry company, printers.

BY AL CHASE.

Once in a great while the gentlemen in our national capital make a law which is supposed to benefit the entire nation and which works to the great good of one particular district. Chicago, it happens, has seldom been the lucky victim of such legislation.

But when the postal amendment was passed by congress, separating for mailing purposes the text of magazines from the advertising carried, and zoning the entire nation, old Dad Dearborn was given a business melon which promises to be about the juiciest ever.

The first and most important result is that Chicago is rapidly becoming the printing and publishing center of the country and promises to be the greatest magazine printing center in the world in time.

Big Savings Force Action.

When eastern magazines with circulations of 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 can save over 2 cents postage on each copy by having their printing and mailing done in Chicago, the total saving is something worth while. For instance, one of the largest magazines for women, with a circulation of over 1,500,000, is negotiating to print half its edition in Chicago, the other half to be printe in the east, as at present. They figure that $180,000 annually will be saved in postal charges.

The average weight of the larger magazines is about one and one-half pounds. Some of the big women's magazines weigh more. At least half of this represents advertising, on which zone charges must be paid. And mailing a pound and a half magazine to the first and second zone from Chicago instead of from the east will save approximately 1⅓ cents per copy at present. After July 1 it will save about 2¼ cents per copy. Next year the saving will be still more.

Strike Boosts Chicago.

The recent strike in the printing trade in New York forced several magazines to come to Chicago to have their printing done, a thing some of their owners had contemplated for some time. For instance, the owners of Cosmopolitan, Hearst's, and Good Housekeeping had intended for several years to have their printing done here. The strike led them to act. Now the Cuneo-Henneberry company has permanently secured the printing of these three.

Two other strike bound eastern magazines came westwards and found refuge at what is claimed is the largest printing plant in the world devoted exclusively to magazine and catalog printing—the W. F. Hall Printing company. They are the Review of Reviews and Physical Culture. The latter having found a great saving in postage here will remain permanently.

Save a Week.

Another consideration that is bringing magazines to Chicago is the fact that printing and mailing here gives them often as much as a full additional week to accept advertising. The magazines printed in New York must leave Manhattan twelve days before the date of the newsstand release in Chicago. By printing half of the edition in Chicago the magazines can leave the plant two days before newsstand date and be on time anywhere in the Chicago zone.

The saving in postage on magazines applies to an ever greater extend on mail order catalogs. While the reading matter in magazines goes at publication rates and is free from the zoning system, the entire mail order catalog must be mailed at parcel post rates. For this reason the National Cloak and Suit company, the Charles Williams Stores, Bellas Hess, and other large Gotham mail order concerns are having their catalogs printed in Chicago by the Hall company, R. R. Donnelley & Sons Co., the Cuneo-Henneberry company, and others.

In addition to printing New York mail order catalogues, the Hall concern gets out catalogues for Montgomery Ward, Philipsborn, and other large mail order concerns in Chicago and throughout the middle west.

Some Splash of Color.

And don't make the mistake of thinking Chicago just helps out Father Knickerbocker's magazines. We've got a long string of Chicago owned magazines which make a pretty respectable spash of color on the news stands. Here are our town magazines printed by Hall:

Blue Book,
Cartoons,
Factory,
Farm,
Green Book,
Mother's Magazine,
Outers,
Photoplay,
Popular Mechanics,
Red Book, ...
System, ...
System on the Farm.

The total number of magazines printed by the Hall concern amounts to over 3,000,000 per month. The catalogues printed each year by the same concern total over 15,000,000.

To help meet this enormous business the Hall Co. last week negotiated a $1,000,000 loan with S. W. Straus & Co., who have issued first mortgage 6 per cent serial bonds secured by the WORK is expected to start this week on the new $3,000,000 Illini hotel to stand on the south side of Surf street, 160 feet west of Sheridan road, designed and owned by James B. Dibelka, architect. It will front 64 feet on Surf street and 160 on an alley which runs back to Diversey parkway., giving it a handy private entrance for cars to the hotel garage, which will accommodate twenty-five machines.

There will be 292 hotel rooms, arranged in one, two, and three room suites. There will be no kitchenettes, but arrangements will be made for the use of electric stoves by guests. There will be an elaborate roof garden and a big organ in the ballroom. There also will be safety vaults, public and private dining rooms, tailor shop, beauty parlor, and all the other details of a big 1920 hotel. Simons, Gorey & Co. are Mr. Dibelka's representatives.

NORTH SIDE COLONY OF ARCHITECTS GETS TWO NEW ADDITIONS

More additions are to be made to the fast growing colony of artists, engineers, and architects in the North Michigan boulevard district between the river and Chicago avenue.

Edwin H. Clark of Otis & Clark, 6 North Michigan avenue, is to sever his connection with his partner on May 1 and will move across the river and occupy quarters in the remodeled residence at 8 East Huron stret. Mr. Clark purchased the property, 35x100, from Dr. Nathan S. Davis, now in California, through Harold Bradley & Co., for a reported $17,000. It is a fifteen room brick residence and has been occupied by the Davis family for three generations.

The former residence of Ogden Sheldon at Ontario and St. Clair streets has been leased for a term of years by the American Park builders, landscape architects, whose president, Myron H. West, was general superintendent of the Lincoln park system for several years. The building will be remodeled for offices and studios for use of the company, which is now in the Marquette building.

Printers Rent Remodeled Plymouth Court Building

After $100,000 improvements are completed in the five story building at 511-13 Plymouth court, recently damaged by fire, the Bentley, Murray Printing and Publishing Co. will occupy the entire structure, moving from 159 North Wabash avenue. The company, of which John T. Connery is president and his son-in-law, Joseph Bidwill, is vice president, has leased the property from Philip F. W. Peck and others through E. F. Keebler & Co. for fifteen years beginning May 1 at a net rental which, with taxes and insurance, will total $225,000 for the term.

Jefferson Park National Plans $65,000 Building

A new two story bank building to cost $65,000 is planned by the Jefferson Park National bank on a site, 58x125, at the southwest corner of Milwaukee and Lawrence avenues, purchased from Herman H. Esdohr for $35,000. Work will begin in the spring of 1921. The bank is now at 4815 Milwaukee avenue.

Melville E. Stone Sells His Glencoe Residence

An indicated price of $42,500, subject to $12,000, was paid by Milton F. Goodman of the Reliance Manufacturing company to Melville E. Stone for the eight and one-half acres and residence in Glencoe, in Sheridan road near the Lake Shore Country club. Mr. Goodman sold th eresidence and two Goodman sold the residence and two

ACT AS THOUGH THEY OWNED THE PLACE? THEY DO

If when the new Palais Royal theater opens at Kedzie avenue and Ainslie street you notice most of the patrons assume a supercilious air that would make you think they owned the place you're thinking right. They do. They're stockholders—500 of 'em—and they own $65,000 worth of the big playhouse.

When Joseph A. Shaffer, formerly associated with the Ascher Bros.' theaters, decided to build a 3,000 seat movie he figured every stockholder he could get would mean a family of permanent patrons. Figuring five to a family, he counts on 2,500 ardent fans as a result of his stock sales. There is $200,000 worth of stock issued, half preferred and half common. The preferred, par $10, has been sold to the public. When they have received 100 per cent in dividends the profits will be divided fifty-fifty with the common stockholders.

In addition Joseph A. Shaffer & Co. have underwritten a $700,000 loan to finance the construction. Foltz & Brand, architects, have drawn plans for one of the most elaborate houses in the city, it is claimed.

Mr. Shaffer is planning another huge movie in the vicinity of Sheridan road and Devon avenue, also to be coöperative. This may have 4,500 seats. Work will begin on the Palais Royal within two weeks and it will open next fall.

Wentworth Estate Sells 470 Acres for $760,000

One of Chicago's biggest acre sales was closed when the Chicago Title & Trust Co. purchased for an undisclosed buyer from the estate of John Wentworth 470 acres extending from the Drainage canal south a mile and a half to West Fifty-fifth street, bounded on the east by South Cicero avenue and on the west by Laramie avenue—a half mide wide. It is crossed by Archer avenue. The indicated price was $760,000.

TWO KENWOOD RESIDENCES SOLD.

Henry A. Klein, president of the Loma Grande company, has purchased from James C. Ames and his sister, Mrs. G. A. Hall, the colonial residence at 4835 Greenwood avenue, lot 74x297, through James J. Parker & Co., for a reported $32,500. The same firm sold the Stamford White residence at 5039 Ellis avenue to George A. Kalsch, lot 40x160, for a reported $20,000.

TURNS TO ICE CREAM.

Another "four mile" saloon property on Devon avenue, at the southeast corner of Greenview avenue, 56x112, has turned from booze to ice cream. J. Gunther, owner of the bar, has sold the three story building, containing three stores and ten flats, to Herbert A. Henry for an indicated $49,000 subject to $20,000. Mr. Gunther will open an ice cream shop where his bar formerly stood.

FEDERAL LOAN BANK SOLD.

Hyman Ginsberg has purchased through E. F. Keebler & Co. the jewelry stock, fixtures, and loan business of Charles P. Hirtenstein at 7 North Clark street, for a reported $65,000 cash. Keebler & Co. then negotiated a new lease for the store for Ben Roth to Mr. Ginsberg for six years from May 1 at a term rental of $42,000.

HYDE PARK TO HAVE $2,000,000 HOTEL-THEATER

Marquette to Be Ready Early in 1921.

Chicago's first and largest residence hotel district—which includes old timers like the Chicago Beach, Hyde Park, Windermere, and Del Prado and more modern ones like the Sisson, Cooper-Carleton, Elms, Beach annex, Plaisance, and others—apparently is coming to life again.

Nearly every week we hear of a new big hotel planned for the Wilson avenue and Edgewater districts—but all's quiet in Hyde Park. Years ago the Windermere announced a big annex on the block east of it—but nothing ever was done.

Now step forward Herman Schoenstadt and his two sons, Henry and Arthur, and quietly take out a building permit for a $600,000 theater, hotel and business block to be erected at the southeast corner of Hyde Park boulevard and Blackstone avenue, one block west of the Hyde Park hotel, with a frontage of 150 feet on the boulevard and 289 feet on Blackstone.

Choose Historical Name.

Remember, however, that building permits usually are modest things and seldom indicate the full value. According to Mr. Schoenstadt Sr., the total cost of the project will be around $2,000,000.

The Hotel Marquette, the tentative name and one closely linked with the early history of Chicago, will be twelve stories, 350 rooms, with several shops on the boulevard and Blackstone avenue. It will be L shaped, and behind it, with an entrance on the boulevard, will be the Theatre Marquette, which the owners claim will be as luxurious as anything we've seen in Chicago. It will have 3,200 seats, every one with two wide, comfortable individual arm rests for each patron, no fifty-fifty sharing with one's neighbors of a half inch wide place to rest one's funnybone on.

And Listen to This!

Another promise is to make the waiting for the next show a pleasure instead of a bore. "We'll have comfortable accommodations inside for those waiting," said Mr. Schoenstadt, "and entertainers for them. No more standing in line outside."

Work already has been started on wrecking three flat buildings and an old residence to make way for the new Marquette.

The Schoenstadt family now operates a chain of six movie houses: Brighton, 1,800 seats; Atlantic, 1,800; Boulevard, 1,000; Archer, 1,000; Halfield, 1,000; and the Ashland, 300. They will take over the Verdi, 1,100 seats, in a few weeks.

The Theatre Marquette will have a stage large enough for vaudeville or legitimate if the proposed policy of the house should be changed. It will be ready early in 1921.

Acres Added to Chicago's Great Forest Preserve

Chicago's great forest preserve district has had considerable real estate added to it during the last few days. In Palos two parcels were purchased. One of 120 acres, west of Kean avenue and north of Bluff road, adjoining Palos Park, was bought from George F. Harding for an indicated $24,000. The other was for 113 acres, west of Kean avenue and south of Bluff road, bought from Alice I. Drake for $23,630.

A forty-three acre tract in Proviso, north of Ogden avenue and west of Wolf road, was purchased from M. A. Fuller for $13,000. A seven and one-fourth acre tract adjoining the new McCormick Zoölogical gardens was bought from S. B. Barry for $6,280.

Road Builders May Use 24,000 U. S. War Motors

Washington, D. C., March 13.—Approximately 24,000 motor vehicles intended for war purposes have been turned over to the department of agriculture by the war department for distribution among the state highway commissioners for use in road building, allotments being based on the amount of federal aid for roads which the states receive. Already 12,000 have been delivered to states and the remainder will be distributed as fast as railway cars can be secured for their transportation, which will be probably two or three months. This equipment promises to be of great aid in carrying out the large road building program for 1920.

Sporting Goods Company Builds $125,000 Plant

The Excelsior Traveling Goods company has purchased through Alex. Friend & Co. from Frederick Raitsch of the Chicago Sporting Goods company the two story building, 67x125, at 211-17 North Carpenter street, at a reported $65,000. The same brokers have sold to Mr. Raitsch the 86x120 at the southeast corner of Charleston street and Powell avenue for $6,500, on which he is erecting a four story building to cost $125,000, and to be occupied by the Chicago Sporting Goods company.

SCHOOL SUPPLY COMPANY BUYS.

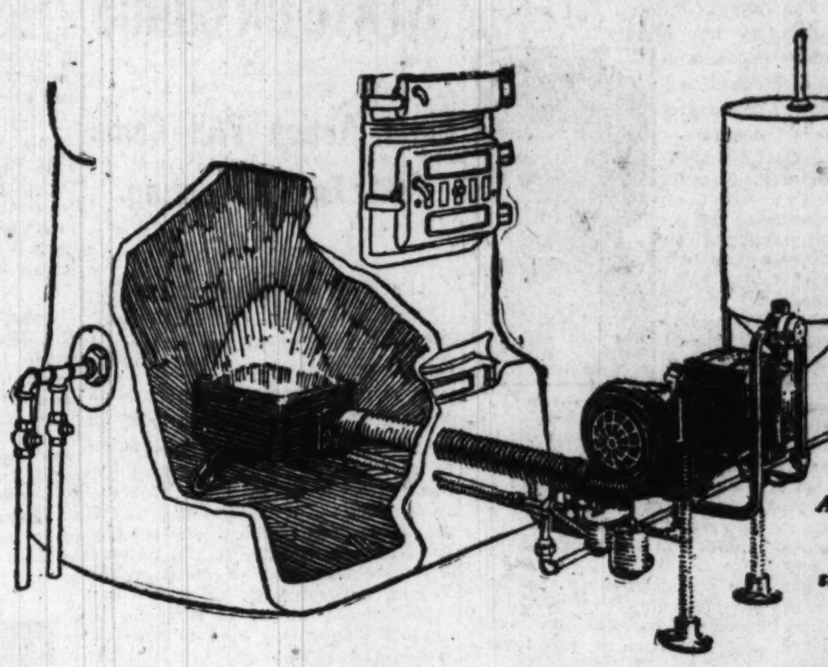
The Ideal School Supply company, 338 West Sixty-third street, has bought the three story building, 50x125, at the southwest corner of Wentworth avenue and West Thirty-seventh street, for an indicated $17,500, subject to $7,000, and will occupy the entire building.

DU PAGE COUNTY FARM SOLD.

A reported price of $25,287 has been paid by Elinor Walker to the John T. Fish heirs for the 144½ acre farm just west of Downers Grove, at the corner of Naperville and Belmont roads. This is at the rate of $175 per acre. E. F. Ringer represented both parties.

$100,000 PAID FOR COAL YARD.

The Everett Coal and Coke company has purchased from Harrie E. Everett the coal yard at the northwest corner of Kenwood and South Chicago avenues, 420x125, for an indicated price of $100,000.



Adaptable to any modern type of furnace: steam, hot water, or hot air.

Equip your furnace with Nokol burn oil without work or dirt You will never go back to coal

You can't spend one day in the house with a coal furnace without knowing what a dirty, tiresome job it is to keep it going properly; your wife knows the mess it makes from cellar to garret.

Now you can spare yourself that work and dirt if you'll equip your furnace with Nokol.

It's nothing more than a simple appliance which has already proved, to hundreds of people, that it burns oil without making dirt of any kind. It's done even more; proved that its thermostatic control feature makes it practically self tending.

It will fit your furnace; or any furnace—steam, hot water or hot air—provided it's modern and in good shape. Installation is made through the ash door after the coal grates are removed.

With Nokol you'll get uniform heat that coal couldn't maintain; at all times, automatically. That dosen't mean that Nokol will go on working forever without attention; it won't; no machine will; you've got to take care of it.

Nokol's action is always economical; it's intermittent; burns oil only when heat is needed.

See Nokol demonstrated at our nearest dealers, or write for complete information. We advise the early placing of all orders.

Price of Nokol f. o. b. Chicago $325; average cost of installation $35; tank price in proportion to size.

GERMAN REVOLT BRINGS EVENING UP ON GRAINS

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Sensational political news from Germany, with a sharp break in exchange, made the grain trade nervous, and prices moved sharply within a wide range. Net losses were ⅛c to ⅝c on distant futures of corn and ⅛c higher on March. Oats lost ⅛c to ⅝c, with July leading, and barley was off ½c for the day.

In the face of the big advance in corn for the week net gains were only 1¼c on March and 3½@3¾c on distant futures. Oats are ¼@1⅜c lower, May rye 1⅛c higher, and July ⅛c lower, and barley higher. Pork is up 55@65c, lard @30c, and short ribs 22½@35c higher than a week ago.

Trade Awaits Developments.

General evening up for the week was in corn as the result of the political situation in Germany, and a majority of traders were inclined to await further developments before taking either side of the market with any degree of freedom. So many things might happen over Sunday that locals who sold short early started to cover toward the last and at one time prices were well above the previous day's finish. The close, however, was fractionally lower.

Practically all big movements in grain for several years have been the result of political developments of prospects rather than legitimate influences. There was nothing in the news to warrant increased selling of futures, as country roads are impassable, and receipts continue very small. A panicky market prevailed at Buenos Aires, but no prices were given. A longshoremen's strike at New York had some effect early.

Light Trade in Oats.

Closing of spreads between Chicago and Winnipeg with May being bought here narrowed the May-July difference to 7½c at the last with both futures slightly lower for the day, sentiment on the whole being bearish. Offerings of cash oats were extremely small with over. May paid for No. 2 white while bids of 8c over for 5 day shipment failed to secure an offer.

Seaboard exporters bid 15@15½c over May, track Baltimore, for rye, and 100,000 were sold by outside markets for May shipment. There was a great deal of exchanging of futures for cash grain during the day. Toward the last a leading cash house sold May freely, making lower close.

Barley had an easier undertone. Spot sales were at $1.38@1.62. Receipts, 12 cars.

Provision Trade Light.

Business in provisions was light both in cash and futures. Houses with eastern connections were the best buyers of lard and while selling was scattered the close showed net losses of 7½c to 10c. Ribs were easy and 7½c to 10c, lower, while pork gained 15c to 30c, with July leading. Shipments of lard and meats for the week of 32,278,000 lbs were nearly one-half of last year. Packing here since March 1 aggregates 234,000 hogs, 2,000 less than last year. Prices follow:

GRAIN MOVEMENT LIGHT

Grain receipts at Chicago last week were 3,051,000 bu, a decrease of 1,254 bu from the previous week, but exceeded last year's by 186,000 bu, although the aggregate was 2,091,000 bu short of the five year average. There were decreases in all grains for the week, while corn receipts exceeded last year's by 858,000 bu and oats by 107,000 bu. The aggregate movement of all grains was the lightest in more than a month.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, March 13.—Liquidation from influential sources proved too much for the capacity of buyers, and with the limited support from shorts prices receded, and, while not closing at the lowest, showed losses of 8@12 points on the nearby and 30@36 points on the distant futures. The break in foreign exchange and the unfavorable German rate had an unsettling influence. Trade sentiment was mixed. Prices follow:

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

A more mixed sentiment exists in the corn trade. There is a growing impression among a great many that all the bullishness has been discounted for the time being and that the market is a sale on bulges. Those who believe that the receipts will not be heavy and come largely from interior elevators and that the movement will soon be over remain bullish and are buying on good breaks. A great deal of comment was heard yesterday about the selling of nearly 1,000,000 bu May and July for Liverpool account, which was hedging against Argentine holdings. This is expected to act as a weight on the market until thoroughly absorbed.

Action of the oat market yesterday showed an oversold condition, but the failure of the bulls to hold as it met selling orders created uneasiness toward the last. There was a great deal of uneasiness over the unsettled condition in Germany.

A local packer says that there is a lighter hog supply in the country, which he believes should result in higher prices later, while with good supplies of corn and fewer hogs, corn prices might decline toward the last of the spring months.

The guaranteed price for wheat to producers will expire by limitation at midnight May 31, according to Julius H. Barnes, president of the Grain corporation, in a letter to the American Coöperative manager, unless Congress grants an extension of thirty days. The latter has been suggested, but was not regarded with favor by the house agricultural committee.

Goodland, Ind., has shipped 113 cars of grain since last October, and, according to Frank Carey, who is out for Lamson Bros. & Co., only 6 cars went to Chicago on account of outside markets outbidding the former. Feeding was heavy the last winter, due to the severe weather. Farmers want $1.50 for the corn still in their hands and 90c for oats at loading stations.

An increase of around 3,000,000 lbs contract lard in the last two weeks is expected to be shown in the semi-monthly report to be issued on Monday. Estimated stocks now are 44,000,000 lbs, against 11,000,000 lbs last year.

Argentine exports of grain for the week were estimated at 4,995,000 bu wheat, 1,600,000 bu corn, and 900,000 bu oats, compared with 725,000 bu wheat, 315,000 bu corn, and no oats last year. Argentine cables have been delayed for several days. Wheat was quoted 35@35½c higher, corn 4@7c lower, and oats 3c higher at the close Thursday, while Friday's close showed a decline of 7@8c on wheat and 3c on oats. Loading of grains at the ports is slow.

The government report gives Texas 99,372,000 bu of corn on the farms March 1, the largest reserves ever held. Last year there was 9,750,000 bu. The percentage of merchantable corn of last year's crop was 85, compared with 50 the previous year and 43 two years ago. Texas has the third largest reserves of the country, Iowa leading with 166,490,000 bu and Illinois with 114,380,000 bu.

F. F. ("Capt.") Williams has sold his Board of Trade membership and bought a farm near Buffalo, where he intends to make his future home.

Interstate Board Defiant.

The decision of the Supreme court that the interstate commission must consider the present value of the real estate owned by the railroad companies in appraising their properties gives investors a basis for hope of better things in the future—but for hope only. In effect it orders the commission to use plain common sense and ordinary fairness in hearing testimony and reaching conclusions, but still leaves the whole subject in the hands of the commissioners.

The case decided was started by the Kansas City Southern railway because the commission refused to hear testimony on the present value of rights of way and terminals as compared with their original cost. The commission ruled that present values had nothing to do with the matter, because the land could be worth no more for transportation purposes now than when it was first bought, no matter if its market value had increased tenfold. The Supreme court finds that ruling illegal and orders the commission to hear testimony on the present value of the land.

The attitude of the commissioners is said to be that, while they will hear testimony, they are still at liberty to give small weight to it in fixing the final valuation on which a 5½ per cent return must be allowed. They also suggest that the hearing of this testimony will take so much time that the basing of rates on it will be a matter for the far distant future.

If the commissioners are quoted correctly, the whole broad question of whether the railroads are to be given income enough to pay dividends on capital already invested and attract new capital for necessary additions and improvements is still open, and the men who expect to decide it have not yet changed their viewpoint.

Security owners and life insurance holders should let the interstate commerce commission know that they have rights which they will not see stolen from them under the camouflage of rate making.

Brief Answers.

C. H. R.—The Western Maryland railway is bonded to the average amount of $87,540 a mile. Its first 4s are a first lien on 334 miles of road at the rate of more than $139,000 a mile. In 1918 the road nearly earned operating expenses. Last year operating deficit was larger.

W. W., Grayville, Ill.—The income bonds of the St. Louis and San Francisco railway are secured under general mortgage and are entitled to interest if earned. Interest is not cumulative. In 1918 interest was not fully earned, but was paid out of government compensation. Last year earnings were somewhat larger.

PRODUCE MARKETS

South Water street merchants, it is said, are allowing produce that arrives by express to remain in the depots, owing to the expressmen's strike. This reduces the supplies in hand for distribution. Eggs were bought at prices unchanged to ¼c lower, with firsts at 42¾@43c for fresh, while March deliveries sold at 40c, with 29 cars sold. Receipts for the week, 72,073 cases, against 81,184 cases last year.

Live poultry prices were unchanged Saturday at 38c for fowls, 39c for soft meat spring chickens, and 25c for roosters.

Supplies of potatoes were larger, the week's arrivals being 239 cars, against 180 cars the previous week and 265 cars last year. There were 32 cars on team track. Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Michigan round white stock, in car lots on track, $5.40@5.50 per 100 lbs.

BUTLER BROTHERS
New Stock

The recent decision of the United States Supreme Court regarding the non-taxability of stock dividends has again called attention to the attractive possibilities of BUTLER BROTHERS' New Stock. The old high-priced shares have been divided into new shares of smaller par value, and considerable amount of this new stock remains in the treasury of the Company. Just what disposition will be made of this treasury stock, of course, cannot be determined at present time, but in view of the long continued policy of the Company to declare at intervals stock dividends, bonuses, rights, etc., in addition to the regular cash dividends, the recent favorable decision is of peculiar interest to the present stockholders. Butler Brothers is the largest mail order house in the world doing business exclusively with retailers, and is perhaps the premier investment security of the city of Chicago, based on a strictly merchandising enterprise. The stockholders have always enjoyed the most liberal treatment on the part of the Company. Recently we prepared an analytical circular describing in detail the New Stock, which circular sets forth tables of earnings, record of sales, profits, dividends and gives a brief history of the business with an explanation of the new plan of capitalization approved of at the last annual meeting of the stockholders. A second printing of this circular has been prepared, and upon request we will be pleased to forward you a copy.

Sheridan Road is Chicago's highest class residence thoroughfare, and Wilson Avenue is its principal business section on the north shore. This location, therefore, at the intersection of these two streets, is ideal for this high class hotel.

Valuation—Income
The ground and building, when completed, are conservatively appraised at $3,800,000. The net annual earnings are estimated to exceed $440,000, which is nearly three times the greatest annual interest charge before any bonds mature.

Safeguards
Ample real estate security; a first lien on the income, a sufficient portion of which must be deposited monthly to promptly meet semi-annual interest and maturing bonds; title guaranteed by the Chicago Title & Trust Co.; ample fire insurance deposited to protect bondholders; the completion of the building and the lien of these bonds are guaranteed by the undersigned.

General Information

NEW YORK BANKS BUILD UP THEIR EXCESS RESERVE

Through a large accession of cash, better than $34,000,000, the excess reserve of the New York Associated banks was built up over $26,000,000, so that the item now stands at $29,040,420. The figures were a decided improvement over what had been expected.

There was the largest gain in deposits shown in weeks, $59,484,000. The loan expansion was moderate, and the operations of the treasury department were of small moment. The general position was one to suggest steadiness in money rates, barring extraordinary outgoes of cash next Monday on account of tax payments.

PROBLEM

If you bought four shares of 7% cumulative preferred stock of an old established corporation, at say 97, and received a stock dividend of one share of the same stock, your five shares would cost you $78 per share.

Should you wish to know more about such a proposition, an inquiry only is necessary.

The New York Times.

New York, March 13.—[Special.]— After making progress forward in the first half hour of trading today the stock market wavered for a time upon receipt of rumors that the German government had fallen.

Shortly, however, fresh buying of steel, motor and railroad issues made its appearance, and before the end of the trading period some notable advances had been scored—notable, that is, in view of the fact that a sizable amount of profit-taking sales had been looked for at the close of a week marked by more optimism over the credit outlook than had been experienced before in this year.

Reading Leads Rail.

Reading lead the rails with an upturn of more than 3 points. Industrial stocks which stood in the forefront of this department were influenced by special factors, expectations of stock dividends and the pinching of a short interest, but the rise of the rails was widely distributed. Professional operations dominated, and for that reason it might be easy to lay too much stress on the day's advance.

Wall street ended the week in a more cheerful frame of mind than at the beginning, although indications of improving sentiment had been discernible the week before. Income tax day was approached with only a flurry in call money rates, and all confidence was expressed in banking circles that signs of strain would be light.

Gains on Exchange.

The sharp advances of the foreign exchanges, especially of sterling, were evidently the product in large part of headlong speculative operations and the quick reactions now and then showed traders to be unwilling to carry on very far in one direction, yet the quotation of $3.67½ for sterling sight drafts which stood at the end of the week, disclosed an impressive gain from recent discouraging levels.

The idea lately prevailing in some quarters that much depreciated exchanges forecast of themselves coming bankruptcy for certain European countries was dispelled by the rise of rates. Furthermore, the announced plan of England and France to retire the Anglo-French loan next autumn aided financial sentiment on this side by showing that the foreign business and banking leaders were looking far ahead and making preparations for large transactions.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, March 13.—Cotton goods today were firmer, with gray goods more active. Yarns were irregular, with low numbers of carded stock being offered very cheap. Raw silk was steady and quiet. Linens were firm and quiet. Wool markets were dull.

QUIT NAGGING AT US, PACKERS BEG OF STATESMEN

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. S., March 13.—[Special.]—Pending packing control legislation is described by the Institute of American Meat Packers in a brief filed with the house agricultural committee today as a long step toward socialization of all private industry and heading in the direction of paternalism.

The packers make a plea to be let alone to work out their problems now that they have voluntarily agreed with the government to divorce themselves of business unallied with the packing industry.

"The creation of an expensive commission to deal with a single kind of business," says the brief, which was produced before the committee by Representative Rainey of the stockyards district in Chicago, "will constitute a precedent for the future creation of other commissions to deal with other selected industries.

"The Entering Wedge."

"It is merely the entering wedge for similar regulation of all private business engaged in interstate commerce, and will be a long step in the direction of the nationalization or socialization of all private industry.

"This bill (Gronna bill in senate) is heading in the direction of paternalism and government operation."

After reviewing the recent government decree the brief continues:

"On account of the constant agitation against the packers during the last few years, and particularly the charge that the large packers threatened a monopoly of the American table, and in order to assure the American people that there was no danger or possibility of a food monopoly, the large packers met the views of the government and agreed to the decree above referred to.

"It is false to charge that the packers gave up certain businesses because of guilt. They deny having violated any law.

"Now it is proposed not only to embrace the terms of this decree in legislation but to extend its terms by legislation which will lead to untold confusion and conflict, not to speak of the injustice that such action would work to this industry as a whole, including hundreds of smaller packers, against whom no claim of wrongdoing has ever been made."

Rivals on the Job.

"As the larger packers have yielded businesses which could never have been taken from them by litigation, and probably not by legislation, it is natural, from a selfish standpoint, that the butter, eggs, and cheese people, seeing so much accomplished against their competitors, should seize upon this as the psychological time to attempt to eliminate the packers from these lines also; this could only result in lessened competition in and higher prices for such products.

"The settlement with the government is mentioned only to call solemnly to the attention of congress and the people that this is just as much a question for all the people as it is for the packers, whether the efficiency and benefits of this great industry are to be preserved for the people.

"It is time to stop and think before irreparable harm is done. It is time for congress and the people to become familiar with the great fundamental principles underlying this vital industry and see that it is accorded fair play.

U. S. TO GO AFTER GERMANY'S VAST FOREIGN TRADE

Washington, March 13.—[By the Associated Press.]—A plan under which American steamship companies would take over and operate with American ships the sixty pre-war world trade routes of the Hamburg-American line is being worked out by the shipping board, subject, it is understood, to the approval of the German company.

The proposal was approved today by the senate commerce committee, 10 to 4, after Chairman Payne had explained it in executive session.

There was an apparent difference of opinion among committee members as to the exact plans of the board, but both Chairman Jones and Mr. Payne subsequently said the board would not be a party to the proposed arrangements with the Hamburg-American line; that its part merely would be to furnish ships either through sale or lease and to lend its coöperation in obtaining this business for American shipping interests.

Giant Business Ready.

Whether the plan originated with the German company or with the board was not made clear. It was said, however, that any arrangement made would be a coöperative one; that the Hamburg-American line had the port facilities for handling its pre-war business, but also to South America, the orient, and other parts of the world.

Shipping board officials said the business probably would be too great for any one American company to handle, and that if the arrangements went through several companies probably would operate the immense fleet necessary to take care of the enormous volume of business which the German company had before the war.

Under the original plan it was proposed that the board itself make a working arrangement with the Hamburg-American line, but this plan was disapproved by the board.

Payne Issues Statement.

In this connection Chairman Payne today made public the following memorandum which was submitted to the senate commerce committee:

"The board has carefully considered the different matters involved in a proposition to make a working arrangement with the Hamburg-American line, involving the shipping board's taking over the sixty services formerly served by that line.

"It is the sense of the board:

"1. That no direct arrangement be made by the board with the Hamburg-line.

"2. That it is very desirable that an American company or group of companies make an arrangement by which this business may be secured.

Board to Help U. S. Firms.

"3. The board is prepared to cooperate with an American company or companies in the sale or chartering of ships to enable such American companies to secure this outlet, the terms of any contract which may be made with the Hamburg-American line being subject to the approval of the board."

While shipping board officials would not concede that there had been any negotiations with the Hamburg-American line, it was understood that the company was disposed to enter into a coöperative contract with American steamship lines.

Details of the contract remain to be worked out as the board, it was explained, was not prepared to make any further move in the direction of this development of American commerce without the approval of the senate committee because a technical state of war exists still between the United States and Germany.

BETTER FEELING IN HIDES.

A slightly better feeling is reported in the hide market, although the bulk of the tanners are out and unwilling to operate, being afraid of the surrounding conditions, which they think should be more stabilized. Calf skins are off 50c per lb from last summer's high prices and 20c to 30c since the first of the year, showing the greatest decline.

Splendid Paying Chicago Property at a Bargain

Millions and millions of dollars are being invested in new Apartment Hotel construction in Chicago at this time, and it will be years before adequate hotel accommodations of this kind are provided.

The Edgewater-Beach, Sisson, Cooper-Carlton are but a few of the comparatively new Apartment Hotels, and they do not begin to supply the demand as evidenced by new construction of this kind under way in Chicago at this time and contemplated for the immediate future.

These are good investments not only for the present but for the future, as evidenced by the class of business men behind them.

How much better an investment would it be to purchase outright a choicely located, modern Apartment Hotel at less than fifty per cent of the present cost of construction?

I have that sort of a proposition to offer. You can obtain immediate action on your money. Your income will start the day you purchase this property instead of your losing interest on a large portion of your capital during the long period of construction.

This proposition will require a cash investment of from two hundred to five hundred thousand dollars, depending upon the size of the loan you might wish to carry on the property.

Here is an opportunity to deal directly with the owner and save the agent's, brokerage or commission for yourself.

Don't answer this advertisement unless you are financially able to handle a proposition of this size, subject to your investigation and complete satisfaction.

The Proof of the Pudding Is the Eating

The letter shown above from Mr. C. J. Risselada, President and Managing Director of a large Dutch Mortgage Company with headquarters at Utrecht, Holland, says in part:

> Whenever I came to a district in which my company had loans, I picked out and designated to your firm's representative a number of loans that I desired to see in that district. These were shown to me, and I take great pleasure in stating that all the loans I inspected are, according to my opinion, safe, some being, of course, better than others in having a wider margin, and many of them being very good and extra choice. There are no loans of which the margin of security was not at least 50% of the land value exclusive of the buildings and other improvements.
> Allow me further to express my admiration for the organization of your business in the Southern States, and to thank you for your assistance and courtesy, whereby I was enabled to inspect all the loans I wanted to inspect.

Mr. Risselada's company has invested in the last 7 years considerably over one million dollars in Forman Farm Mortgages and we feel that his letter is a strong endorsement of our farm mortgage investments.

For 35 years George M. Forman & Company have been making loans on Southern Farm Lands. Because of the systematic investigation conducted in making these loans not one dollar of principal or interest has ever been lost by any customer.

You may safely invest your savings in FORMAN FARM MORTGAGES and FORMAN FARM MORTGAGE GOLD BONDS, yielding 6% to 6½% interest. We have a very desirable monthly payment plan.

Our two booklets, "Forman Farm Mortgages and the Forman Monthly Payment Plan" and "How Forman Farm Mortgages Are Made," explain in detail our method of conducting our business. We shall be glad to send them to you free of charge.

FOR SALE

An old established farm machinery manufacturing business which has grown up in the shadow of larger concerns and now dominates its particular field. Net profits last year before deduction for federal taxes nearly $60,000.00. Profits this year on orders already booked with material on hand will run even larger. Agency force established for years covers 25 states and many foreign countries as well as Canada and Mexico. This, together with consistent advertising for years, makes the goodwill of immense value and demand very stable. Valuable patents with many years to run. Important patterns in metal, small patterns gated.

This business can be bought, due to disagreement among principal stockholders regarding expansion, for $250,000.00 lock, stock, and barrel.

The present executives will remain in charge of operations as long as purchaser requires, within reasonable limits.

Ample capital in shape of raw and finished stock, cash, receivables, and bank credit, makes further investment at this time unnecessary.

This is an excellent opportunity for a farm machinery manufacturer to add a strong line to his present ones or for some individual to obtain a profitable, well established business.

We do not care to entertain any proposition except outright sale.

CHOOSE YOUR PHONOGRAPH AFTER CAREFUL COMPARISON
The most unsatisfactory way to buy a talking machine is traveling from store to store. Your memory plays you false. Hard to recall the great variety of tone, prices, sizes, finishes and the many other important points that enter into the purchase of an instrument.
Here you can examine them all side by side. Brunswick, Columbia, Victor, Pathe, Edison, Sonora, Aeolian. Compare all those essential points and know you are satisfied, then BUY on terms to suit you.

"RESTGOOD" HAIR MATTRESSES AT WHOLESALE PRICES.

Every mattress authority in the world will tell you that the best mattress material ever discovered is curled hair. It is also the most expensive, and therefore you usually find them only in the best hotels and the homes of the well to do.

The cost of hair, its selection, scouring, sterilizing, and curing are the same elements that make a woolen blanket worth more than cotton, or silk hose worth more than lisle.

Best curled hair makes pre-eminently the most comfortable and most sanitary mattress ever constructed. Curled hair is softer, more springy, more porous, nonabsorbent; never gets lumpy or hard, and will last a lifetime. "Restgood" Sanitary Curled Hair Mattresses are the highest grade hair mattresses made. We use only the best hair, the best ticking, and the best workmanship. If you live inside the city limits of Chicago you can come to our factory, formerly the Bedding Dept., of Wilson & Co., and we will sell you a "Restgood" Hair Mattress and Box Springs at the wholesale price. Just about the retail price of a good felt or cotton mattress and about 50% less than the retail price of an equally good hair mattress. You can see for yourself—the material and the making. Take any Archer-av. or 35th-st. car or drive to 35th and Archer. Ask for Mr. Underwood.

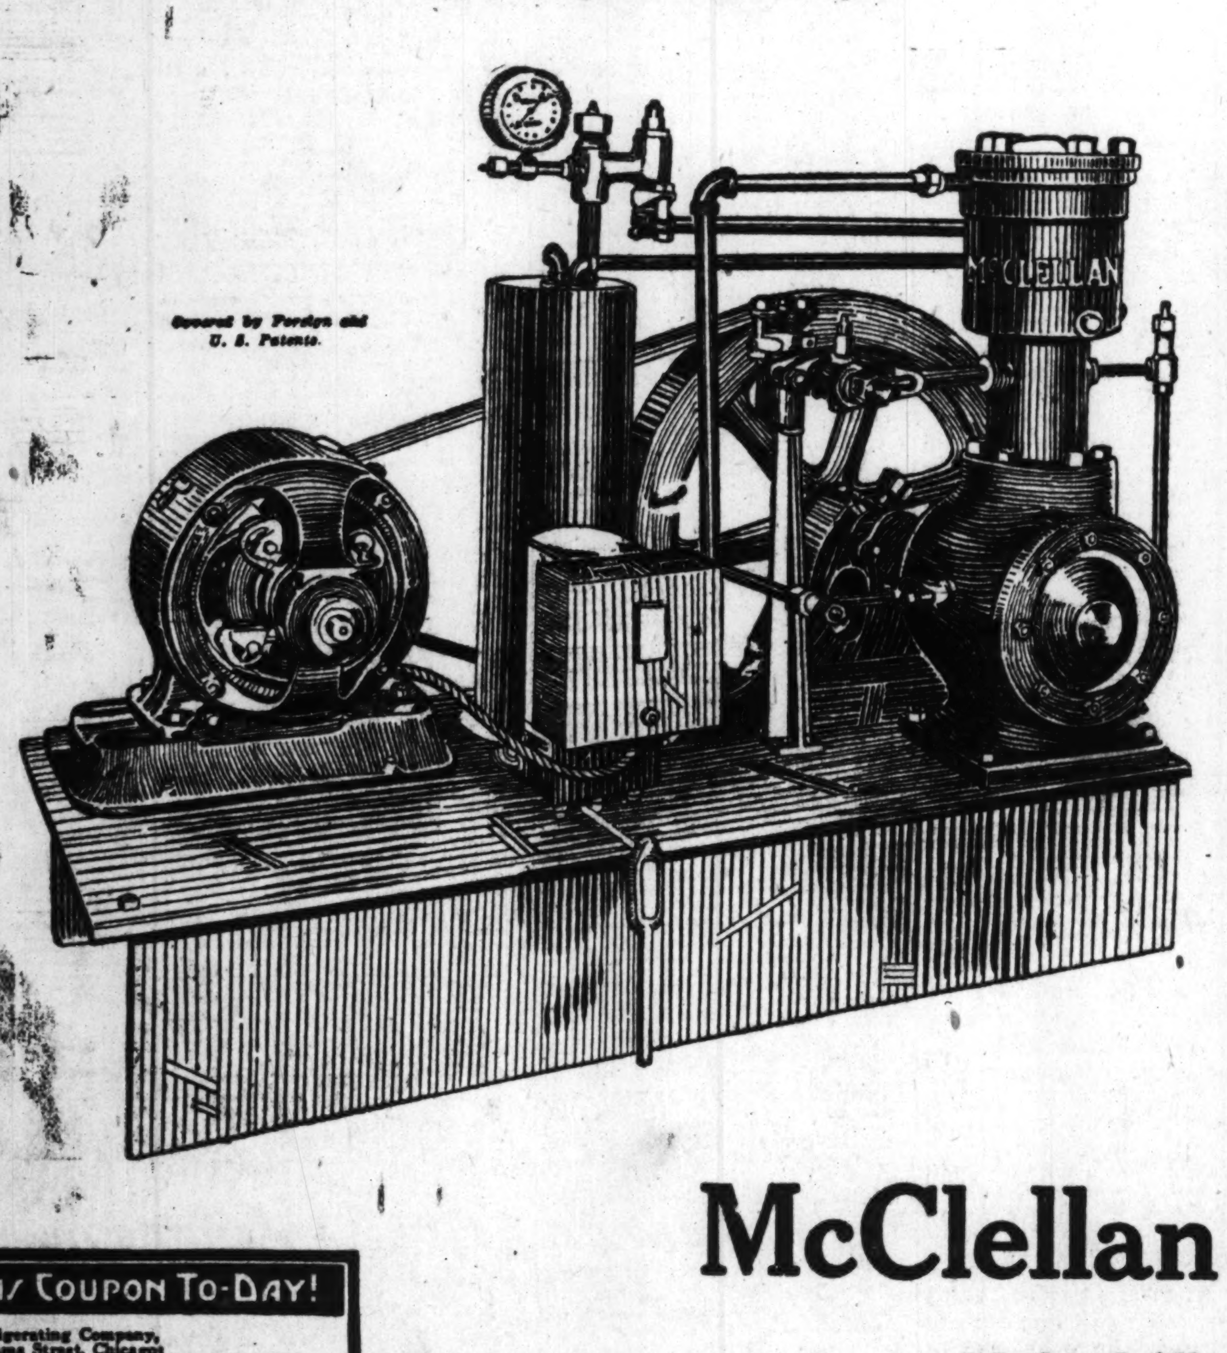
The "McCLELLAN" Eliminates the Ice Problem

The McClellan Refrigerating Machine produces perfect refrigeration at less cost than ice as proved by five years of service in hundreds of installations.

—For Markets and Grocers
—For Restaurants and Hotels
—For Clubs and Hospitals
—For Apartments and Private Homes
—And in other places requiring perfect refrigeration

The McClellan is run by electricity and operates as easily as switching on your electric lights or turning on the water faucet. It's dependable and gives clean, sanitary results. It saves you at least two-thirds the cost of ice.

COMPARATIVE COST	Ice Bills Averaging Per Month	Average with McClellan Refrigeration Per Month
	$40 to $ 80	$10 to $20
	$80 to $150	$20 to $36



Covered by Foreign and U. S. Patents.

NO MATTER who you are, you can't fail to be interested in this statement. You use a refrigerator or you consume foodstuffs which have been entrusted to the care of a refrigerator. In either case your pocketbook, your business and your health is affected.

To consumers of ice the installation of a McClellan means that from the day of its installation perfect refrigeration is always available.

Ice refrigeration is doomed! Think of its drawbacks, messy, dirty, unsanitary refrigerators, uncertain ice supply, exorbitant ice prices, and a makeshift at its best.

Then consider the new way of refrigeration—McClellan Refrigeration produced by the McClellan Refrigerating Machine attached to any refrigerator.

When you eliminate the iceman with a McClellan you eliminate every iota of dependency on ice and get rid of all the unsatisfactory conditions resulting from the use of ice.

The pure dry air which the McClellan assures removes all the possibilities of waste from meats, fruits and vegetables—the original delicious flavor and crispness is retained in fruits and vegetables.

Furthermore, the McClellan will make ice for you.

In the Home, it will freeze ices and desserts and will make ice for table and other uses.

The McClellan is made in six sizes to take care of your requirements. The cost depends upon the amount of work and materials for your particular installation; but in every case your savings on ice bills and foodstuffs will more than cover the original cost of the McClellan Machine in a very short time.

Read what the McClellan Refrigerating Machine has done for others and what it can do for you.

HENRY DALLAS MARKET
Pittsburgh, Pa.

McClellan Refrigerating Co.,
564-570 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: I am exceedingly pleased with the performance of the No. 5 One Ton McClellan Refrigerating Machine which you installed in my Market the first part of last September. It has operated perfectly and maintained temperatures around 34 degrees in my Cooler and 20 to 24 degrees in the Freezing Chamber. My electric bills are very small, as compared with my former ice bills. My meat trimmings are practically eliminated.

I formerly lost 40 pounds per day on meat trimmings. My loss now is only 40 pounds per week.

The saving on this alone amounts to several times the cost of my electric bill, and my meat is kept in perfect condition. I can cheerfully recommend your machine.

Very respectfully yours,
(Signed) HENRY DALLAS.

A McClellan Machine has given me perfect refrigeration for four years and an average saving of $18.00 per week.—Geo. Knab, Restaurant, 221 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Wilson has exercised more power than ever before fell to the lot of an American woman. During the illness of her husband, the president, she has been forced to protect him against the strain of official business. She has received ambassadors of foreign powers and corresponded with members of the cabinet. The Paris newspaper, Midi, commenting on the American situation, says: "Circumstances give the sovereign power to a woman not elected by the nation."

For All Around the House

EVERY room needs the brightening touch of Johnson's Prepared Wax. It will rejuvenate your furniture, woodwork, floors and linoleum—preserve the original finish—and give your home that bright, well-groomed appearance.

Johnson's Prepared Wax imparts a beautiful, artistic lustre of great beauty and durability. It gives a hard, dry, velvety polish which will not collect dust or show finger prints.

Johnson's Prepared Wax polishes perfectly over any finish. It forms a thin, protecting coat over the varnish, similar to the service rendered by a piece of plate glass over a desk, table or dresser top. It prevents checking and cracking.

JOHNSON'S
Paste - Liquid - Powdered
PREPARED WAX

Johnson's Prepared Wax is made in paste, liquid and powdered form. Use the Liquid Wax for polishing furniture, leather goods, woodwork and automobiles. We advise the Paste Wax for polishing floors of all kinds—wood, linoleum, tile, marble, etc.

For a Perfect Dancing Surface

Just sprinkle Johnson's Powdered Wax over any floor. The feet of the dancers will spread the wax, polishing the floor, and immediately put it in perfect condition for dancing.

For years our employees have been our partners and share the profits. Because of this personal interest unusual care and skill enter into the manufacture of the Johnson products—over-head is reduced to the minimum—and we are enabled to sell at a very slight increase over pre-war prices.

Your dealer has "JOHNSON'S"—don't accept a substitute.

THREE GREAT AMERICANS WHOSE BIRTHDAYS COME THIS WEEK

They Served Two Terms Each as President.

James Madison was born March 16, 1751, in Virginia. He contributed to the framing and adoption of the constitution and maintained our dignity on the seas. He died June 28, 1836.

Andrew Jackson was born March 15, 1767, in North Carolina. He won the battle of New Orleans from the British in 1815, our only land victory in the war of 1812; invaded and seized Florida from Spain in 1818; was first elected president in 1828. As president he introduced, unfortunately, the spoils system into American politics. He was called "Old Hickory." Jackson died June 8, 1845, and was buried at the "Hermitage," near Nashville, Tenn.

Grover Cleveland was born March 18, 1837, in New Jersey. He was the only president who held two terms with an intervening president. He stood like a rock for civil service, against free silver, and sternly warned Great Britain against encroachment in Venezuela. He died June 24, 1908.

"THAT WELL-DRESSED LOOK"

HUSBANDS and brothers have always been so superior about their ability to buy their clothes without "shopping." They've viewed with amused tolerance our painstaking selections of materials, endless fittings and anxiety as to "how it would look!"

It hasn't been their masculine efficiency as they'd like us to believe—not a bit of it! They've always been able to purchase nationally known coats and suits, smartly cut and well tailored. The trousers raised an inch, perhaps, the sleeves let down, and out they've walked, looking fit and self satisfied!

They never worried as to whether the fabric would wear well or the trim lines hold their shape. The little label in their collar was the signed assurance of the makers that the best that could be bought was in that coat or suit. But today we surely have caught up with them. We buy our Wooltex Tailormades with the same easy assurance they've always had. Their snug shoulders are no snugger than those in our Wooltex Tailormades, their collars no flatter, their lines no cleaner cut than ours!

We've learned to insist that our coats and suits be "signed" by tailors—tailors who are kept busy living up to their reputation for giving one "that well-dressed look." That's just what that signature described below means —a "well-dressed look" from the time you first try it on until you finally discard it for your new Wooltex Tailormade!

Ask the salesperson, when you go to seek your Wooltex Tailormade, for "The Tailored Woman," which is a fashion magazine most authoritative. If you prefer to write us for it, do so and we will mail it to you.

For the shop nearest your home showing Wooltex Tailormades, write us. They are being shown simultaneously by "The Tailored Woman," the exclusive shop on Fifth Avenue at Fiftieth Street, New York, and by

CHAS. A. STEVENS & BROS.

Wooltex Tailor-mades

This signature on its bit of white satin appears in every genuine Wooltex Tailormade. It is the promise of your tailors that your "Well-Dressed Look" is not for a week or a month but for the life of the tailormade.

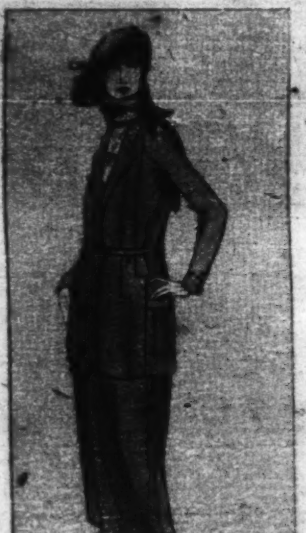
Wooltex Tailormades are priced at $75, $55, $65, $75, up to $125

The Peerless

There's nothing about this coat to prevent your wearing it at any time or for any purpose you choose. It's the type that you'll wear more often than any other coat you may have. The front is straight, double-breast, while the back is full. The collar is convertible, and the pockets deep vertical. It is semi-lined and comes in Green, Gray, Tan and Golden Tan mixtures of Fancy Tweed.

The Detox

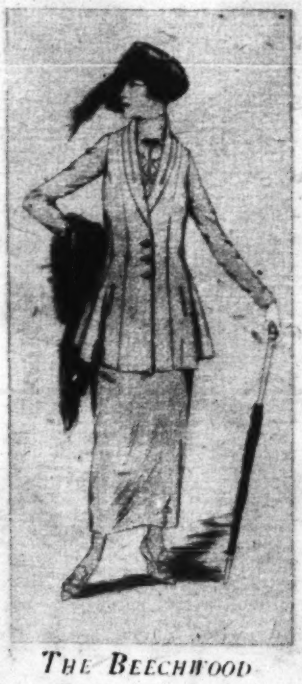
You may wear the collar high or low and the belt can give three different effects. Worn all round, it gives a trench coat effect; worn only across the front, the back becomes rippling and graceful; and by removing the belt altogether you have a full, loose top coat. The tunnel pockets are especially good. Full lining of Peau-de-cygne. In Tweed Velour the colors are Green Mixture, Black-and-White Mixture and two shades of Brown Mixture. In Silvertip Bolivia, they are Navy, French Blue, Sparrow and Dove; in Homespun in Blue, Bright Tan and Brown Mixtures.



The Wykeham

Tricotine in Black, Navy or Hemp is your selection in this little Wooltex Tailormade. The crisp, sharp lines are emphasized by the rows of cording tucks and the angle of the reveres. The pockets of both coat and skirt are box plaited, the belt is of self material and the skirt full in the back.

THE PEERLESS THE DETOX



The Beechwood

Rarely does the woman of goodly proportions find a suit to give her such trim, youthful lines as these. With its flat back, flaring hips and snug shoulder and sleeves it is extremely smart. The skirt is skirred in back and has slot pockets to match the coat. In Poiret Twill it comes in Black, Navy, Brown, Sponge, Chinchilla Gravel, Blue Devil. In Tinseltone, you may have it in Rose tan, Green blue or Dove.

The Underwear a Hundred Women Ordered Made

A HUNDRED women who had never had satisfactory knit underwear! Some had one difficulty—some had another.

Julius Kayser determined that they should be satisfied.

Starting with the finest, sheerest, combed yarn, Kayser cut one union suit at a time, by hand. Sloped the shoulders, so they would not slip. Made the back nice and narrow, the front full. Put the triggest tailored finish on some—sewed the daintiest silk ribbons into others.

The first hundred suits finished were sent to the hundred women. Then their comments began to come—"Can't I get more than just one of these wonderful suits?" "How did you make the seat so it never gaps?" "I never before had a vest with enough room at the arms." "At last a union suit that really fits me."

You can now buy these very same Kayser Marvelfit suits, and they cost no more than the ordinary kind. Julius Kayser & Company, New York.

Wildroot Hair Tonic is guaranteed to relieve dandruff, and to improve your hair more than any other hair tonic or we will pay you.

Wildroot Hair Tonic used after a shampoo is particularly beneficial. It not only makes it easier to do up your hair afterwards, but helps keep the scalp entirely free from dandruff and invigorates the hair roots.

Wildroot Hair Tonic is for sale by all good druggists and is used by all first-class barbers and hairdressers.

We guarantee this hair treatment

1. Wring a wash cloth out of hot water and press tightly over scalp for a few minutes—this opens the pores.
2. Wet the scalp with warm water, apply a little Wildroot Liquid Shampoo. Massage the creamy lather well into the pores with a gentle, rotary motion.
3. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. Dry thoroughly.

If you do not say this is the best shampoo you ever used, we will cheerfully refund your money.

Under our iron-clad guarantee of more-than-satisfaction — you can obtain Wildroot Liquid Shampoo, or Wildroot Hair Tonic at any good drug store, barber or hairdressing establishment.

PROPER SHAMPOOING is what makes beautiful hair. It brings out all the real life, lustre, natural wave and color, and makes it soft, fresh and luxuriant.

Your hair simply needs frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, but it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soap. The free alkali in ordinary soaps, soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it. This is why discriminating women use

COCOANUT OIL SHAMPOO

This clear, pure, and entirely greaseless product cannot possibly injure, and does not dry the scalp or make the the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it.

Two or three teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil.

The hair dries quickly and evenly; and has the appearance of being much thicker and heavier than it is. It leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy and easy to do up.

You can get WATKINS MULSIFIED COCOANUT OIL SHAMPOO at any drug store. A 4-ounce bottle should last for months.

HOW TO FIGHT THE LITTLE FOES WHICH WORK TO MAR YOUR SKIN

YOUR complexion is surrounded by enemies.

There is that inward enemy that shines the face.

There is the tricksy breeze that dries and dulls the unprotected skin. There is dust that clogs the pores. There is time.

Each one of these wicked little foes is striving morning, noon and night to ruin your good looks. Be always on your guard against their wiles.

EXPOSURE to wind, sunlight and dust coarsen your skin. Skin specialists say that you can protect your complexion from this injury by applying a protective cream before every outing.

Of course, you can't apply a cold cream before going out — cold cream leaves your face too oily.

Lightly touch your face and hands with Pond's Vanishing Cream. It is made precisely for daytime and evening use. It has not a bit of oil in it, so it cannot make your face shine. In this way you can keep your face appealingly soft and smooth no matter how much time you spend out of doors.

YOU never can tell when that treacherous enemy, an ugly glisten, will creep upon you unawares and make you look your worst.

This can not happen if you powder in such a way that it will last. The right powder foundation is essential if you are to stay powdered. For this you can not use a cold cream. The oil in it soon comes out in a worse glisten than ever.

Before powdering rub a tiny bit of Pond's Vanishing Cream on your face. Then notice how smoothly the powder goes on, how natural it looks. It will stay on indefinitely. Until you wash your face it cannot shine again.

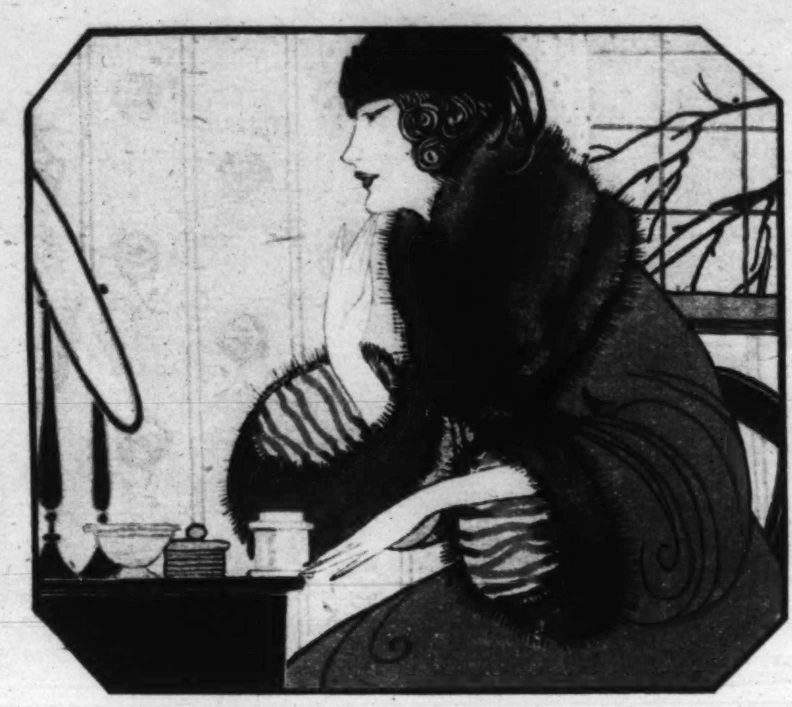
DUST is a subtle enemy. When your skin grows dull, loses its clearness, it is simply an announcement that the pores have become clogged deep down with tiny particles of dust.

To remove these, Vanishing Cream is not enough! Only a cream with a good oil base will suffice.

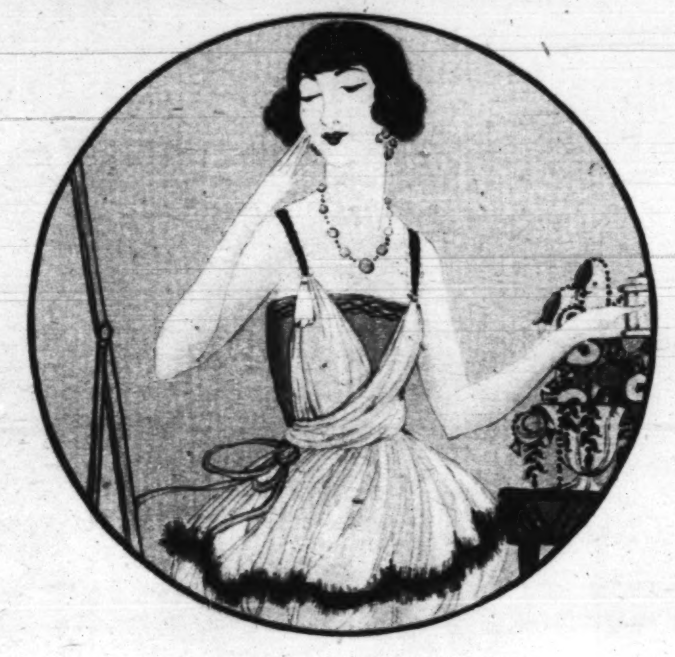
Before you go to bed, and after a train or motor trip, rub Pond's Cold Cream into the pores and wipe it off. It contains just enough oil to work deep into the pores and thoroughly cleanse them. You will be shocked at yourself when you see how much dirt you were harboring.

TIME, too, seems to have a grudge against us. It is busy every minute, etching little lines around the eyes and mouth. You can erase these by massaging them away at night with Pond's Cold Cream. It is especially made just the consistency to give a perfect massage.

When you go downtown, stop at the drug store or any department store and buy a jar or tube of each cream. You need never again fear the little flaws that ruin one's appearance.

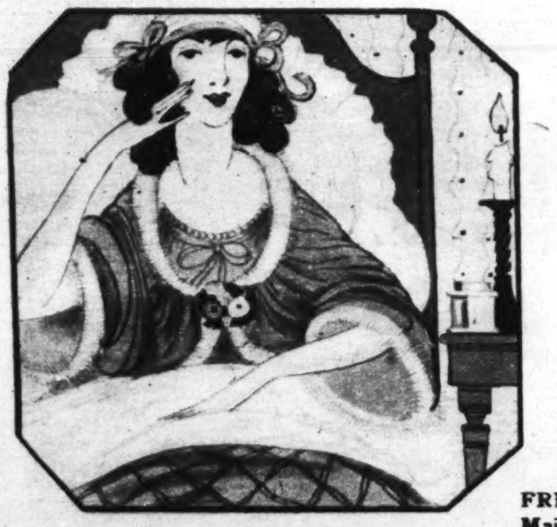


To foil wind, sun and dust, use a bit of Pond's Vanishing Cream before going out—especially before motoring



The same greaseless Pond's Vanishing Cream makes the powder stay on

Before retiring remove the dust from the pores with a cream with an oil base —Pond's Cold Cream

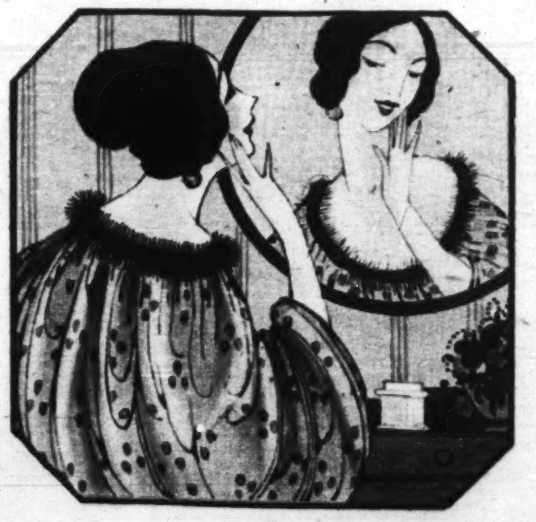


YOUR SKIN NEEDS TWO CREAMS

Every skin needs two creams. For daytime and evening a cream specially made without oil, so that it cannot reappear in a shine. This is Pond's Vanishing Cream. It has no oil and cannot make your face shiny even for a moment. It is based on an ingredient which is prescribed by world famous physicians for its softening effect. Use it for protection from the weather, for a powder foundation and for freshening the skin at a moment's notice.

On the other hand, for cleansing, for supplying a lack of oil, and for massage, Pond's Cold Cream should be used. Its formula was worked out to supply just the amount of oil required to give it the fullest cleansing power, and just the smoothness to work well into the skin.

Neither of these creams will foster the growth of hair on the face.



Tiny deepening lines can be kept at bay with a Pond's Cold Cream massage

Every Day People Judge You by Your Nails

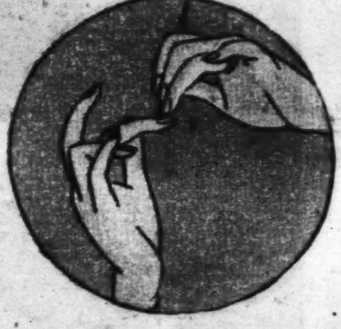
HAVE THEY THE BEAUTY THEY SO EASILY CAN GAIN?

"HOW beautifully turned out, how correct," you thought—until you caught a glimpse of her nails.

Then, "Shocking!" you said to yourself.

And that one glimpse of her carelessly groomed hands left an impression that you never forgot.

Do you realize how easy it is to keep your nails lovely—so lovely that they lend you that assurance which comes from the knowledge that even the most critical eye can find nothing but immaculate perfection?



This method is the secret of the perfect, even cuticle of many fashionable women

The secret of beautiful nails lies in the care of the cuticle. This is the most important part of a manicure. To cut the cuticle or force it back with a sharp instrument is ruinous. Such rough methods are the cause of most ragged, unkempt nails. The more you cut the cuticle the faster it grows. It becomes tough, thick, and hangnails appear.

You can have nails that add to your attractiveness

You can keep your nails lovely without injuring the cuticle. The Cutex way of manicuring will keep them always exquisitely dainty.

Cutex is a harmless cuticle remover developed after years of experiment. Applied to the cuticle, it keeps the base of the nail smooth, firm, crescent-like. It maintains the even, regular curve which Nature intended it to have.

Wrap a little cotton around the end of an orange stick (both come in the Cutex package), dip it into the bottle of Cutex and work it around the base of the nails, gently pushing back the cuticle. Instantly the dry cuticle is softened. Wash the hands, pushing back the cuticle with a towel. The surplus cuticle will disappear, leaving a firm, even, slender nail base.

If you like snowy white nail tips apply a little Cutex Nail White underneath the nails directly from its convenient tube. Finish your manicure with Cutex Nail Polish. For an especially brilliant, lasting polish, use Cutex Paste Polish first, then the Cutex Cake or Powder Polish.

If your cuticle has a tendency to dry and grow coarse, apply a bit of Cutex Cold Cream each night. This cream was especially prepared to keep the hands and cuticle soft and fine.

Give yourself this manicure regularly. Make it as much of a habit as keeping your shoes shined. You will find that it is no trouble. It takes only about fifteen minutes a week to give your nails this complete manicure. But do not neglect this duty. Do not do it one week and forget it the next. It is true that one Cutex manicure makes your nails look lovely; but you cannot keep them well groomed by irregular care. Give your nails a Cutex manicure regularly.

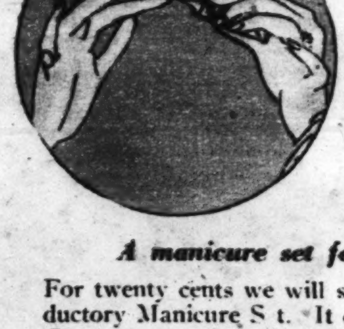
Just give your nails a few minutes' care once or twice a week, depending on how fast your cuticle grows, and they are always exquisite—smooth, shapely, a decided addition to your personal charm.

Cutex Cuticle Remover, Nail White, Nail Polish and Cold Cream are each 35 cents. The Cuticle Remover comes also in 65 cent bottles. You can get Cutex in any drug or department store in the United States and Canada, and in chemists' shops in England.



A little squeezing of this tube—and your nail tips will stay snowy white

A manicure set for 20 cents

For twenty cents we will send you the Introductory Manicure Set. It contains less of the Cutex preparations than our standard sets, but there is enough for at least six manicures. LILLIAN GISH when 10 years old! Cunning youngster, wasn't she? And I reckon neither she nor her mother nor small sister, Dot, nor the photographer dreamed that a few years would see—well, what they have seen. The bows on her hair sort of make your head ache, don't they? Remember how it used to pull when your mother tied 'em tight—so they wouldn't slip?

JOHN BOWERS, though he hasn't a mechanical smile, is some mechanic! Does all needed tinkering on his little old car himself. When not engaged giving his darling oil massage, etc., he occupies himself doing his share in making Goldwyn pictures what they are today—we hope you're satisfied.

Mr. Bowers is an Indiana boy. He has, like so many of the screen stars, had a stage beginning. His histrionic work started under the direction of Donald Robertson. While working for the silver sheet he's been with Griffith, Famous Players, World, Metro, and, now, Goldwyn. And the ladies always have been for him.

How does he look? Six feet tall, dark hair and eyes, and bright smile. And he can swim and dance and fence 'n' ever'thing.

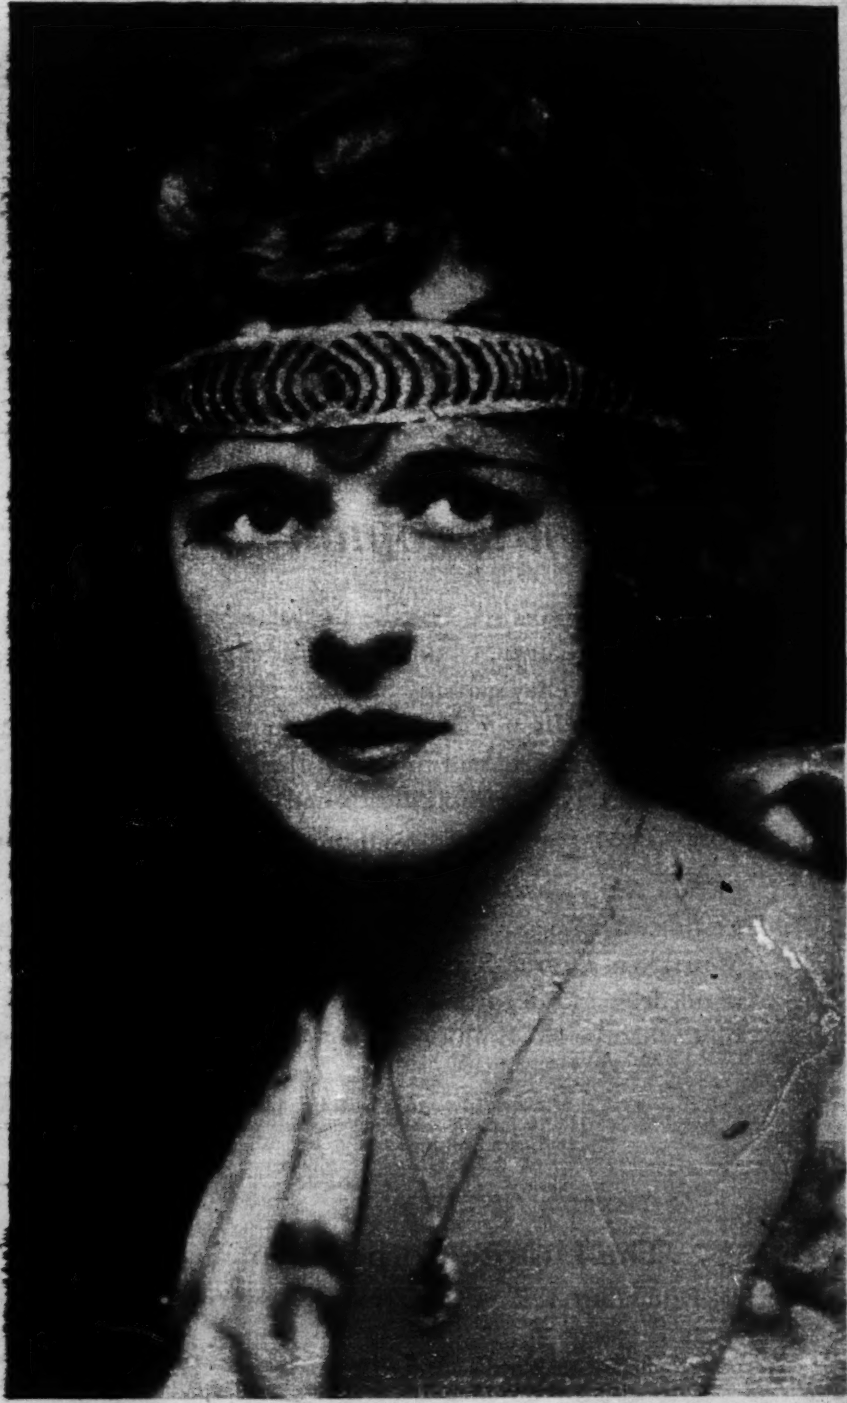
Mae Tinee.

ETHEL GREY TERRY is pretty and charming, but for some reason or other she's one of those "once in a while" girls. Now you see her and now you don't. But when you do, you're pleased to meet the lady.

She was born in Oakland, Cal., educated at Notre Dame, Boston, Mass., and had a stage career under Belasco, in stock, and at the Little theater, Los Angeles. Some of the pictures in which you have seen her are "Arsene Lupin," "Bought," and the "Craig Kennedy" serial. She has worked for World, Famous Players and Vitagraph.

Miss Terry is 5½ feet tall, weighs 130 pounds, is dark and has brown hair and gray eyes. She "loves" all out of door sports.

Mae Tinee.



ANITA STEWART hasn't been doing anything new or startling, but she happens—I think—to look unusually beautiful in this latest pose. So, [illegible] like the picture for your scrapbooks?

OH YES - I'LL TELL YOU ONE ABOUT A BAD LITTLE BOY WHO LIVED A LONG LONG TIME AGO - HE WAS AN AWFUL BOY - HE WOULDN'T MIND HIS MOTHER NOR HE WOULDN'T MIND HIS FATHER NOR HIS TEACHER - HE WOULDN'T STUDY AND HE PLAYED HOOKEY FROM SCHOOL - THEY COULDN'T DO ANYTHING WITH HIM
DID HE FIGHT AND KICK AND EVERYTHING?
OH FIGHT - I SHOULD SAY HE DID - AND STEAL - AND ONE DAY HE TOLD HIS MOTHER A STORY AND DISOBEYED HER - HE TOOK 10¢ OFF HER DRESSER THAT SHE WAS GOING TO GET SOME MEDICINE WITH - AND WENT TO THE MOVIES AFTER SHE HAD TOLD HIM NOT TO - AND WHEN SHE ASKED HIM WHERE IT WENT HE SAID HE HADN'T SEEN IT
AND WHAT DO YOU THINK HAPPENED TO HIM? HE WENT TO BED THAT NIGHT AND DIDN'T SAY HIS PRAYERS - AND ALONG ABOUT MIDNIGHT WHEN ALL WAS STILL AND HE WAS JUST FALLING ASLEEP - A GREAT BIG GOBLIN CAME WALKIN' IN THE ROOM WITH A BIG SACK IN HIS HAND AND HE REACHED OUT AND GRABBED MR BAD BOY BY THE EAR - GEE!
AND YOU OUGHT TO HAVE HEARD THAT LITTLE BOY SQUEAL WHEN HE CHUCKED HIM IN THE SACK - CLOTHES AND ALL - AND THEN HE TIED IT ALL UP WITH A BIG ROPE AND TOOK HIM AWAY - AND THEY'VE NEVER SEEN HIM SINCE. AND THAT'S WHAT HAPPENS TO ALL BAD LITTLE BOYS THAT DON'T MIND THEIR PAPA AND MAMA
AND EVERY ONCE IN A WHILE - ON REAL DARK NIGHTS - EVEN YET - YOU CAN HEAR THE ECHO OF THAT LITTLE FELLOW SQUEALING - CALLING FOR HIS MAMA TO COME AND GET HIM
MAMA - DO THE GOBLINS GET LITTLE BOYS WHEN THEY'RE NOT GOOD?
YES - I GUESS THEY DO CHESTER

BLUE RIBBON FICTION

The MORAL HAZARD by Frederick Irving Anderson

"When an Amateur Turns Thief, at First There is Nothing So Precious to Him as His Loot. Shortly There Comes a Time When There is Nothing So Precious to Him as His Liberty."

TOWARD midnight, the smoking room had thinned out. A squall had come roaring out of the bosom of the placid tropical sea, just after dark, and sent most of the tourists to their bunks. Denied the solace of bridge and his tipple, your tourist is a person of small resource on shipboard.

The ten thousand ton refrigerator ship, with her elite upstairs company, plunged drunkenly through the tumbling waters. Heeling, listing, shaking herself with a shudder as she took a blow at her heart, she was a creature of many complaining whimpers. Her ratlines whined, her spars creaked, her lashed booms groaned. But above it all came the reassuring deeper note, the crunch of her screws. She was driving through it sturdily. It was only a little blow. The day's log, posted at the dining saloon companionway, would tersely state "choppy sea." It was all in a day's work.

Old Jensen, the skipper, shiny in his oil skins, peered in through a port as he made his last rounds. He never came in here—a man doesn't sail his ship from the smoking room. He steadied himself against a brass rail, as a mountain of rolling water smote his ship mightily. Inside, a table shot like a catapult across the up-ending floor, bowling over chairs as it crashed against a divan. In one corner, the two stewards were roused momentarily from their attitude of professional torpor, then relapsed, like somnolent cab horses between fares. Braced against a stanchion was one table with fiddles up, glasses empty, ash trays full—and two men, smoking—the only passengers abroad. In communing silence over their smokes, they seemed oblivious to the antics of the storm.

The skipper passed on and up to his eyrie, a domestic little eagle's nest that swung like a pendulum from one star to another with every surging sea. He crawled out of his oil skins, out of his clothes. His passengers were always happy; at this season the down trip was always more or less of a family party. The skipper closed his eyes in paternal content.

Down below the two stewards continued to nod and doze. One of the smokers at the table with the fiddles was a big bony man with a bronze skin, a sombrero, and a Pittsburgh stogy. He was Cummins of Colorado, bank defaulter, making his getaway, with no small entertainment in the operation. He had salted several trails, adding artistic touches suggested by a keen sense of humor; and then, when the hounds were in full cry, he had walked about here, weighed in his baggage, placed his deck chair, and proceeded to dream. In three weeks, he would be in Guatemala, where there would be a coffee plantation, with a red-tiled hacienda, slaves, bull fights, and always summer. With a genuine attack of mal de mer to abet his desire for seclusion at the outset, he had issued from his retirement once the sunken city of Port Royal was put astern, and become a full-fledged member of Capt. Jensen's happy family.

ISIDORE, a Blue Ribbon short story, by Elizabeth Jordan.

Tonight, at gentle penny-a-point bridge, he had as a partner a church organist sent out for a sea change by an admiring vestry; as opponent there was a type founder, bound south to brush up Latin-American trade, and this young haberdasher's model sitting opposite him now and pulling at one of the Jamaica cigars, which smoke very good in this climate. If things had been otherwise, if he had been gathering friends, instead of sloughing them, Cummins might have permitted himself to warm towards this entertaining cosmopolitan, who called himself Story. Story had been everywhere and seen everything. The organist and the type founder had, an hour since, staggered off through the bouncing gale, to the more certain security of their bunks, carrying with them the pleasing consciousness of a rare evening. These two lingered.

It was as near an approach to companionship as Cummins had permitted himself, since he had closed the door of his past behind him. There would be days ahead, beyond this roaring Caribbean, days of loose linens, of languid smoke rings, soft tropical breezes, and fellowship with world wanderers. He allowed himself a rare moment of relaxation. With a little start he recovered himself. He had a sharp sense of momentary fright. It was not time yet to yield to the spell of content.

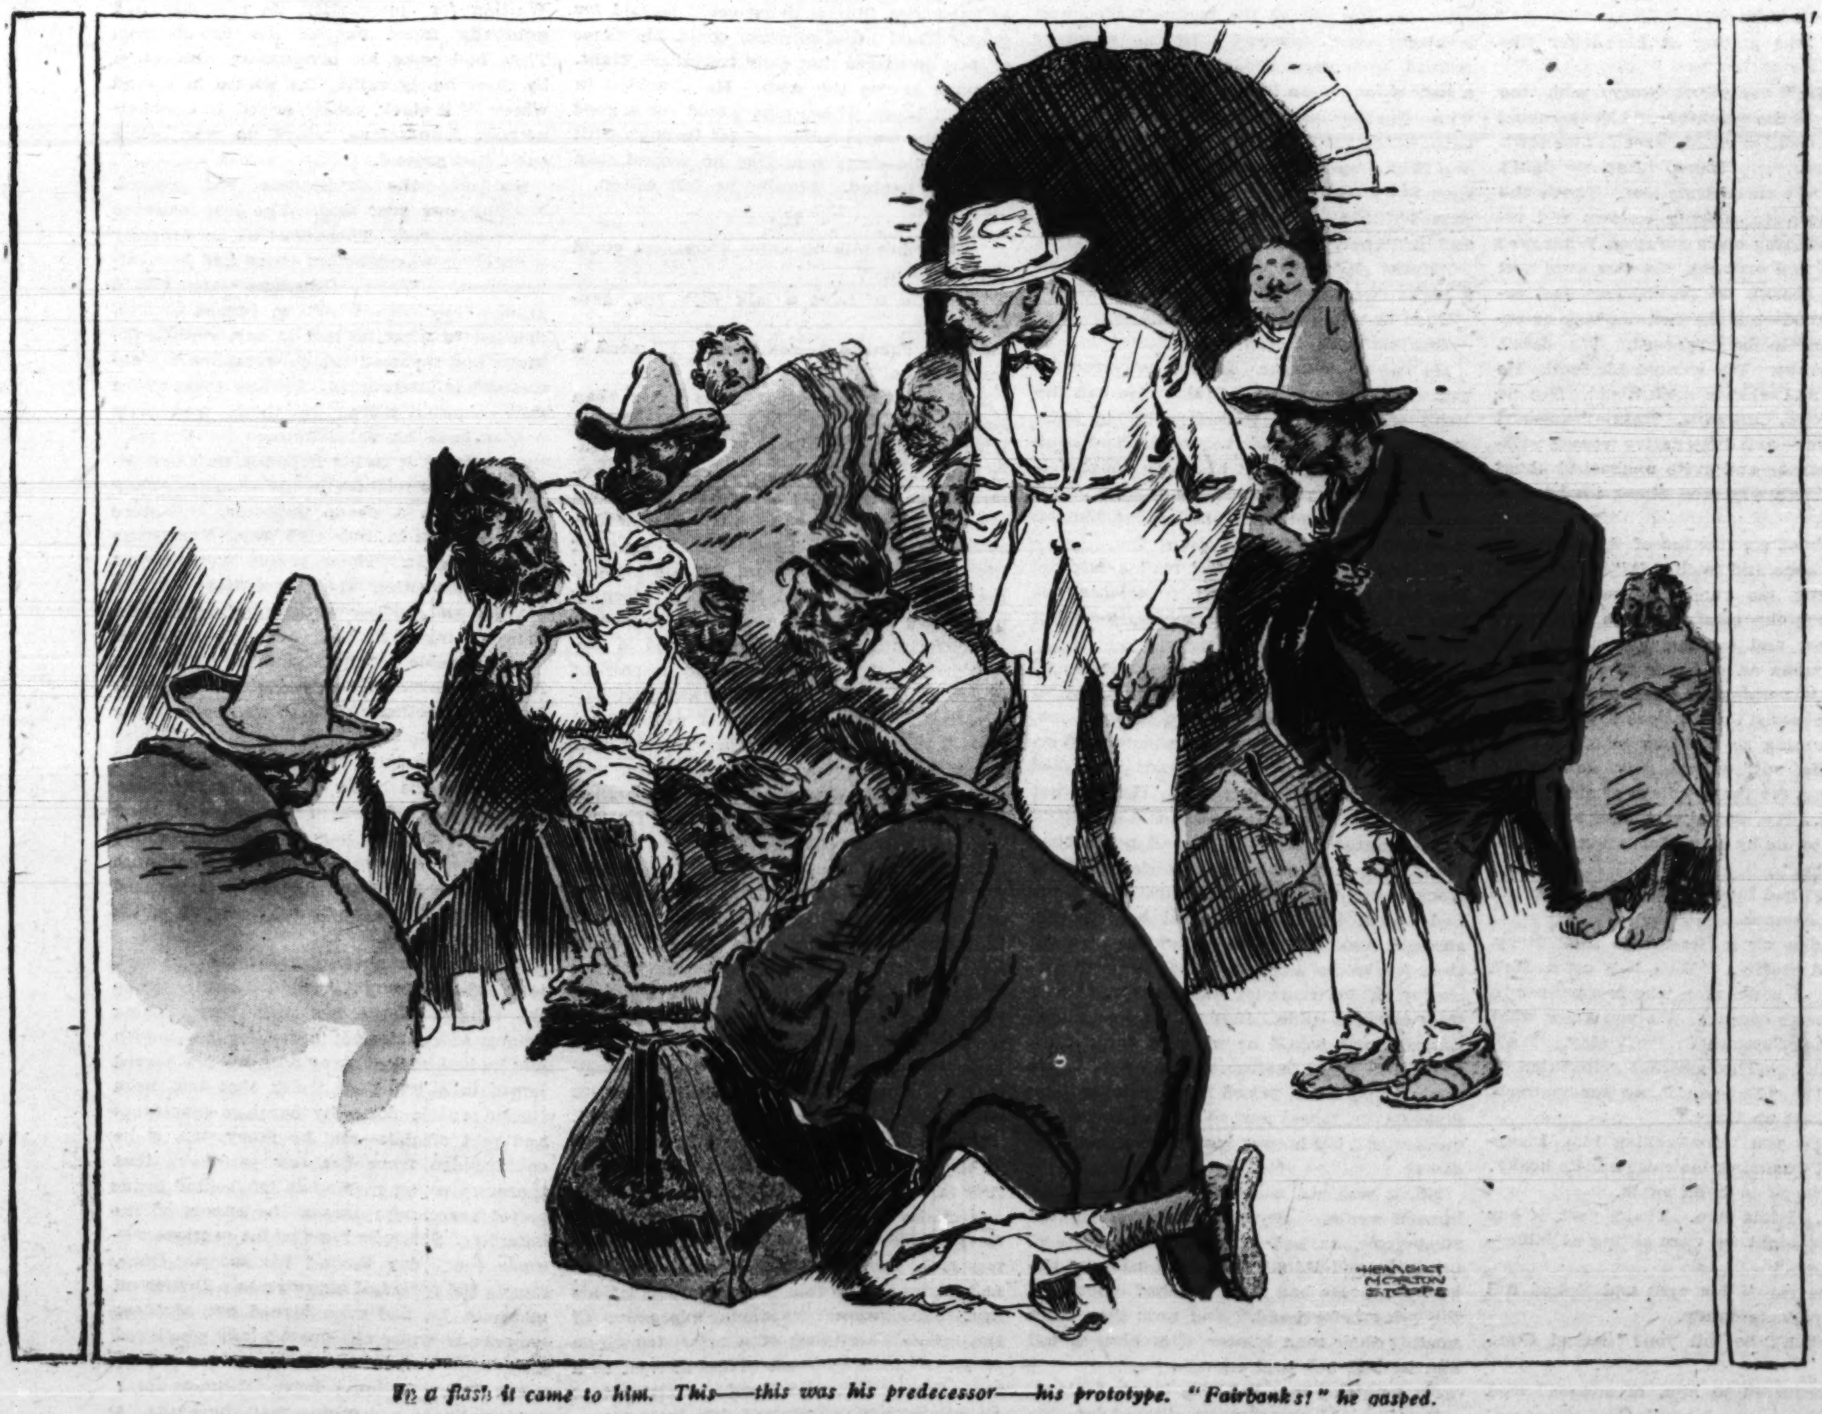
"Beware!" he cautioned himself, suddenly coming out of his dreams, "You will be talking in your sleep presently."

He put aside his stump of a stogy, helped himself to his feet with the aid of the stanchion, and risked a lazy stretch between seas.

"Not going to ride out the gale?" asked young Story. There was something remotely disconcerting in the gaze of those mild blue eyes.

"No; I'll turn in," said Cummins.

Story looked over his shoulder at the motionless figures of the two stewards. Then,



In a flash it came to him. This—this was his predecessor—his prototype. "Fairbanks!" he gasped.

TERRIFIC WIND STORM WRECKS DERBY HALL.

BY WM. DONAHEY.

SHOEHURST, March 13.—(Special dispatch)—A severe wind storm, which struck this section last night, seriously damaged Derby hall, one of a group of buildings belonging to the Teenie Weenies. Pieces of newspapers were blown into the rose bush under which the village stands and a tin can, blown by the gale, rolled dangerously near the hospital.

Derby hall was lifted from its foundations by the force of the wind and stood on its side against a rose bush. The historic hall was badly wrecked, but fortunately no one was in the building at the time.

Derby hall has long been used by the Teenie Weenies as a social center and the little people have entertained many notable guests in the great banquet hall. The first floor of the building has been used as a school and banquet hall by the little people, while the second floor has long been the headquarters of the Teenie Weenie army.

Derby hall is quite unique in its architectural construction, having been built out of a Derby hat. It is to be hoped the building can be preserved, for hats of this style are almost extinct.

THE MORAL HAZARD

in a low tone, as he helped himself to a fresh cigar:

"They're fast asleep. Smoke another cigar."

Cummins resumed his seat, selected a new stogy with more than necessary care, and accepted a light from the other's match. They smoked a few moments in silence.

"Are you making the round trip, Cummins?"

"No; I thansship at Barrios. I am going up into Guatemala." Cummins paused; he answered Story's inquiring silence by adding: "I have an investment in coffee up there. It's time I go see for myself. And you?"

"I go where you go, Cummins," said Story.

The defaulter was conscious that his finger tips were icy cold, a phenomenon which so far arrested his attention that he began testing them, with a puzzled smile. After a few moments of this, he had no difficulty in persuading himself that he had the nerves of a rabbit. He had pictured in the event of failure (to which he calmly conceded its percentage of chance) his eventual confounding. But he had never painted that scene in just this way. There was nothing of the sleuth hound, either as he had met the breed in fiction or as a bank official, about his blue-eyed vis-à-vis. Swiftly he reviewed his shipboard intimacy with this man. There was no incident to give significance to his last words. Cummins took a long puff and said slowly.

"I'll be glad of your company, Story."

"No," he said. "You won't, Cummins. It's a rotten job. I've been there before—under the same circumstances."

His pause might have been merely reflective.

"Do you recollect Fairbanks, the Ginners' bank wrecker?" he went on. By an overmastering effort, Cummins forced himself to meet those mild, unchanging eyes.

"No; I don't seem to."

Cummins was pulling at his finger tips again.

"Fairbanks," continued Story, with the detached air of the raconteur, "had the usual idea that extradition couldn't reach him down there. It can, you know. But we didn't want him. We wanted his loot. That's the difference between robbing widows and orphans and robbing one's sureties. When you rob widows and orphans, the law puts you in jail. It doesn't do the widows and orphans any good—but the law, one way or another, seems to be appeased. We didn't want Fairbanks. We wanted his loot! He knew that, and tried to stick it out. But no white man can, Cummins. Rats—fleas—and 'dandy' fever—and dirty native women without any clothes—and quite unabashed about it." He made a wry face, shook his head in disgust.

"After about six months of it, Fairbanks dug up his bone and fetched it," he went on. "I gave him his choice between staying there, among the rats and fleas and fever and females, and coming home with me. Cummins, when an amateur turns thief, at first there is nothing so precious to him as his loot. Shortly there comes a time when there is nothing so precious to him as his liberty. He will endure any amount of wretchedness for the privilege of clinging to that spark. It's like a man who knows he is doomed to die by slow starvation, but still clings to life."

His drawl had become slow torture to the fascinated listener.

"Fairbanks chose freedom," said Story. He laughed shortly. "Well, he's got it. He's got it yet. A white man who is a pauper in a yellow man's country. Do you know what that means, Cummins? He'll stay. We'll see to that." (The constant reiteration of that "we"!) "But you'll see for yourself, when you get up there."

"He knew you were trailing him, I suppose," said Cummins, his voice a little husky. He had himself in hand again.

"O, yes. I told him. That's part of our game. One night we were sitting at table—just like this."

Cummins raised his eyes and looked full at the easy young dandy.

"Why didn't he kill you?" asked Cummins.

"That occurred to him, of course," said Story nonchalantly. "And he had the nerve! He had a lot of nerve in the beginning. But he thought better of it. He was ingenious and capable. He never should have been a thief. He made friends with 'Sparks' the wireless man. One way or another, he contrived to get a look at the dispatches I sent home every day at noon." He paused, and twirled an empty glass, smiling. Into the heart of the murderer—for Cummins the defaulter at this moment conceded himself the right to kill—there crept a daunting fear. It was the insolent sureness of this man across the table from him. He wetted his lips, and waited; his hands trembled slightly, in spite of his best effort at control. Story's smooth tones never faltered.

"In my office in New York," he said, "there is a map. Every day at noon a clerk sticks a new pin in that map. That pin shows where I am and whither bound. If twenty four hours elapse without a new pin, another man picks up my lost trail. There is always a man—just one step behind. One step behind!" He repeated these three words, slowly.

"That's what broke Fairbanks' nerve," he rambled on. "I think he had half a hope, when we got into Colon, that port inspection would catch him, and send him back in irons. That was his only hope of beating us! Port inspection sifts for yellow fever germs in Colon, you know—and not much gets through that mesh. Fairbanks did." He grinned. "I saw to that. I wanted him to sample Guatemala."

Story yawned. He tossed the butt of his cigar away, and rose. One of the stewards immediately began to turn out the lights.

"It's a rotten place. You won't like it a little bit," he said. "Well, I'll turn in. Sleep well, Cummins," he added over his shoulder, as he moved from one chair to another across the swaying floor. The door slammed on him.

After a time the defaulter rose and got to the deck. The blow was abating, but the seas, still breaking, covered him with warm stinging rime. He clung to the rail, hypnotized by the tumbling mass of dark waters. At the top of the bridge ladder was a bright open doorway. In the opening, framed, was propped securely the figure of a lithe young man. It was Story, chatting with 'Sparks' seated at a table flanked by batteries of vacuum tubes that glowed redly, and bright spirals of copper strip. After a time Story came out and down the ladder—passed within ten feet of Cummins, stopped, and said cheerily:

"Hello! Haven't you a home to go to, on a night like this?"

Then he was gone in a dark alleyway.

Amateur! That stung!

He was no amateur. He had prepared for years for this one great stroke. He had the habit of integrity. In his career of safeguarding other people's money, he had studied fraud. To thwart it had been his profession. And this young whipper-snapper, with scarcely veiled contempt, had called him an amateur! He gritted his teeth.

He paused abruptly. But wait a minute! Had he? Or was it his own conscience, not this young haberdasher's model, accusing him?

Cummins laughed harshly. Conscience? Conscience—what had conscience to say to him? He had taken what he wanted, yes. But he had not taken it from widows and orphans, or the line of mechanics who filed past his window on pay day. He had not robbed them. The wages of such a sin would have daunted him. No, he had not robbed them. He had robbed a coterie of smug frock coated gentlemen, his sureties. They had accepted him as a moral hazard—and charged him a stiff fee—set him down on their books as a "risk," and assumed the burden of his honesty. Moral hazard was their stock in trade. If there were no moral hazard there would be no need for surety. Cynically their actuaries reduced it to terms of per cent, priced it accordingly. The dividends of moral hazard bought them limousines and big houses with plate glass windows.

No, it was not conscience, Cummins told himself again. By carefully calculated stratagems, he had built up a structure of integrity, and destroyed it—and collected the insurance. He had paid. He had calculated the price beforehand. And now they were sending their man hunter after him, to tell him he had not paid enough.

An amateur, was he? He laughed aloud.

It was 2 o'clock when he climbed into his berth. For the first night since he had stepped aside, he was sleepless. In the dim watches he sorted his thoughts. He revolved in his memory the disc of that hair-lifting dialogue in the smoking room. He took it to pieces, studied its mechanism. For one period of a few seconds, by dint of hard wishing, he managed to hypnotize himself into the belief that it was all a false alarm, to be explained merely by coincidence. But this lulling sense was short lived. He smiled grimly.

"Don't delude yourself. Do you understand Bible English? Or must he shake the manacles before your eyes?"

This man was tied to his heels. Cummins must untie that knot. But he must untie it without breaking the skein. He had almost acted on impulse tonight, at that moment when Story, shutting the wireless room door behind him, was climbing down the ladder in the dark. It had been touch and go with impulse during that moment. Story himself had probably felt it, else why did he turn in the jet darkness and speak? Cummins shivered. What if he had struck—and missed! But he wouldn't have missed. It would have been all over in a second—in that second of blind fury.

And then—what? They would miss Story at port inspection. The skipper would say, "Why, I saw you with him at midnight." The smoking room stewards would say, "He went on deck at 1 o'clock, and you followed him out." "Sparks" would say, "He filed this dispatch at one-ten; he filed these every twenty-four hours."

Cummins gasped as if this tightening of the cords of circumstances were real instead of the product of his fevered imagination. Almost, at this instant, he could see the honest eyes of his questioners averted, as if in very pity for the miserable wretch before them. What a fool impulse can make of a man! In a flash it demolishes him.

Then suddenly he sat up in bed, tense. Those dispatches! Somehow, some way, he must contrive to see them. Here was his opportunity. Undoubtedly they would be in code. He was an expert in code. Once he had the key, Story's ghost could be laid for good. Then he, Cummins, could file those cryptic messages that daily trailed his flight, in pins, across the map. He chuckled in grisly humor. Those pins would see a good deal of the world before he got through with them. And there would be no second man one step behind. Finally he fell asleep.

II.

"If you are talking coffee, Cummins, you'd better see me."

"I'd like to have a talk with you, general."

"Well; come out—come out! I'll send a cart for you."

And the little general, none other than Bannon himself, the old Death's Head that whispered into the ear of the dictator twenty-four hours each day, rose, pierced Cummins with a friendly glance from his one eye, and offered a hand with two fingers shot away in some long forgotten tight corner of his adventurous life. Gen. Bannon clapped his hands sharply and his mosos, sleeping under the awning of a dirty pink portico that overhung the fetid street, came to life, and began vigorously attacking a pair of mules hitched with a queer brassladen harness to an equipage the like of which Cummins had never before seen. The old war horse mounted, opened his umbrella, and with a leer at Cummins, gave the signal. Away he went at a breakneck pace, rattling over the rough cobbles.

Bannon had been here, and hereabouts, for fifty years. It was said he couldn't go any place else, that there was an invisible line drawn about him, over which he must not put foot. Be that as it may, he was not without honor here. He lived like a prince, he was the good right hand of the dictator, whom he had established and maintained in power by the simple process of assassination. Neither revolution nor reform exists without a head. Bannon removed the head.

This was decidedly a change for the better in the fortunes of the defaulter. When he first came up here to the capital city, a curious chance had seemed to forward his affairs. There were letters at his hotel awaiting J. L. Cummins, the identical name he had assumed for this latter chapter of his life. They were invitations, expressive of the lavish hospitality of a restricted circle of whites, at the advent of one of their own kind, from the outside world. Flattered at attentions which inferred his importance, hungry for the society of his kind, Cummins quite innocently accepted an invitation for luncheon. He found himself engulfed in a whirl of exotic gayety.

In the midst of these butterfly courtesies he suddenly awoke to the fact that he was credited as a British oil magnate of the same name whose advent had long been anticipated. This was the explanation of the open sesame; and, coming abruptly on the truth, he lacked the courage to destroy the house of cards that chance had built for him. There were dinners; there were trips across the valley to mountain villas; one evening they embarked by special train, and he passed an unbelievable three days as the honored guest of a white man who lived like a grandee. One night he sat at dinner cheek by jowl with the American chargé; one night he gambled with the youths of the British consulate, and went back to his hotel plucked dry. Through it all, when the talk turned to oil he switched it to coffee.

It was after the plucking that he sat up late reading Voltaire. From a ponderous volume, of which the letterpress was vellum, he ripped out a page, steamed it over a brass kettle while he brewed a toddy, and extracted therefrom a fat bank note.

From the first the defaulter had felt the pressure of espionage, but he never saw it. He studied faces, the faces of men who seemed destined to become his familiars; he even catalogued the features of ragged boys in the street in front of his hotel. He listened with all his ears for the footfall of that one step behind. But he heard nothing.

Story had seen him through to Barrios. There had never been another word between these two to recall that evening when he had said: "I go where you go, Cummins." In his farewell the easy youth, fixing the defaulter with his irritating mild gaze, had said with a half smile:

"When you want me, Cummins, you will find me at your elbow."

That was the last he had seen of Story. His humorous plan of wiping out the trail had gone to pot for lack of opportunity. Waiting for opportunity, its necessity had gradually faded out of his calculations. Then had come his involuntary absorption by these lonely exiles, the whites in a land where all is black, yellow, or red; in a society without foundations, where no man asked one's background.

Suddenly the invitations had ceased. Nothing was ever said. The lost magnate never appeared. There was no act—merely a negation where before there had been affirmation. When Cummins approached groups they ceased talking, turned to him, listened to what he had to say, replied politely, and resumed the conversation his entrance had interrupted. He saw them off on their jaunts, waved to them, and they nodded back his salutations.

He blamed it to his impolitic tacit acceptance of their mistake in his identity. They thought him a cheap impostor, and were snubbing him in their civil way. There was no fighting it. These people were decent people, accepting the conventions of the country and abiding by them. They asked a man nothing of his past; but they demanded an impeccable present. And he, without an identity of his own, had permitted them to fit him with another's. There was no mending that error.

At first he took refuge in solitude. He pored over the books of Voltaire and Montesquieu, his old vellum classics, with their occasional missing pages. He fingered the thick sheets, counted them till they were thumbed and greased like the oft perused holy tales of the ancient priests of which they were copies.

This had been sheer cleverness on his part, to which he brought technical skill. While the sleuths of the law had been nosing among safety deposit boxes for his hidden loot he had walked away with his few sacred tomes in a trunk—a trunk that had been turned upside down by baggage inspectors and port officials—and by Story, too, if he could judge from the few earmarks that thorough young gentleman left behind in his secret searchings among the effects of the defaulter. Servants handled his precious volumes every day tidying his rooms. Once, during the period of his reign as a British oil magnate, he had even loaned one of these volumes to a nice old English lady who loved Voltaire.

Then his loneliness drove Cummins forth again. Never a drinking man, he began to haunt the cafés affected by the touristas who meetings with her after that were secret. So far as we know no one ever saw either Cotesbury or myself even talking to Miss Ordinoff."

Anne's forehead wrinkled itself into three little vertical lines as indicative of concentration. Hardy, too, sat silent, watching her intently, as if trying to read her mind.

"Have you any theory," asked Anne, after a moment's thought, "as to the method by which the money was removed from the hotel?"

"No," said Mr. Hardy, "absolutely none. There seems to be little doubt that the waiter who killed himself was the actual murderer. Presumably he stole the jewelry as a blind, but what he did with that little black handbag is a mystery. No one saw him taking it out of the hotel."

"Of course," said Anne, as if she was thinking aloud, "he was only a tool. The whole crime was carefully planned. It would have been quite easy for him as he emerged from the room to have slipped the handbag to another man waiting in the corridor. A man—a well dressed man—carrying a handbag could have entered the elevator and walked out of the hotel without attracting any attention whatever."

"Isn't it possible," interjected Rush excitedly, "that Miss Ordinoff might have checked the bag downstairs after she left your apartment?"

"She might have," said Mr. Hardy, "although that was not the plan. Still, we know she didn't. Now, Miss Blair, what have you to tell me?"

"Nothing," said Anne Blair calmly, "nothing yet. I want to think it over. Perhaps tomorrow——"

"Will you dine with me tomorrow evening?" asked Harrison Hardy quickly, and to Rush's jealous ears it sounded as if there was unwonted eagerness in his tones.

"Yes, gladly," came Anne's answer promptly, much to his annoyance, even though her next words brought balm to his feelings, "but why not make it a dinner party? Let us get together all the people who know any of the details of the murder and match up their stories. Perhaps we can learn something more that way."

"An excellent idea," said Mr. Hardy approvingly.

"We'll ask Mr. and Mrs. Le Baron—they'll come, won't they, Mr. Rush?"

"I'll answer for them," he said without hesitation. He knew from experience that practically no one ever refused a dinner invitation from the celebrated Harrison Hardy.

"Then there's yourself, and Mr. Rush, and me—that makes five."

"And Hugh Smith," added Mr. Hardy. "That makes six."

"Of course," the girl assented. "He knows a lot about the case," and only Rush detected the subtle sarcasm in her tone. He knew that she had small opinion of Smith's ability, having heard her express distrust for the solution he had advanced so promptly for the mysterious murder.

"I'll have dinner served in my rooms at 7:30," announced Mr. Hardy decisively.

"What about Miss Dushane? Should we ask her?" suggested Rush.

"She knows nothing about Miss Ordinoff's murder," said Anne. "We can leave her out."

"Why," exclaimed Rush, with a meaning glance at Anne, "you told me you felt sure there was some connection between the two cases."

"What's that?" exclaimed Hardy, much mystified.

"There undoubtedly is," announced Anne calmly. "Whoever planned these two crimes must be some one closely in touch with Mr. Hardy's financial affairs. Miss Dushane's money, the hundred thousand they were after, was on deposit in Mr. Hardy's trust company. Mr. Dean of the trust company knew something of this Russian business."

"My God," cried Hardy indignantly. "You don't suspect Dean, do you? Why, I'd as soon suspect myself."

"No," said Anne, "I don't suspect Mr. Dean, nor you, nor Mr. Rush. I merely pointed out the fact to show there is a connection between the two crimes; but wait until tomorrow."

So manifest was her desire to have them go that they reluctantly made their adieux and returned to Mr. Hardy's apartment. Rush was hoping that his employer would continue the discussion of the mystery, but he seemed to have put it resolutely out of his mind and to be encased once more in his armor. As soon as they had reached the apartment he began, as was his nightly custom, dictating his business correspondence as calmly as if his two millions had not vanished. One letter, to a Boston banker, was important.

"If you will take that letter over to the Grand Central," he said to Rush, as he looked at his watch, "you can get it on the 12:35 and its delivery tomorrow morning will be assured."

Glad of escape, welcoming a chance to be alone, delighting in the opportunity for thinking over the events of the evening, Rush hastened on his errand. The amazing story his employer had told of the important mission on which Olga Ordinoff was to be dispatched, to his mind, instead of helping to clear things up had only added to the complications of the mysteries he and Anne Blair had determined to solve.

Whom, he wondered, did Anne suspect?

He was positive from the confident way in which she spoke that she had evolved some definite theory of the crime—or, rather, of the two crimes and their perpetrators, but she had given him no hint of it. Had she also, he wondered, a theory to account for the vanishing of the money? Were all of Mr. Hardy's associates, he asked himself, entirely beyond suspicion? Two million dollars—two millions in cash—would be a terrible temptation to most men. Think what the possession of such a sum would mean! If he had two millions he would not hesitate a moment in asking Anne Blair to marry him.

Two millions! He wondered how long it would take him to accumulate that much with Anne as his goal. Would she be willing to wait for him? Was Harrison Hardy, he jealously wondered, really interested in Anne, as interested as he had appeared to be? The very thought of the possibility of Harrison Hardy and his millions as a rival filled him with a sense of hopelessness.

His errand accomplished, he emerged from the station on the Forty-second street side. It was after midnight and the street was comparatively deserted. Two men entering a cheap lunch room half way up the block attracted his notice. There was something vaguely familiar about the tall figure of one of them, and the face, too, in the momentary glimpse he had caught of it under an electric light seemed to be that of some one he knew well, yet was unable to recognize.

As he came opposite the lunchroom he glanced in at the wide window to look again at the man whose appearance had seemed so familiar. He was sitting far back in the lunchroom, but Rush recognized him now at first glance. It was Meyer, the head waiter. Rush understood now why he had failed at first to know him. A waiter with a hat on is hardly recognizable.

Smiling a little at the change it made in the head waiter's appearance, as he walked along, he gave him a parting glance, and this time stopped short with a gasp of amazement. His present position had brought into range the face of the man accompanying Meyer. He recognized the sinister face at once.

It was Caspar Dietz!

What were old Caspar and the head waiter of the Ritsmore doing there with their heads together? Jubilantly he realized that here there was a definite link connecting the attempt to blackmail Ruthina Dushane with the murder of Olga Ordinoff. He must tell Anne the startling news at once. She would be delighted to bear this confirmation of her theory. Recalling in an entirely new aspect the association of Meyer with the case, his connection with the little black cross that had been erased from the closet door, his invasion of Harrison Hardy's apartment, his interest in Rush's acquaintance with Miss Blair, the young man hastened into the cigar store booth on the corner and called up the Ritsmore, asking for Anne's apartment, and rejoicing to find that she had not yet retired.

"Whom do you think I discovered just now in a lunchroom together?" he whispered excitely over the phone. "Meyer, the head waiter, with old Caspar."

"Where are they now?" asked Anne, her voice tense with excitement.

"They're still there, I suppose."

"Don't lose a minute," warned Anne. "Get right back there and watch them. See where Meyer goes after he leaves Caspar."

Rush quickly hung up the phone and almost ran back to the lunchroom, peering eagerly in through the window. He was too late. Both Meyer and Caspar Dietz had vanished.

The Moral Hazard

the general touched nothing, made no sound, a leather door opened, and the major domo stood beside them. The master spoke quickly in Spanish, and the major domo invited the defaulter to follow him, with a gracious wave of the hand. Shortly Cummins returned, bearing in his arms his three sacred tomes. Without a word his host led the way to the library and closed the door. Cummins laid his volumes on the great table. Without any ado, the general seized the first one and riffled the pages; then he turned fiercely on Cummins.

"Well!" he demanded, "is this time for jest?"

"Yes," laughed the defaulter, his burden lifted, and now enjoying to the utmost the old man's perplexity. He could scent his freedom—and this—he took in his surroundings with a ravishing glance. "Yes. I jest," he cried. "I act obviously. Like a child. I think in straight lines. Then these clumsy sleuth hounds are at their wits' end. They have been nibbling at my baggage for months. See!" he cried, with the wave of a magician. With a single twist of the wrist he tore out a page of vellum. Over the steaming samovar there—the eternal coffee of this country, he held the page and unfolded its contents. The general licked his lips, nodding approval as he watched the ritual.

"Clever! Ah, clever! Let us see what we have," he boomed. "When its need passes it becomes clumsy."

Through the half hour the two ripped and sweated the priceless volumes. There was a heap of great gold notes on the table. The old reprobate patted them with his two fingers.

"Now—as to the matter of pins," he said. "We will end their tour at once."

He clapped his hands in summons and sat back, his wicked eye fixed on the bank notes, waiting. Cummins heard a distant door swing somewhere, in a far-off reach of this palace, and the sound of feet crossing rugs and stone flags. Then voices and laughter. Two men entered from behind the hangings. The first was Story. Cummins involuntarily rose, but the general, with a commanding gesture, cautioned him down again. The second was a tall, gaunt, fever bitten man, at whom the defaulter stared. He had seen that face before—but where? Both were dressed to the nines. They were talking gayly as they came in. The blood went to the defaulter's head, and he had the singular sense of being stone deaf; that these two elegants, arm in arm, with mincing steps, were going through the queer business of pantomime that jugglers are so fond of, as a prelude to their stage act. So overpowering was this impression he would not have been surprised to see them suddenly shed their fine raiment and emerge in fleshings, to begin impossible feats before his eyes. The general spoke sneeringly, a single word.

"Pig!" he said.

The pair came instantly to attention, seemed aware for the first time of the two men seated at the table.

"You can drop your stage tricks. This isn't low comedy," Bannon snarled, with biting sarcasm.

Story's eyes narrowed as they fell on the bank notes. Trying to curb the evident rising wrath of the fierce old man, he said airily:

"Ah, general, I see, as usual—"

"Yes, as usual!" roared the general, rising. "As usual," he repeated, "I had to turn the trick myself!" His fingers closed over the defaulter's loot. The diminutive general seemed fairly to tower over the two men who now cowered before him. "You miserable incompetents!" he sneered. "You've been trailing this fool for months—and let him make asses of you." His voice rose almost to a shriek. "What have you accomplished? Nothing! As usual, I"— he beat himself fiercely on the chest—"I had to do it myself. What do I hire you for, you scum?"

Then as the defaulter sprang to his feet, muttering horrible oaths, and took a step forward, that gaunt arm shot out like a spring and hurled him back.

"Hold your tongue!" he cried, with a withering contempt. "I can use a knave, but not a fool!"

Trapped, tricked, robbed of his loot, the supreme realization of his situation now broke on Cummins like a bombshell.

Now he had it! That gaunt hideous face—now he knew him! Fairbanks! With the cry of an animal, he sprang at the throat of the man beside Story. They went down with a crash.

"You damned play actor! You faker! You—thief! You would have sold me—you!"

At that moment, when everything was lost, his insane fury directed itself not against Story, the plausible faker with his fabled "one step behind," who led him into this trap so gayly; not against Bannon, the hired assassin of the dictator, who, tiring of the procrastination of his mercenaries, had taken the matter into his own hands in his own peculiar way—not against these two; but against Fairbanks, the Ginners' bank wrecker, the thief, who, like himself, had felt the net tighten, had suffered all the pangs of the outcast, who had "dug up his bone" at their command. His heart had bled for this wretch when he saw him degraded and sunken. He would have shared his lot with him. Would have protected him, made him a white man again. And this creature, whom he would have lifted to fellowship—this creature was merely a figure on the stage set for Cummins' destruction. He would have killed Fairbanks. They dragged him off with rough, practiced hand, left him where he lay.

The general was clapping his hands again. The major domo came. Still grasping the bank notes, the general, jerking his head over his shoulder at Cummins, said sharply: "Get rid of that! Turn him out!"

The major domo made as if to speak.

"Turn him out, I say!" roared the two fingered right hand of the dictator.

It was three days later that a ridiculous figure staggered into the consulate. Once, this might have been a prince of fellows, in that raiment. Now he was a battered and torn tramp. The chargé, Burke, hurrying across the room, looked sharply at the object, recognized it as the remnants of the bogus British oil magnate.

"I've come to confess," said the object, finding its voice.

"'Oh, father, dear father, I've come to confess,'" responded Burke blithely. "Sims! Oh, Sims!" At this call a head was thrust in at the door. "Did Donovan, the Excelsior Surety sleuth hound, come from the steamer this morning?" asked Burke.

"Yes; he's in here now."

Then Burke, turning to the object, nodded at the open door.

"Go in there and do your confessing," he said. "There a padre with a special dispensation is waiting for you."

Some time later Burke looked in. Three men sat there. Donovan, the man of the law, who had finally trailed the fugitive defaulter to this mountain capital; Sims, the chief clerk, and Cummins, the disheveled tramp. Cummins had finished his story and was looking at the two beseechingly.

"'Tis a pretty tale!" said Donovan, and he winked at the chargé

Stupid incredulity painted the face of the defaulter.

"What! You don't believe me?" he cried.

"Sure, I believe you," agreed Donovan, winking again. "Chief," he said, to Burke, "if you can put through my manifest for this bundle of rags, I'd like to start back for Denver this afternoon. I don't like this burg. Too many fleas and rats and bats for me. Me for little old Denver with my package."

"Sims," said Burke, "did Bannon O. K. those extradition papers?"

"Yes," responded the clerk. "Sent 'em down by messenger this morning."

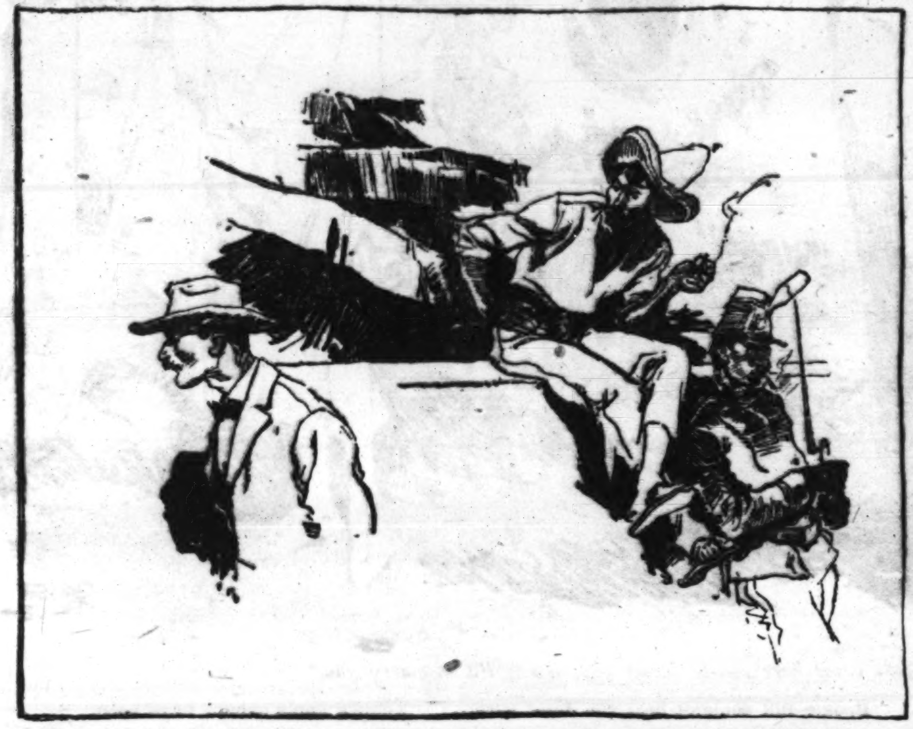
came in a body every week from the fruit steamers. He insinuated himself into their parties at table, picked up threads of conversation, bought drinks, became an adept with absinthe, mixing it at the fountain where ice cold spring water dripped drop by drop. But the touristas frightened him. They were too direct in their questionings. Why was he here? How did he like the life? When was he going home? How did he amuse himself? And so on indefinitely.

At last he moved on, bag and baggage. The panorama of life, with its social effervescence, where he alone was uncompanioned, warped his endurance. In the chilly dawn of a gray day he moved over to the old city, with its hundred churches and their tumbled bastions, that once proudly, under the Spanish captains, had reigned over this torn land from the far off Rio Grande south to the equator. It was only the ghost of its former self. But some of its noble monuments and a few of its people still obstinately remained, with the earthquake always trembling in the air above one's head.

The great cathedral, its huge bell lying where it had fallen, sat twisted and deserted, as if some prehistoric monster, buried under its foundations, had turned over in its sleep. Whole quarters of the city had been given over to armies of bats. Story had not told him about the bats. They were even more terrifying than the other things. There was a hotel, maintained in some state, for curious touristas who timidly peeped in and hurried on again, sometimes with an earthquake for breakfast.



From the first the defaulter had felt the pressure of espionage. He listened with all his ears for the footfall of that one step behind.

As he was set down at the door, a cloud of beggars fought viciously for Cummins' baggage. One gaunt, hairy creature, indescribably dirty, clawed his way through the mass, knocking heads together, taking and giving blows, and finally won the coveted bags. The others gave way before him, and, like a conqueror, he led the way. The defaulter tendered him the usual small fee. The man held it for a moment in his palm, weighed it.

"I usually get more," he said meekly.

The words were perfect English. Cummins looked up with a start. The man seemed to wither before him. He cringed, began to back out. Cummins raised a hand and checked him.

"Wait," he said, and stared at the apparition. It was a picture of hopeless squalor. Black, yellow, and red manage somehow to look picturesque, at least to our northern eyes, in their rags. But not this one. This one was white. In a flash, it came to him. This—this was his predecessor—his prototype.

"Fairbanks!" he gasped.

The miserable creature fell back, raising his hand, palm outward, before his face, as if to ward off a blow. Then he burst out piteously:

"You've come to take me back! Oh, please say yes! Please say yes!"

It was at this moment that the beggar rabble burst in again, fighting with each other for the dropped bags, the air thick with Spanish imprecations. Suddenly the small figure of a man in linens, waving a cane, appeared as by magic in their midst. Before his voice of marvelous resonance, and no less marvelous oaths, the horde of vermin evaporated, vanished. This was Cummins' meeting with Gen. Bannon.

There was a brief interchange of civilities, a bluff and pleasant camaraderie which warmed the cockles of the exile's heart. Blackmailer and professional assassin he might be, but he had offered the hand of fellowship to him, Cummins, the defaulter.

"Come out—come out!" the general reiterated as he started away. "I'll send a cart for you."

Cummins watched the strange vehicle down the crooked street, the general bobbing up and down like a cork in a rift. For a long time after it was gone he could hear the creaking wheels, mingled with the syncopated hoofbeats of the mules.

This was luck!

III.

There were steep ascents, hair raising declivities; at times the cart seemed to hang on an eyebrow of a sheer cliff, with jagged rocks and a roaring torrent in wait below. Then again mud, fluid mud, in which the cart floated and the mules seemed to swim. The cart had wooden wheels, not particularly round; they creaked monotonously, and they had a side to side motion that gave the conveyance the mal de mar effect of a camel's humps.

The box of the cart itself in which Cummins rode was not without an essay of comfort. It was finished in horse hide, and there were strips of knotted rawhide by which one might hold on. The ancient captain's ladies must have passed through here in just this way. It was the only way. One couldn't have floundered through alone. But he, Cummins, was the guest of the dictator's good right hand. The two Indian servants who had come for him had wrapped him in a Robinson Crusoe coat of rushes, for diminutive rain clouds floating overhead in the clear sky all day long impishly turned on their water spouts without warning and floated on, leaving a seething humidity in their wake.

Toward evening they crested the last rise. The Indians turned to him, pointing and grinning; and the jaded mules plunged forward madly. In the bowl of the broad valley, on a little eminence of its own, like an island in the tropical sea of verdure, lay the hacienda, red tiled, rambling, beautiful, with great weeping trees standing guard; flanked by trim rows of coffee, cocoa, and banana; encircled by an arm of a tumultuous river, soapy blue, with white suds. He had some idea of the demesne of this grandee before they finally penetrated the circle of the valley to that enchanted center oasis. A bell tolled, a drawbridge dropped; and amid loud cries and the cracking of whips, they rumbled to the portico, lifted out their passenger, unbound him from his rush coverings.

A major domo, with a shadowy fringe of underlings, conveying gracefully the compliments of his lord and master, conducted the guest to his apartments. There they left him alone for a moment. He strutted; he laughed aloud. It was not true. It could not be true. He, the hunted, a man without even a name, was being singled out for distinction, by this prodigious disreputable, of whom even the dictator himself asked favor, Gen. John Bannon.

But it was true. A corps of Chinese boys attended him. They steamed him in a great stone jar; they poured warmed aromatic waters over his head; pungent unguents, under their nimble fingers, found the racking aches and pains of his joints, and dissolved them. Some deficiencies in his attire were not wanting when they clothed him. He had not come prepared for just this. Again the tolling of a bell. Outside in the garden a tide of naked feet wiped the stone flags with curious whisperings. Then a padre, chanting, and responses in straggling chorus. Vespers! Cummins thought of Esther and Ahasuerus—and Haman, swinging aloft! A fire began to burn on his hearth, quite of its own accord, so it seemed. Day suddenly merged into night. He quaffed a thimble of an elixir at his elbow.

"Ha, ha, ha!" he laughed aloud. "Ha, ha, ha!"

Now, fully equipped, he examined himself in the mirror. Complete—to the studs and pumps! Was there an Esther? Probably not, he told himself. Only these slaves. The major domo came in, pressed a card in his hands. It was the carte du jour. Just what he was expected to say or do he did not know. He let his eye stray over the items. Incredible! He said so, aloud, and smiling.

"Incredible! Ha, ha, ha!"

A week passed. A week of subtle delights. His lost self-respect had been insidiously wooed; his humbled pride reborn. His first impression was of profusion, the plethora of luxury; the appeal to the senses was everywhere. Then the numbers appalled him. Retainers everywhere. Wherever he turned a bowing servitor. Did he wander in the gardens? A negro boy attended him. Did he linger by the lake? A turbaned Hindoo was at his call. There were processions of Indian women carrying water on their heads in earthen pots, in a remote glade where he thought himself alone. Even in the hours when Bannon was absent, even in the midst of his relaxation and relief, Cummins had the consciousness of always, everywhere, some one at his elbow. He was a prisoner of enchantments, within the circle of this golden valley, bulwarked on all sides by its rim of hills.

They had sat late at dinner one evening. They were discussing coffee, as they drank it—a nectar.

"We add a little diatase," said the general, fondling his glass in which the coffee glowed like smoky topaz. "Then we distill it. Only the berries from this valley will do it—the southern slope. We pick and choose them, one by one—like schloss grapes. It cannot be exported. A great pity!"

Cummins drank—and drank again. A distilled elixir. Curious, he thought; a trifle heady. He wondered if this was intoxication. He had become a connoisseur on wines. He had been drunk recently. But not in just this luxurious way. Did one's senses float, then? Poetry began with the vintages of the south. Your northern grape is a makeshift at best. Man has lived long enough in the tropics to learn how to live. Your civilization of the temperate zones, for all its airs, is a parvenu, a late comer—as time goes.

He drank again—coffee. There was something mellifluent about time—space—eternity. Before him was the board, snowy white, with gold and silver glistening, and goblets with a steaming fluid topaz. Behind, a sleepy fire, tainting the air with a faint incense. Round about, in the penumbra of the vaulted stone paved hall, hollow men in armor. Opposite, a white shirt front, and that single burning eye; on the cloth lay the hand—the two fingered hand. Except that he lacked in stature, Cummins told himself—in wavering thought—the general might have been old Franz Joseph, of felicitous memory. Felice! Cummins' tongue caressed the word.

"This, you say," said Cummins, waving a comprehensive hand, "dates back to the early conquistadores, general?"

He settled back languidly in the Cordovan cushions of his chair.

"Mendoza," responded the sonorous voice. "Sixteen forty-two. It is entire. Except for the left wing. We have done a little to that. We make some concessions to the moderns." And he added, after a pause: "I glory in my predecessors, sir. They were men without sentimentality. Affairs of honor! Pouff! If one offended, let me show you their method."

The little man rose, stooped over and pushed aside the silken rug. He tugged at a ring in the floor. Summoning unsuspected strength, he lifted the stone, disclosing a narrow stairway, losing itself in darkness. The sound of lapping water caught Cummins' ears. He stared stupidly into the hole.

"Since sixteen forty-two," said the general. "Thirteen steps down is a rocking tread. At the thirteenth step, the offender vanishes like a rifle shot. The device is simple. He is shot into the river. Similar to the one at Morro, in Habana. You may have seen it. Eh? Sharks at the lower end there. Here"—and he came as near to a smile as he permitted himself—"crocodiles."

Cummins, with the sense of a somnambulist awakening to find himself balanced on a tight wire, perfectly poised, nodded. He let his head fall back in the cushions, as his drooping eyes strove to follow the spirals of his cigaret. He was basking in this luxurious felicity, when the sonorous voice opposite, as if emerging from a speaking tube, suddenly demanded:

"Why not buy Story off? Pay him double! Then—psst!" And the general made an ugly motion across his throat.

The defaulter became momentarily galvanized into life, struggling for intelligence against this creeping torpor.

Now, nothing had been said. Cummins had formed his plan. Sooner or later he would speak. This man had but to nod his head to make legal tender of his now useless loot. The price would be high. He was prepared for that. There were no moral scruples to be considered here. No sentimentality!

What had happened? His eyes fell to his coffee glass. Had he babbled? Had this strange intoxication betrayed him into uncovering himself too soon.

"Story?" he said vaguely. "Story?" he repeated, his eyes fixed on the general.

"Did he say anything about pins?" demanded Bannon. That one eye was blazing at him viciously.

It was true, then. The old man knew. This was the very heart of the matter. But how—what—

"Pins I said?" boomed the old man.

Cummins reached for his coffee glass and gulped down its contents.

"Yes—yes," he said. "The map too. He hung that up before me. I had a plan—"

"Never have a plan!" interrupted the general tartly. "Unless you have fulfillment in sight. You haven't! Without me!"

"You were my reliance, general. I intended to consult you."

The little general got up and walked over to the fire and stood there, the easy host, warming his back.

"In this country," he said, with slow emphasis, "things can be done—or undone—very simply. On one side everything is right! On the other—wrong—or shall we say, futile? We who know are obvious—like a child. We think in straight lines. That is much the better way."

The defaulter smiled back at him, warmly. In one way or another, perfect concord between these two had been established. Cummins got up and took his station beside the old man.

"I am getting old, Cummins," went on the general. "Though for a long time, I thought age was something to pass me by." He stretched out his gaunt arm, in its perfect sleeve, feeling the muscles. Then with his mangled hand he ran over the ample biceps of Cummins. "I could find use for such an arm as that!" he said, and he searched the defaulter's face with that one eye. There was a pause, during which Cummins caressed the fingers of one hand with the other.

"Do you think you would like the life here, Cummins? White men don't, as a rule, you know. They have lost that peculiar something in the blood. One feels the instinct, if one possesses it. Do you possess it, Cummins? Do you follow me?"

That eye was peculiarly active.

"Perfectly, general."

"Do you trust me? Men do!"

"I trust you absolutely, general." The defaulter was conscious of a strange sense of levitation. His spirits were aglow. "Absolutely, general!" he cried. "You and I can come to terms."

"Are you ready to pay the price? I give—but I exact!"

"Yes! Yes!"

"It'll cost you dear! It'll hurt!"

"Yes! Yes!"

"Then bring it me—here—now!" rasped the old man, in a shrill whisper. Although

WHICH ?

THE STORY THUS FAR—Opening a closet door in her hotel room, Betty Le Baron, a bride of three days, is horrified at discovering the body of a beautiful young woman with a knife through her heart. To make matters worse, Bob Le Baron, Betty's husband, refuses to explain his movements just before the discovery of the crime and is arrested on suspicion. Several people interest themselves in the case· among them John Rush, an old friend of Le Baron's, now employed as secretary to Harrison Hardy, a capitalist, and Anne Blair, a young woman who lives in the hotel. When Rush tells his employer that the murdered girl has been identified as Olga Ordinoff, daughter of a Russian general, Hardy exclaims: "Then they've got the $2,000,000!" He appears greatly disturbed, though he will not explain why, and sends Rush to engage the services of Hugh Smith, a private detective. Smith, after a brief investigation, fixes the crime on a waiter, whereupon the latter confesses and kills himself. This serves to free Le Baron, but does not satisfy Anne Blair, who insists there is more to the affair than appears on the surface. She determines to find out what Hardy knows and to learn the significance of a little black cross she saw on the closet door when she happened into the Le Barons' room just before the police came. This cross, Rush remembers, disappeared mysteriously after he had seen the hotel's head waiter standing near the door and fumbling with a handkerchief. Meanwhile Anne becomes interested in Ruthina Dushane, an heiress, and manages to recover for her some letters which Caspar Dietz, a former gardener of her father's, has been using as a basis for attempted blackmail. Rush has come upon Meyer, the head waiter, prowling about the Hardy apartment, and is further mystified when he finds the man has left a code letter in which one of Hardy's agents appears to be reporting on the money which vanished after the murder. The secretary finally persuades his employer to call on Miss Blair and ask her what she has learned about the case. "Before I tell you anything," is Anne's astonishing reply, "I've got to have you tell what Miss Ordinoff was doing in your rooms the evening she was murdered."

SIXTH INSTALLMENT.

Hardy Tells His Story.

"IS it a bargain?" cried Anne, her dark eyes flashing with excitement as she watched with obvious amusement the consternation with which the financier had heard the question she had put to him.

Rush, recalled from his processes of self-examination, listened in amazement, trying as he did so to make up a schedule of his own movements on the evening of the murder. It did not seem possible that Olga Ordinoff could have visited his employer in his apartment without his knowledge. He would have been ready to swear that he had been with Harrison Hardy practically all afternoon and evening.

"For God's sake," Hardy was saying, "don't keep me in suspense. Tell me how you learned about that girl's visit, and I'll tell you anything else you want to know."

"I am afraid," said Anne calmly, "that you have hardly enough respect for feminine reasoning powers to believe me when I tell you that I made that deduction from the known facts. In other words, I guessed it."

"Impossible," cried Hardy. "I can't believe it."

"In reality," explained the girl, "it was very simple. The hotel records show that Miss Ordinoff arrived from Philadelphia at 5:45. It was 7:15 before she asked for a waiter to be sent to her apartment. That leaves an hour and a half to be accounted for. What was she doing in that interval? Now, who are the persons who we know are in some way concerned in the case? They are Mr. and Mrs. Le Baron, in whose rooms the body was found; Mr. Rush, who was with them when the tragedy was discovered; the waiter who killed her, and you."

"There's nothing, absolutely nothing, no evidence of any sort to connect me with her," protested Hardy, endeavoring to speak calmly, yet in spite of himself showing great agitation.

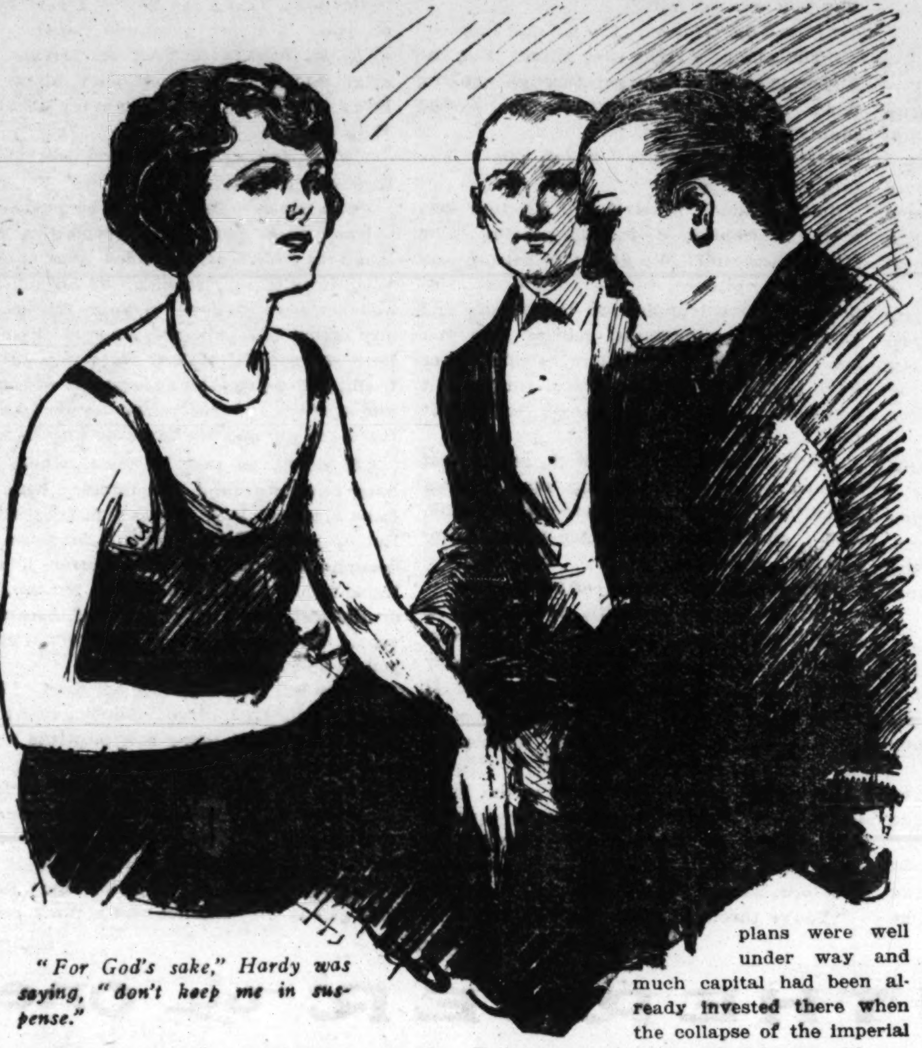
"You forgot," said Anne, "that the next morning when Mr. Rush told you about Miss Ordinoff, you at once exclaimed 'Olga Ordinoff,' indicating that you had previous knowledge of her. Also in Mr. Rush's hearing you muttered something about two millions having vanished."

"So you've been gossiping about my private affairs," cried Hardy, turning viciously on his secretary.

"Only with me," interrupted the girl, "and I think you will find that it has been to your advantage. Shall I go on?"

His curiosity to learn her story overcame his wrath and he subsided, although the effort it cost him was manifest in his clenched hands.

"Now then," Anne continued, "what were the various persons involved doing from 5:45 to 7:15? The waiter was not summoned until that hour, so we can leave him out of it. Mrs. Le Baron was dressing for dinner. Mr. Le Baron was down in the lobby and he met Mr. Rush there and they chatted together. There was just one other person in the hotel concerned with Olga Ordinoff. That person was yourself. If Olga Ordinoff had two millions when she was killed, from whom would she obtain it? Is it not a perfectly reasonable deduction that she came to the hotel to meet you, to get this money from you, and at 6:30 that evening she was in your apartment. Now, why did you give her that money?"



"For God's sake," Hardy was saying, "don't keep me in suspense."

"Your deductions are absurd," said Mr. Hardy testily. "There is no proof whatever that that girl was in my apartment."

"But you admit it," persisted Anne.

"I tell you it cannot be proven. Of course I don't admit it."

"But it is true," the girl challenged him.

He studied her face line by line for a moment before he answered, manifestly struggling all the while to keep himself in hand. Never in all his long career of battle had he faced a similar situation. Always in the stormy crises he had weathered, his foes and challengers had been strong men, ruthless money machines like himself. With them he know how to deal. He could bully them, crush them into submission, make them do things his way. But here he was facing a slip of a girl, a calm, self-possessed, extraordinarily intelligent young woman with a persistence that equaled his own.

He wondered if he dared trust her, if he dared tell her everything. What a wonderful ally she would make! Never in his whole life had he absolutely trusted any one nor given them his entire confidence. Always he had played a lone hand. Anne Blair in asking his confidence was making a far greater demand than she realized. It was his growing admiration for her brilliant mentality that finally decided him.

She mistook his hesitation in answering her for an effort on his part to thwart her plans. She knew the type of man he was and, realizing that above all else the thing he dreaded was publicity, tried new tactics.

"Of course," she said, "if you will not admit it, there is nothing for me to do but to tell the police where the girl was that evening."

"My God!" he cried in panic at the thought. "You mustn't do that. I didn't kill the girl. Her murder was a terrible blow to me. It upset all my plans. I'm as eager as you are to learn who planned her murder."

"Then," said Anne calmly, "answer my questions."

His features relaxed and he made a quick gesture of resignation, defeat, submission—which it was Rush found it hard to determine.

"Very well," he said quietly. "I'll tell you everything. Since you know so much, perhaps when I have told my story you can tell me where my two millions have gone and who got them."

"Perhaps," said the girl, "perhaps the three of us together"—and Rush threw her a quick glance of gratitude for including him—"may be able to find the solution."

"Like most American financiers," began Harrison Hardy, "when the great war began I turned my attention to Russia, laying extensive plans there for development after the war. With the severance of trade relations with Germany, Russia's vast resources seemed ready to drop into America's lap. My plans were well under way and much capital had been already invested there when the collapse of the imperial Russian government worked havoc with our plans. The rise to power of these accursed bolsheviki spelled ruin and absolute loss for all our investments.

"The only salvation for American capital invested in Russia lay, and still lies, in my opinion, in the overthrow of this mob rule and the prompt reëstablishment of a strong centralized government with which we can do business.

"After the armistice, with the aid of the French government, which sought to protect the Russian bonds held extensively in France, we succeeded in having some allied troops sent to Russia. The popular clamor against this move, together with the unsettled condition of Europe, left only one other hope—a serious attempt to finance a movement to overthrow the bolsheviki and reëstablish an imperialistic government.

"How to get money to Russia was the problem that confronted us. All the available funds there were in the hands of Lenine and Trotzky. International banking had been so demoralized that no exchange was procurable. We finally decided to send to Russia the actual cash, gold notes of the United States government."

Anne Blair, listening to his plain avowal, showed her disapproval in her face. An American for ten generations, it seemed to her grossly wrong and un-American, almost traitorous, for an American to be plotting to reëstablish a fallen monarchy, but Harrison Hardy was too busy with his narrative to note her expression.

"The carrier selected for the first installment of funds to be sent over was this Olga Ordinoff. Her family always have been loyal imperialists. Her father, a general, was murdered by the revolutionists. For two years she has been living quietly in a suburb of Philadelphia, taking no part in Russian affairs. In every respect she seemed to be an ideal messenger. I met her personally only twice. Several weeks ago she was introduced to me at a secret rendezvous in Philadelphia. At this meeting there were present only my Philadelphia partner and myself. She accepted the mission we offered her and it was discussed in all its details. She made all the arrangements for the journey herself, procuring her own passports.

"In accordance with our secret arrangements, she came here to the hotel the day before she sailed to receive final instructions and to receive from me the funds she was to take with her to Russia. Not more than six persons in the whole United States knew any part of the arrangements. No one but myself, absolutely no one, knew the details of her intended departure. At 6:30 that evening, in accordance with our carefully made arrangement, she came to my apartment, making sure that her entrance was unobserved. I was alone there. In her presence I placed in the false bottom of a black traveling bag two million dollars in United States gold certificates, some of it of the five thousand dollar denomination, some in one thousand dollar bills. There were no witnesses of the transaction. I am certain that no one saw her enter or leave my apartment, yet within two hours she had been murdered and the bag containing the money had vanished."

"Where did you obtain the bag?" asked Anne thoughtfully. It was in her mind that the placing of an order for a traveling bag with a false bottom by Harrison Hardy would in itself be apt to cause comment.

"It is one that I have had for ten years, a bag that was prepared for another emergency," said Mr. Hardy.

"Do you suppose," suggested Rush, "that the drawing of such a large sum in gold certificates might have attracted attention?"

"Certainly it would have, but the money was gathered together several years ago. I myself procured it from a vault to which I alone have access."

It came to Rush and to Anne Blair both that this money must have been part of a secret hoard Mr. Hardy had laid away at the very beginning of the great war, when all Wall street was panic stricken, when the exchange had closed. It was rumored that many of the leaders of finance, always fearful for their hoarded wealth, and unable to read the future, had hidden away in secret vaults large sums in cash and gold, that they might be prepared for any emergency. But close as John Rush was to his employer's private affairs, this was the first intimation Rush had had of Mr. Hardy's action, and it emphasized to him how secretive his employer was in the conduct of important affairs.

"Why," asked Anne, "did you suspect Treptikoff? Who is he?"

"Although it is not generally known, this man Treptikoff is the leader of the bolshevist movement in this country. He keeps entirely in the background, but manages in some mysterious way to keep constantly in touch with the revolutionary leaders in Russia. He has large sums of money at his command and is wonderfully well informed on what goes on here. Our first thought——"

"Whom do you mean by 'our'?" interrupted Anne.

"Hugh Smith and Grundy. Both of them are trusted investigators in my employ. Grundy has been doing my work for many years and for the last two years I frequently have been using Smith. He is an exceedingly clever detective and absolutely trustworthy. As soon as I learned of Miss Ordinoff's death I put them both on the track of Treptikoff. My natural suspicion was that he had learned of our plans and had seized the money."

"And you're sure it was not he?"

"It couldn't have been. Grundy has learned that for many days Treptikoff and his gang have been under the closest surveillance by government employés. Ever since Washington learned of their connection, every move they made day or night has been watched and recorded. Furthermore, Grundy has learned that the newspaper accounts of Miss Ordinoff's murder greatly excited the Treptikoff crowd and seemed to puzzle them completely."

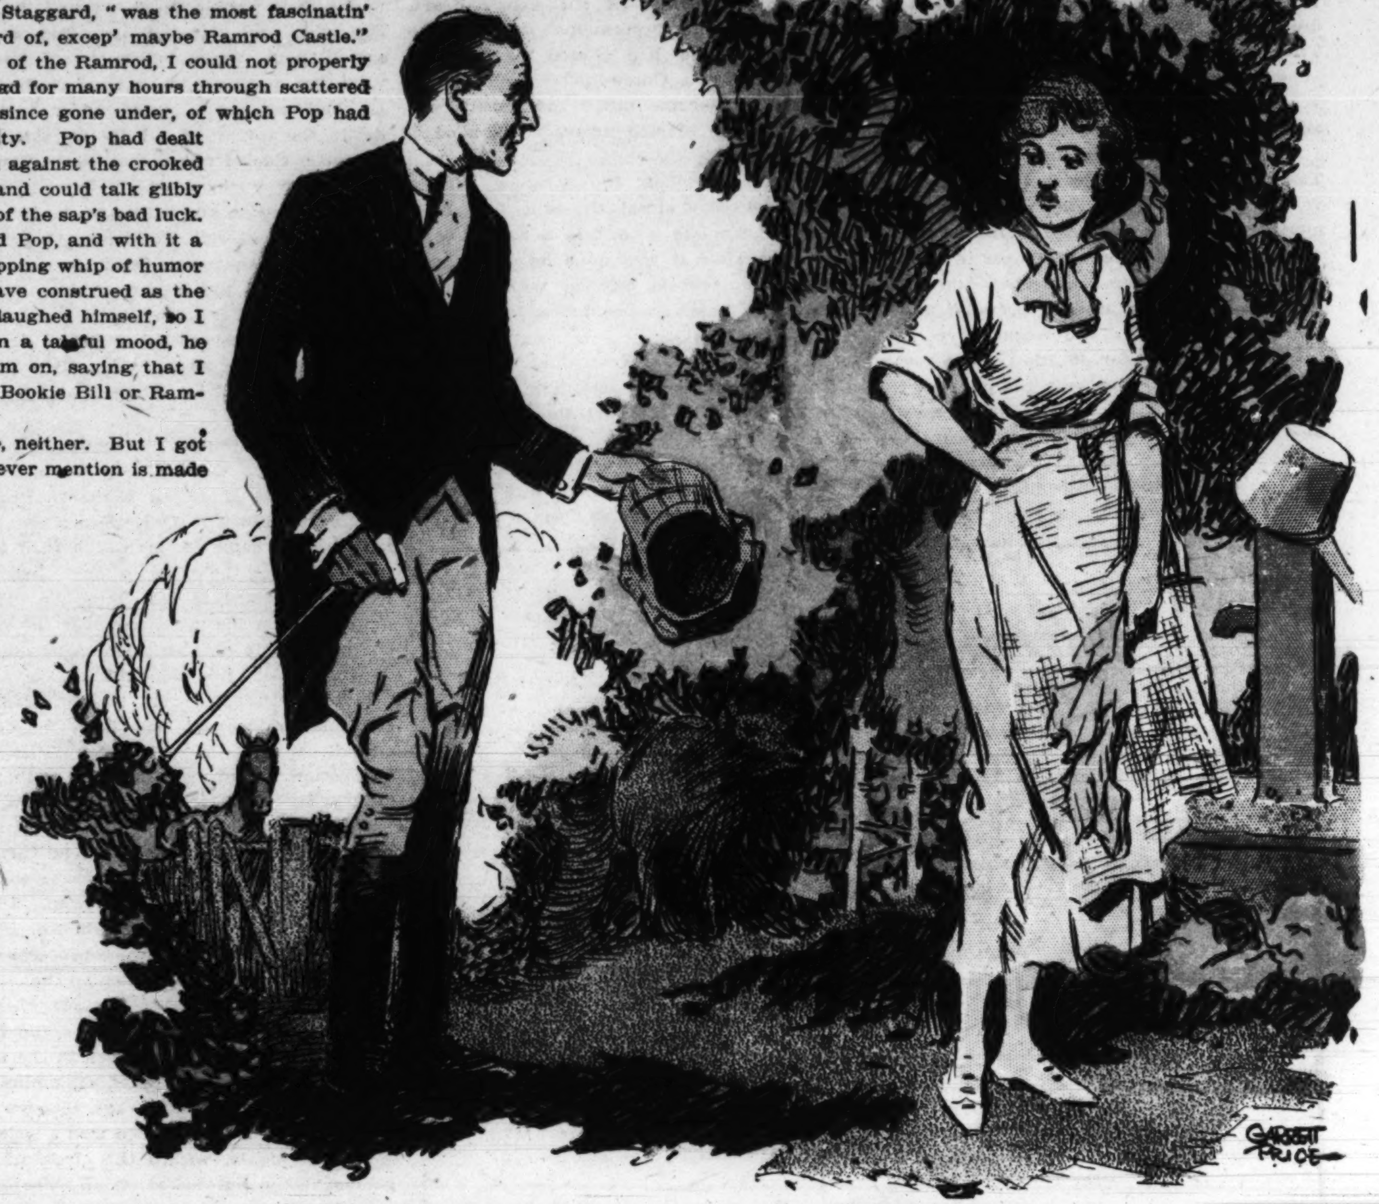
"You say there were not more than six persons knew of your plan—who were the six?"

Hardy closed his lips tightly and swallowed hard. Replying to this question of Miss Blair evidently was distasteful. It was difficult for him always to make a confidant of any one, yet there was constantly recurring to his mind the thought that this girl knew something about the case that he did not. If he had adjudged her correctly he must live up to his bargain. He must tell her everything if he expected to get anything from her.

"Cotesbury, my Philadelphia partner, knew more about the plan than any one else. Dean of the trust company, Graham, my office manager, a certain high official in Washington, each knew a small part of the plan, and Hugh Smith made certain investigations for me in connection with it, but only Cotesbury and myself knew who the messenger was or when she was to start. She was a social acquaintance of Cotesbury's daughter. He met her once or twice at dinner months ago and from her conversation decided that she was trustworthy in any effort to overthrow the revolutionists. His

'Twas Ever Thus

Something's Likely to Happen When a "Bookie" Woos a Milkmaid, but You Never Can Tell Just What



"I—I didn't come here to—to insult you, miss. I'll m-marry you."

"BOOKIE BILL" said my old friend, Pop Staggard, "was the most fascinatin' man with women I ever known or heard of, excep' maybe Ramrod Castle."

Having heard of the bookie but never of the Ramrod, I could not properly assent or dissent; but I could listen, listen as I had for many hours through scattered years, to the chronicles of an underworld long since gone under, of which Pop had been a personage; more than that, a personality. Pop had dealt crooked stud and lost all he had made therefrom against the crooked wheel, so he had sat at both sides of the table and could talk glibly of the wise bird's percentage and lament bitterly of the sap's bad luck.

He had a reflective, and recollective brain, had Pop, and with it a sense of dramatic and romantic values and a snapping whip of humor which one who knew him but slightly might have construed as the unconscious boobery of a bonehead. Pop never laughed himself, so I believe he was a wit. Anyway, when he was in a taleful mood, he could always entertain me. And so I teased him on, saying that I had never heard of the Romeonic proclivities of Bookie Bill or Ramrod Castle.

"Well," said Pop, "I never known this Castle, neither. But I got to respec' him an' refer to him as a champ whenever mention is made of a party what drawn females to him—that is, from what I heard. What I heard was that the women chased him so thick an' so hard that he finally ducks off to the deepes' jungles of Africa and plunges into the tanglest of 'em, an' there breathes a deep sigh o' safety; but he ain't satisfied even then, so he builds hisself a house in the upper branches of a tree, which he finishes as night falls, an' he climbs up to his roost, feelin' for the firs' time since he grown up that he's immune from snakes an' women, both. But about 3 a. m. he's woke up by a female giraffe kissin' him. That's the story I heard, though I wasn' there, nach'rally, an' can't vouch for it. But when it comes to Bill the Bookie, I seen him ev'ry day for years, an' was witness to many o' the incidences provin' that he could attrac' the seeker sex to a peculiar degree."

And following is the gist of the tale, some as Pop told it to me, some as I tell it to you:

"Bookie Bill" was a bookmaker. He followed the race "meetings" from track to track, taking wagers on the competitive ponies, paying off winning bets, and sending a hefty dividend weekly to the syndicate of "sporting men" who "put up the bank roll. His share was $25 a day, besides what he could graft. He wasn't a gambler—the men and women who give him their money for his little tickets were the gamblers. Bill was the sure thing operator.

He had all the soul of the breed.

Elevated from a stable boy to a tout, to a sheet writer, to a bookmaker, his ultimate dream one day to have his own capital to cheat the public on his own account instead of being but the clerkly accomplice to the inside clique, he had none of the illusions, none of the promptings of even the ordinary roughneck.

He was not like Pop Staggard, who at least had the grace to be a bad loser; Bookie Bill never lost because he never took a chance. Ice water flowed in his pale veins.

But women took to him.

The atmosphere of race tracks is far from gray. About this sport of kings hover the queens of society, wealth, pleasure; of every sphere of every world. The star, the demirep, the sub-deb, the sporty grass widow, the rich old dowager, the duchess, the show girl—Mrs. Tanqueray, Mrs. Warren, Lady Windermere, Zaza, Camille, every feminine character known to romantic fiction save Cinderella, Little Red Riding Hood, and poor Butterfly.

Where there are races there are gaudy hotels, spirited road houses, smartly dressed throngs, the fool and his money, the vampire and her fool, the loud mouthed tinhorn, the quiet millionaire. There is a sporty zip in the air, there is a slack in standardized restraint, there is a tang that lends an appetite to romances which might be coldly shocking to contemplate in the staid vibrations of town life. Psychologically, all folks are different when away from home. And at the races one is so far away from home.

Therefore that attraction which Bookie Bill Slocum exercised upon feminines flourished in fertile, native loam where he plied his soiled business.

Not only at his stand, where the gloved ladies came to push their good greenbacks against his bad odds, but in the giddy lobbies before and after the "events," in Ali Baba's cafés, on the lounging greens, in the club house of the "jockey club," maintained by a ring of fat jowled malefactors, and wherever two people could meet within the radius of the track and its iridescent rays, women met Bookie Bill and women felt their pulses go into high at the meeting.

He wasn't handsome. Slight but trim, dressed dudishly but never seeming appareled in bad taste (only little men can hope for that combination), with enough observed and absorbed understanding to abjure gemmed horseshoe scarf pins and diamonds on his digits, the little dandy had none of those forbidding visual attributes which might have made him impossible, despite his easy charm, to most white women with two eyes and a sense of the ridiculous.

No, Bookie Bill owed the best tailors, copied the blue bloods rather than the green boors, and was never forward in projecting his comments while in a group. He spoke little except with his own kind. He had chestnut hair with natural waves and ringlets, the more appealing because it always showed traces of vigorous brushing in an effort to straighten it; Bill knew it couldn't be straightened and would have surrendered an eye rather than a curl, but he had learned with the canny percentage seeking look of the bookmaker that the gullible throw away all suspicion in the presence of an apparently concealed effort at honesty.

He was not aggressive toward the sex, having always a deep regard for possible consequences, and having learned that such women as did not impulsively ogle him usually resented being ogled themselves, even by him. But he never had felt the need to pant uphill, for he needed but to slide into the valley where open arms awaited him—the powdered and delicate arms of the well to do, and the strong, proletarian arms of their servants.

There were tales of a scandalously rich widow who had offered to marry him, and would have, had not the executors of her estate effectively threatened to pauperize her; there were tales of actresses who had wined him and heiresses who had wooed him. To the less favored habitues of the tracks he was a phenomenon and an eyesore.

And so Bookie Bill ran his cycle, acquiring as he ran a scantier respect for the gentler gender and a mightier respect for himself. Until——

There is always an until. Biographies of Napoleon, Caesar, Achilles, Bryan, Samson, Goliath, Jeffries—all the conquerors—go on an upward incline until that until; then they do a nose dive. If Kaiser Bill had his until, Bookie Bill couldn't beat the dope, surely.

It came about one sunny Sunday morning. There were no races on Sundays. In the few places where racing is still countenanced in the United States, Sundays are barred, probably out of reverence for the feature films booked for the Sabbath.

It was the fashion at the resort foremost about the turf ring where Bill was employed that season, in Maryland, to form parties a-horseback for rides to a fancy farm about ten miles down a beautiful road, where chicken dinners of especially savory culination could be had on the rest day.

The bookie was invited to join a cavalcade of a dozen or so this day—invited by a woman who lived in Indianapolis, where her husband manufactured shock absorbers for the South American export trade, and, therefore, made more every month than Murillo or Browning garnered in a lifetime. Any one who has ever seen a South American road, however, will not begrudge the lady's husband his profits, since, if his function failed in the artistic, it was not to be sneered at in its humanitarian aspects. Anyway, the old girl had plenty of money, she was glad to be away from Indianapolis, her husband was glad to have her away, and her fancy for Bookie Bill was presumably motherly; she was 46.

The riders spread out in sets of two, since the road was narrow, and each had a picked companion. Bill was cantering along at the right side of the way. The horses, knowing that farm long before they could smell the savory chicken, had broken into a spurt of speed for the final mile. As Bill glanced off the road into a neat garden his roving eyes stood stock still.

They had become focused upon a picture—classic scene which poets have immortalized, masters have painted with inspired souls, city men have beheld and never forgotten—a pretty girl milking a cow.

There is something serene about a cow, always, and never is a cow more bovine than when she is being milked. At that time she is transformed from a lowly animal of mean domestic and commercial servitude into an idyllic background. If it be a pretty girl who sits beside her—freckled if possible—then the effect is intoxicating.

Bill felt what in a bookmaker corresponds to a heart in a man, slide up where his Adam's apple should have been.

He turned hastily and looked at the angular caricature clinging to the livery horse at his side, the very enamel on her cheeks cracking under the strain; he saw flashing before him in a confused maze the faces of ten thousand rouged hussies and lip painted sirens, peroxided flirts, ingenuous grandmothers, ingenious chorus girls, gum chewing and gem showing matrons from Pittsburg, Pa., brewers' corpulent wives from St. Louis, tipsy divorcées from Riverside drive, and dashing "extra" movie maids, super supers, who drew $5 a day and bet $500 on a spavined horse. Then he turned back, over his shoulder, and saw the girl and the cow.

The girl, too, was looking over her shoulder. The parade had drawn her notice. Her eyes met the eyes of Bookie Bill.

Many eyes had met the metallic eye of Bookie Bill before, as has been already hinted. But never had his eyes melted before at such a meeting. He felt them swimming about in a colorless, translucent liquid, and he who had been beset and besieged by lovesick women so long that it had become stupid when it wasn't downright annoying, guessed what had happened—he had fallen in love.

A bend in the road, which Bill's mount took without any suggestion from the lines hanging limply in his rider's forgotten hand, shut out further view of the girl who had entranced this magnet of feminine steel. The merchant's wife, puffing and jolting, caught enough wind to say something—ask something—make a noise. Bill didn't grasp what she had said, for there was a rumbling in his ears. But it didn't matter—much; the high priced chicken dispensary was already in sight and the horses set up a great galloping, killing all favorable circumstances for apt repartee until they drew up at the hitching rail.

Bill assisted his hostess to alight, then suddenly noticed that he had lost something down the road, mumbled an apology and leaped on his horse and was off, back, before any one could inquire details. He kicked the unwilling nag into a smart trot, which is no mean triumph when urging a by the hour steed away from a division point, and turned the bend on the fly.

Ah! The milkmaid had ceased her delighting job, but she was still in sight, fussing with some vegetation in the truck patch up the hill from the highway. Bookie Bill clattered up like Paul Revere, threw himself from the saddle, tossed the reins over his horse's ears, and started up the gravel walk. The peachy one had turned when the thudding of hoofs had ruptured the rural stillness, and was curiously watching as the good looking intruder crunched up the incline toward her. She straightened and stood resolute, though a bucolic maiden of our grandfathers' days might have gathered her calico skirts and run at the approach of a male stranger.

"Good morning, little one," ventured Bookie Bill, doffing his plaid cap.

"What is it?" she asked, without committing herself in intonation or expression.

"Well, when I was riding past here, going the other way—well, you was milking, wasn't you?"

"Who wants to know?"

"I know you was. I saw you. It's a long time since I had milk fresh just out of a cow—I live in the city, see? So I thought I'd just ride back a ways and maybe buy me a fresh glass o' milk."

"Well, you thought wrong. This ain't no saloon. You don't want to buy anything fresh—you got all the fresh you need now."

"No—nothing like that. Only I thought—"

"Think some more. We don't sell milk by the glass. And you don't look to me like you wanted milk."

"Sure I do. Honest. It's hot and I'm——"

"The pump is right over there. Put the dipper back after you get through choking down our bush league champagne. Good night."

"Hey—just a minute," fenced Bill. "You talk pretty fly for a——"

"For a rube? Where'd you get your burlesque conception o' farmers—seeing 'The Old Homestead'? We get daily papers, and Uncle Zeb hitches up the oxes every Saturday and we trundle into the village and gape at the educational movies. So you see, we're still jays, but we could never learn to be as simple as some of you asphalt pounders peg us for. I've got to beat it now."

"Half a minute," Bill shot in, seeing that he had hung up the wrong signs. "You were right. I didn't come here after no milk. And I guess I led the wrong suit, playing you for a mark."

"All right—now that's settled."

"I'll be up an' up with you, girlie. I loped apast here, peaceful an' careless, when my peeps happened to twist an' I saw you. I got one flash at your face an' it jolted me almost out o' the saddle."

"Say—you got a lot of brass. What's the matter with my face?"

"Nothing. That's just what is the matter with it—there ain't anything the matter with it. It's the finest looking face I ever seen. Don't you get me? I'm crazy about you—crushed on you—I'm——"

"You're through. Now you turn and skyoodle down that path before I set the dog on you. You got a million dollars' worth o' crust, tearing in here on private property, telling a girl you don't know from Eve's off heifer that you're crazy about her. Who are you, anyway?"

"Why—my name's Slocum—Bill Slocum; they call me Bookie Bill."

"O, a bookie! One o' those harpies around a track what take honest people's jack and laugh at the feeble minded saps, besides. Well, bookies may loom up as all silk lined and socially delicious to your friends, the city simps, but remember—out in these corners we were all raised right around that track, and we've seen generations of bookies and grafters and steerers and bunks like you come and go, and you're no novelty to me.

"It might be that in town, where you hang out, or around the stables, where you have a lot o' class, a bookie is the berries. But us plain folks hereabouts know 'em too doggone well, and we don't cotton to race track heels. So about face, Mr. Hocum, and do the last quarter in the record, because I got a big, uncouth brother what would break you in half if I whistled."

Bookie Bill looked up into her eyes. There was a dull, hurt, dazed monologue in his own, but in hers there was only the snapping sparkle of sincerity.

It was too much for him to digest in a single moment. He—Bookie Bill—overfed with the unsolicited adulation of the other sex so long, was being contemptuously rebuffed, ordered off like a panhandling hobo, by a girl in a sunbonnet and a print calico frock, the only girl he had ever seen who had touched in him a hidden, dormant spark of desire. He gagged. Then he blurted:

"I—I didn't come here to—to insult you, miss. I'll m-marry you."

"You're crazy—or drunk."

And the girl spun about and went into the house, slamming the door after her.

Bill accepted it as final, hard though it was, stumbled back to his horse, climbed the stirrup somehow, returned to the chicken farm, lamely explained that he had found his cap—or was it his shoe?—whatever it was he had lost.

But he hadn't found what he had lost.

"He never found what he went an' lost," said Pop Staggard. "A few weeks afterwards he married an old maid from Bucyrus, Ohio, quit booking an' was never heard of again. It just took the starch out of him. I know; he told me hisself."

"But it strikes me," said I, "that the conversation, as you relate it, indicates that the girl was most unusual, extremely sophisticated and shrewdly versed in sporting slang for any girl, not to say a wayside country milkmaid."

"Country milkmaid my eye," said Pop. "She was Corena, the greatest contortionist in the world, what traveled with a circus and doubled snake charming in the side show. She was home on a visit to her old lady for a week before gettin' married to Col. Strycklander, the 80 year old rounder, what owned that race track where Bill was makin' book."

The "SOUTHERNER" by Oney Fred Sweet

While It Lasted, He Was a Knight of Adventure, Supreme

A DESIRE to see the outside world and return with tales of adventure took hold of the Clel Justin gang about the time its members started to wear long trousers and congregate in Dentley's restaurant. The first jaunt into the unknown was taken by Bill Jergensen and Pate Horter, who "rode the rods" on a freight train out of Prairie Junction for a distance of thirty miles northward before they were discovered by a brakeman. Recounting their experiences of an evening in Dentley's place, their vividness of description and detail of incident encountered would have created envy in a Dr. Cook.

Boldness increased and Skip Hoskins blew back one spring with ample proof and data that during the weeks he had been gone he had successfully "beaten" his way to the Golden Gate and return. This feat established him in a strong position among the embryo knights of adventure. For a long spell Skip had the floor, and he passed no opportunity to speak of a quarter as "two bits" and refer to far western railroads and towns with slangy abbreviations.

Members of the Clel Justin gang were not at an age to look upon the town of their birth as the only place on the map. They were at an age of rose colored visions and a restlessness that tugged. There were numerous journeys and numerous returns and numerous reminiscences. "Justy" himself discovered Chicago, alighting from the "blind baggage" on his arrival home.

All of which is but preliminary to the return to native Main street of one Nip Belder. Nip had been missing from "the club" haunts some six months in all. His reappearance was dramatic. It was midwinter when he came back and there was thick frost on the restaurant window panes. The gang was hugging the stove, subdued. All their stories had staled from repetition.

As Nip swung open the door and entered he might, judging from his attitude of detachment, have been a strange traveling man. He scarcely glanced toward the gang—turned toward the cigar case and asked Dentley for a peculiar brand of cigaret. As if greatly flustrated at not finding his favorite brand in stock, he drew up his collar as if to leave the place. Then Clel Justin called to him.

"Youah face looks right sma't familyah," drawled Nip. "Ah been gone so long Ah kin recall faces but Ah fo'get the names."

During his six months' absence Nip had acquired a southern accent.

"Where you been, Nip?"

Belder absent mindedly flecked an imaginary speck from the shoulder of his thin overcoat. "In the so'th," he answered indifferently. "Youah climate heah just about gets me."

Now about one-third of the inhabitants of Prairie Junction had come from Europe, another third had moved in from points back east, the third third was native born. When Prairie Junction folks migrated they went to nearby cities or toward the sunset. To them the other side of the Mason and Dixon line was a section as interpreted through numberless sentimental ballads and a drama which appeared each summer under canvas with assurances that it was greater than any of its competitors in that it carried two Topsies, two Uncle Toms, and two Simon Legrees.

Nip Belder had scored, there was no doubt about that. Justy, and Bill, and Pate, and Skip shook hands with their companion of boyhood and were diplomatically friendly, but inwardly they acknowledged that the skids had been placed under their own prestige.

As Nip leaned dreamily against Dentley's candy counter, a far off look in his eyes, it was as though an orchestra was softly playing an accompaniment to his mood with "Down Where the Cotton Blossoms Grow."

Ordinarily the entrance into the store of Pete, the colored porter and polisher of shoes at the barber shop up the street, would have been a mere incident. The only representative of his race in Prairie Junction usually came in about the same hour each night, bought some tobacco, and went his way. Now, as he made a trivial purchase and rolled his eyes in Nip Belder's direction, the atmosphere became tense.

"I nevah have any trouble with niggahs if they keep theah place," remarked Belder when Pete had gone out the door. "Ah've handled a lot of 'em. Trouble up heah is you-all don't know how to handle 'em. Now, up heah a niggah comes to the front do' and asks fo' something to eat and you call him 'mistah' and tell him you ain't got nothing fo' him. Down theah he comes to the back do' and we leave off the 'mistah' but we give him something to eat. It was ha'd on my tempah, though, when Ah crossed the Ohio rivah and saw the Jim Crow cah's was taken off."

There followed a one sided conversation in which Nip Belder baffled and awed his mates of the bygone with such terms as "plantation" instead of farm, "evening" instead of afternoon, "gallery" in place of porch. He remained absolutely the center of interest until Ilene McClure breezed in with a whiff of frosty air to buy a sack of walnut covered chocolates.

When Ilene McClure was in the vicinity the Clel Justin gang was not interested in another thing in the wide universe. There was a fascination about Ilene that left all the other girls in town colorless. Her entrance produced a breathless quiet and her hypnotic nod and smile toward the gang was prepared for by an adjusting of cravats.

Nip Belder strode over to the young lady just as she finished her purchase. He had removed his wide hat and he held it gallantly at his chest.

"Miss Ilene, Ah believe," he smiled.

Whether it was the unaccustomed "Miss" or the unlooked for "Ah" that brought the pleased blush the gang could only miserably conjecture.

"Yas'm, just got heah from Ollubalma. You all Ah looking right sma't."

She glanced about at the "you all," feeling that perhaps she had company of which she had not been hitherto aware.

"And you've got so southern," she smiled. The blue eyes with the long lashes sparkled interest. "You must come up and see me while you're in town."

It was the first formal invitation of the sort that Ilene McClure had ever extended. It was a dark moment for the cavaliers seated on the counters and leaning against the showcases. They followed her with wistful and forlorn glances as she passed out the door on her way home. Nip Belder toyed nonchalantly with the cigar lighter.

"Ah don't know, somehow the moon shines softah down theah nights." He was taking up the threads of the conversation that had been so deliciously interrupted. "And magnolias—did you all evah see a magnolia tree in bloom?"

None of them had.

Old Cap Burlum came in just then. He was on his way home from a meeting of the Tac Shaw post of the G. A. R. He stomped over to the stove on his cane and stood rubbing his hands while the frost was being thawed out of his long whiskers. Presently he seemed to catch the drift of the monologue that was going on and he cocked a failing ear.

"I was down as far as Virginy in '63," he interrupted in high pitched voice.

"Ah so't of feel it was a mistake freein' the niggahs," said Nip languidly. "Ah so't of feel——"

"You do, eh?" snorted the old man, stomping over to shove his face directly under that of the young man. "All I can say is that it's a good thing your old granddaddy is over in his grave and ain't here to hear you say it."

And Cap Burlum, his faded eyes defiant, stalked out into the night.

Nip Belder smiled indulgently and took up a narration concerning an occasion when he had been guest of a certain colonel in a typical southern home—"you know, big pillars in front of the house and a large fireplace and servant quarters in the rear and mint juleps." He was in the midst of this narrative, his back to the door, when Hod McGrew, farmery and fur coated, came in from the street to become one of Dentley's customers to the extent of a Blue Ribbon cigar.

Mr. McGrew, having lighted the cigar, was listening closely to Nip Belder.

"O, everything's all right with me," McGrew answered to an inquiry from Dentley, "except that I'm up against the help problem as usual. Seems so I can't get anybody to stick."

At the sound of the heavy voice Nip Belder brought his narrative abruptly to a close and his tanned face actually grew white. He turned about slowly—very slowly, to where Hod McGrew was eying him. They gazed intently at each other for a moment, and then Hod McGrew walked outside into the night, leaving the door partially open. Nip followed him out and closed the door after him.

For some time as they stood in the store entrance neither of them spoke. Main street was dismally dark, except for the light dawn in front of the Pioneer house and the dull yellow glare in the grime and frost covered window panes of the pool hall on the other side of the snowdrifted courthouse square. Off toward the railroad tracks a dog howled.

"I thought you'd started back home," chattered Nip Belder, hunching in his thin overcoat. "You won't give me away, will ya?" The accent was gone. Nip chattered in pure Prairie Junctionese.

Hod McGrew cleared his throat. "You've been a good hand for me these last six months, Nip. One of the best that ever worked for me. The only time you was slow about getting started was when you was reading that book on the south. I used to wonder what you saw in that book, going through it like you did, over and over. To tell the truth, I thought you was in bad here the way you insisted on laying low, never even coming into Prairie Junction for a holiday and dodging folks that went by. I thought you was studying up on a country to make your getaway to."

"Well, you won't give me away, will ya, Hod? The rest of the bunch have all pulled stuff, but none of 'em——"

"I guess none of 'em ever ventured in with a thin overcoat like the one you've got on at this time of year," finished McGrew.

"But ya won't——"

"I won't give you away on one condition," snapped McGrew, "and that is that you go back with me tonight and put in another six months. I've been hunting all over town and I can't find a man."

"But I never liked it out there, Hod. The gang's all here and——"

"Think it over," injected Hod McGrew. "I'll give you just two minutes."

Nip Belder's thin overcoat, purchased through a mail order catalogue, was supplemented about the shoulders by a lap robe as Nip and Hod drove "south" beneath the cold stars—six miles south to the Hod McGrew farm.

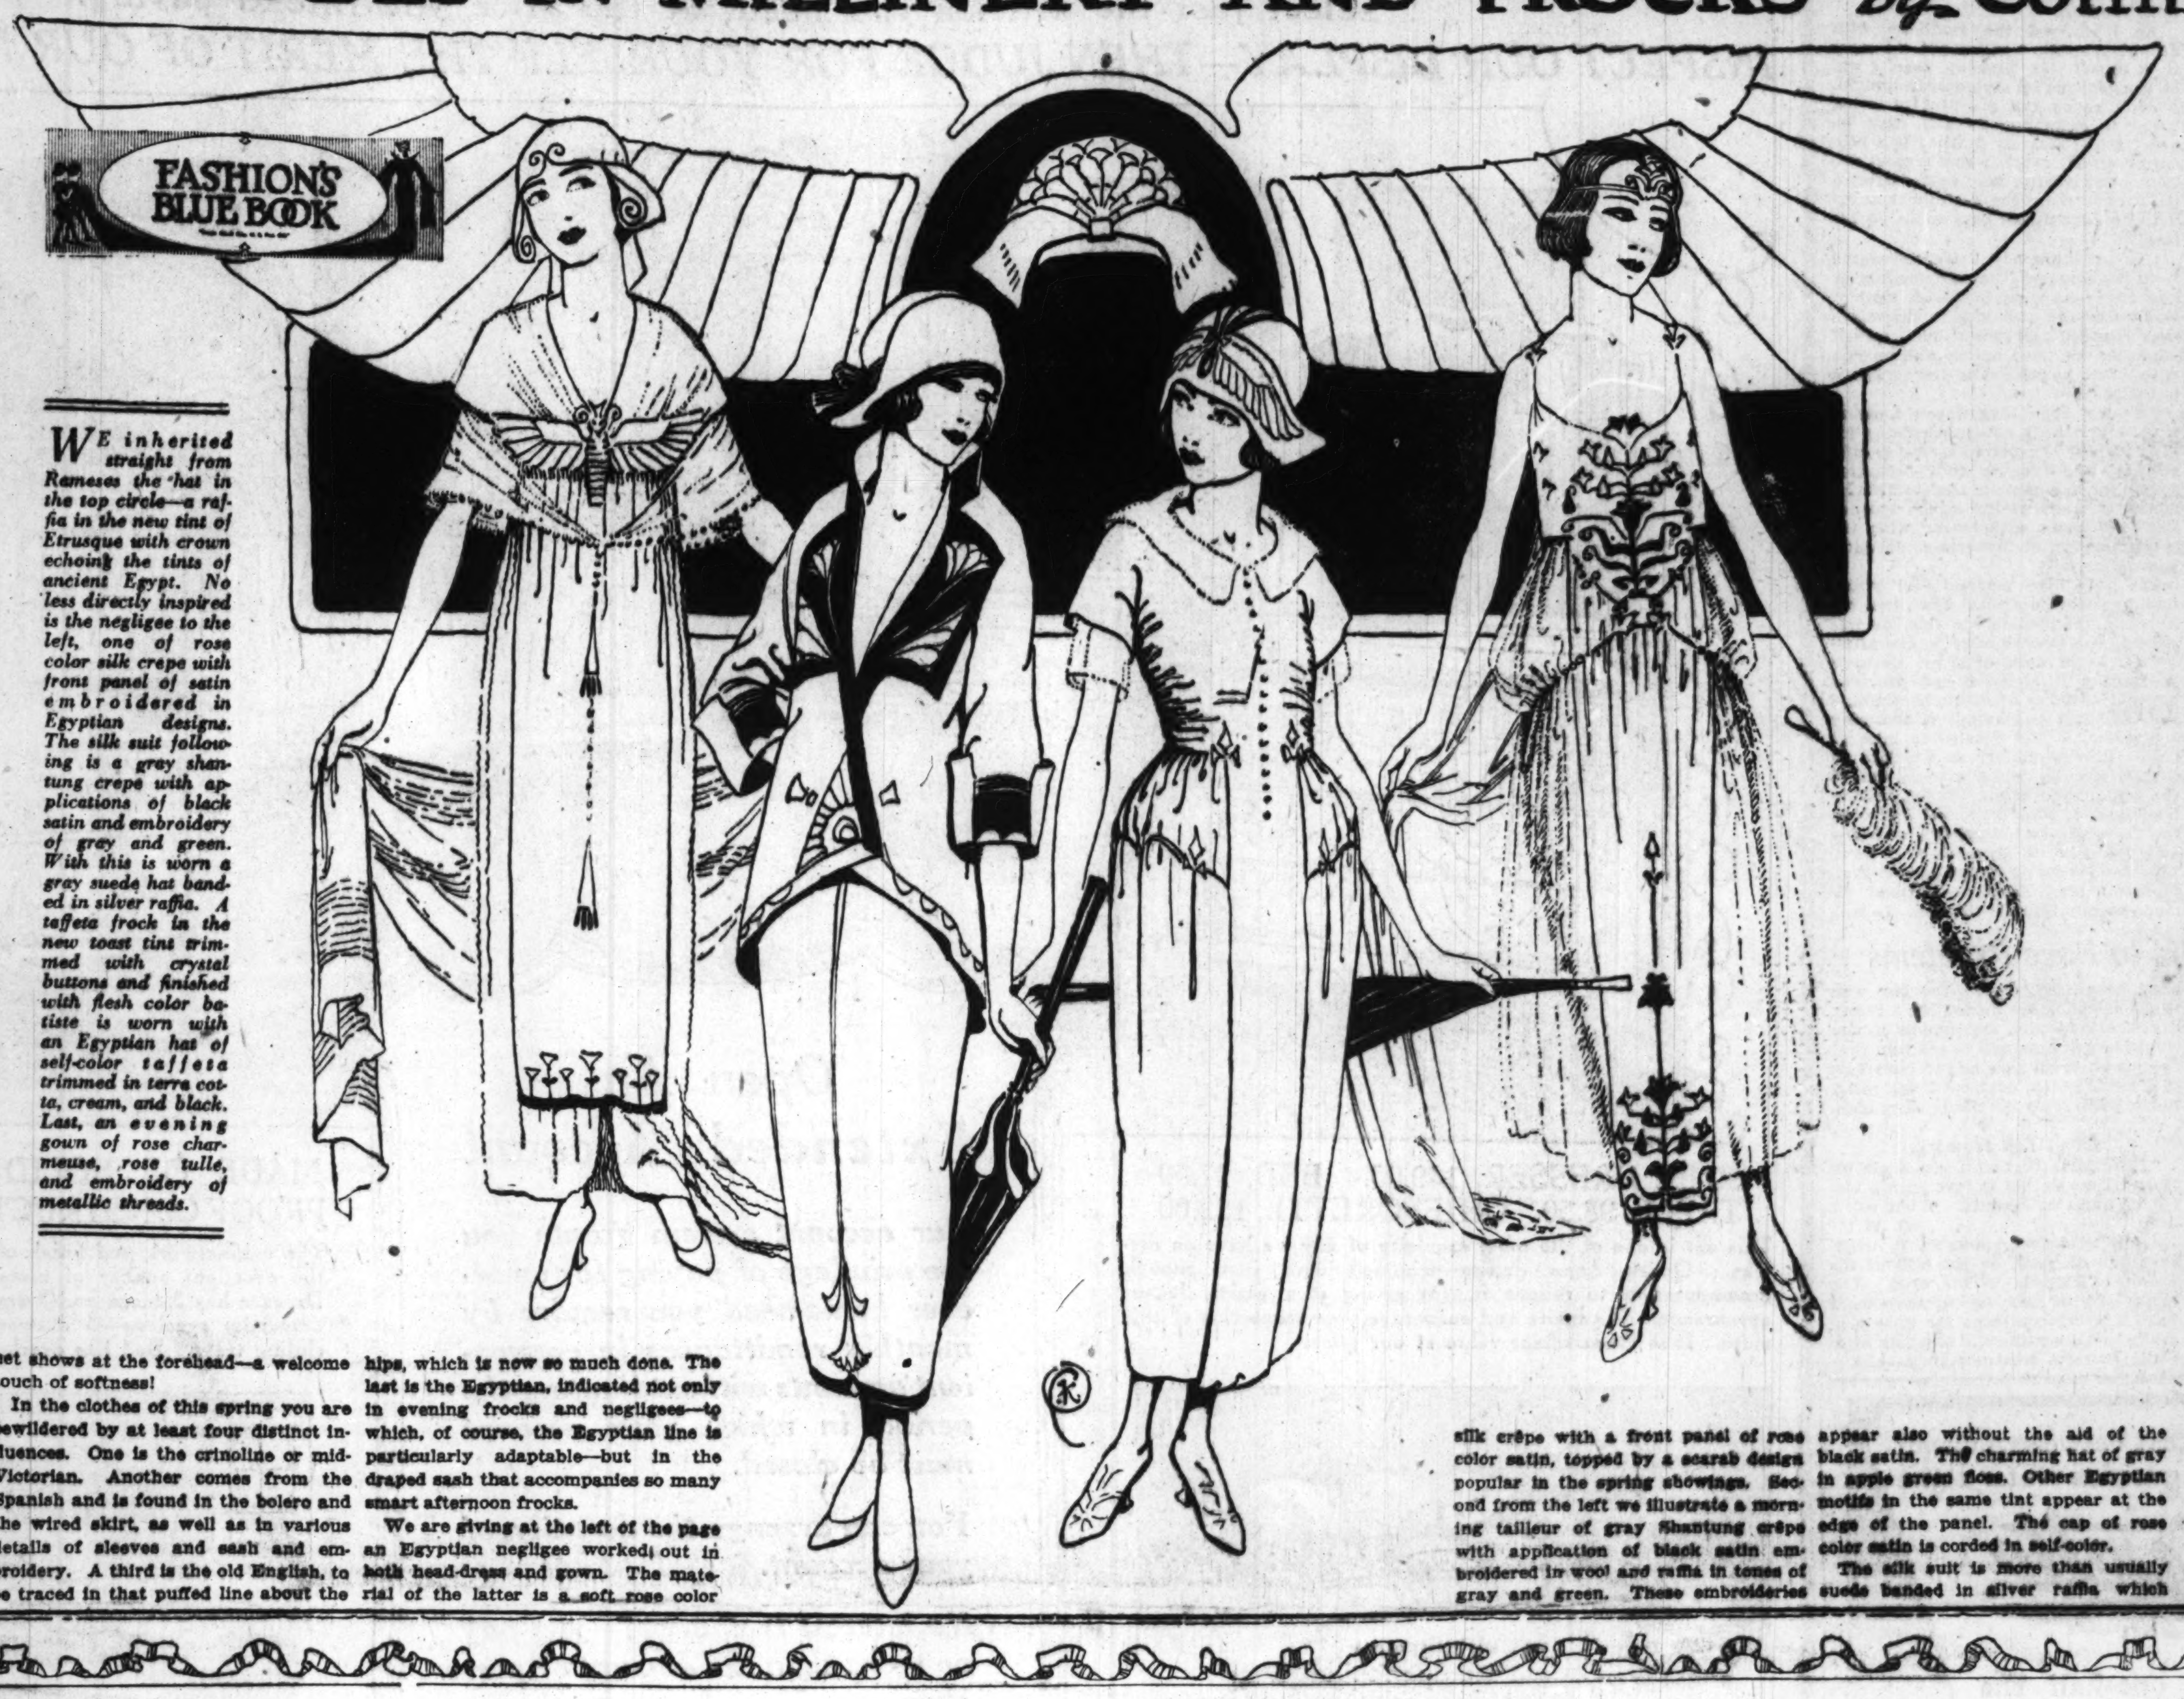
EGYPTIAN MODES IN MILLINERY AND FROCKS

by Corinne Lowe

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.



WE inherited straight from Rameses the hat in the top circle—a raffia in the new tint of Etrusque with crown echoing the tints of ancient Egypt. No less directly inspired is the negligee to the left, one of rose color silk crepe with front panel of satin embroidered in Egyptian designs. The silk suit following is a gray shantung crepe with applications of black satin and embroidery of gray and green. With this is worn a gray suede hat banded in silver raffia. A taffeta frock in the new toast tint trimmed with crystal buttons and finished with flesh color batiste is worn with an Egyptian hat of self-color taffeta trimmed in terra cotta, cream, and black. Last, an evening gown of rose charmeuse, rose tulle, and embroidery of metallic threads.

NEW YORK. — [Special correspondence.]—What's the use of henna-ing? The most prominent type of spring hat comes down low on the brow and sweeps down over the ears. No such hair muffler has been applied since the days of the Pharaohs. And it is direct from the Pharaohs that we derive the new mode of millinery.

Egypt never conquered Mark Antony, in fact, more than it has the present world of fashion. Not only do many of the hats follow the cap-like, ear-tabbed effects of the Nile, the colors are those faded, yet rich, tones which one finds in ancient tombs of Egypt. Among these are the yellow, red and the wonderful blurred blue of mummy wrappings and statuettes. They are known respectively as Egyptian red and Egyptian blue and both appear conspicuously in many of the hats one sees nowadays. With them, of course, is introduced characteristically much soft, sooty black. And in numerous models one finds all the Egyptian tones mingled via ribbons or embroidery or feathers or raffia.

One representative model from Lewis, the great Paris milliner, who is really the dynamo of the Egyptian movement, illustrates this course. It is of ciré satin, in Egyptian red, and has the turnback cuff which one locates in most of the oriental shapes. This cuff is embroidered in raffia in all the faded Egyptian tones. The effect is wonderfully colorful, of course, and there are actually some women pretty enough to wear these hats without brim, which submerge the hair and act as a frame for the face.

To go on to the raffia! This straw has leaped lately into prominence both as a trimming for frocks and hats. We are showing at the top of this page a hat made of raffia which would make Rameses himself feel as if he were back home. The color here is Etrusque, another shade which is widely sponsored this spring by the leading Paris millinery establishments. This is a light yet warm brown—almost the shade of the Pyrenees or the Rockies. This tint makes, of course, a wonderful foil for brighter tones. And here such brightness is introduced through a crown of raffia striking the Egyptian tones of red, blue and black. The raffia has a varnish finish and a foundation of self-colored net shows at the forehead—a welcome touch of softness!

In the clothes of this spring you are bewildered by at least four distinct influences. One is the crinoline or mid-Victorian. Another comes from the Spanish and is found in the bolero and the wired skirt, as well as in various details of sleeves and sash and embroidery. A third is the old English, to be traced in that puffed line about the hips, which is now so much done. The last is the Egyptian, indicated not only in evening frocks and negligees—to which, of course, the Egyptian line is particularly adaptable—but in the draped sash that accompanies so many smart afternoon frocks.

We are giving at the left of the page an Egyptian negligee worked out in both head-dress and gown. The material of the latter is a soft rose color silk crêpe with a front panel of rose color satin, topped by a scarab design popular in the spring showings. Second from the left we illustrate a morning tailleur of gray Shantung crêpe with application of black satin embroidered in wool and raffia in tones of gray and green. These embroideries appear also without the aid of the black satin. The charming hat of gray in apple green floss. Other Egyptian motifs in the same tint appear at the edge of the panel. The cap of rose color satin is corded in self-color.

The silk suit is more than usually suede banded in silver raffia which accompanies this suit is one of the more or less Napoleonic shapes so much worn this spring.

Of course, a taffeta frock is almost as essential as an income. Indeed, for spring wear, many women will probably become shepherds of taffeta flocks. They may start out with the navy blue or black of street occasions, follow it up with the evening taffeta of light tint, and then add another to taste.

For those who want something more thrilling than the incessant navies and blacks and grays here, second from the right, is a newer taffeta program. For this comes in toast color, the tint so much used in present day blouses, and it has other recommendations. A line of crystal buttons forms on the quaint bodice; the skirt achieves its tiny side fullness in the new way, and collar and cuffs of flesh colored batiste edged with crystal beads throw a little bit of dawn over a shade rather too trying for most of us.

The hat worn with this—another Egyptian model—is of taffeta in the same shade, with trimming of terra cotta, cream, and black raffia.

Evening frocks of this year have been so apt to follow the one regulation of V-ing in the back, high in the front, and draped that a model of such individuality as that at the right of the page is sure to be welcomed. This is of rose charmeuse and the corsage, as well as the front and back panels, the latter of which forms the train, are embroidered in metallic threads—green, blue, and mauve. The over-drapery of rose tulle—of the same shade as the gown—is caught around the hips by self-colored beads. The motifs of this gown are suggestive of the Egyptian and so, too, is the design of the fillet.

Evening head dresses of this year embrace almost as much variety as do the omnipresent ostrich fans. One of the most popular and surely, to the girl with bobbed hair, one of the most becoming, is the simple chaplet of leaves or roses or ribbons. However, a newer and more startling mode now being adopted by a few fashionable women over here is the Botticelli coiffure started by Paris. This consists of a single jewel falling down over the forehead and of jeweled pendants at the ears. Then, of course, there are the various oriental head dresses which some of us are always doing.

Millinery

The fascinating magnetism of the Spring Hat—the first thing to attract the eye! Of course, one must choose it with care. Here the Spring Hat theme is interpreted with many a bewitching vagary of line—many a lovely lilt of color. Flower trimmed hairbraids, so expressive of youth and springtime, vie with the daringly lovely Sphinx Hat that gives mysterious charm to the eyes of its wearer. "Off-the-Face" Hats of Crin, tailleur Hats of engaging simplicity, are rivals for the favor of fashionable women.

Blouses

Seemingly infinite are the ways in which Blouses choose to be lovely this springtime, and endless are the lovely mannerisms they assume to give color and sparkle to the Spring costume. Sometimes they appear in the guise of supple Crepe de Chine, artfully fringed. Sometimes the medium is rich Tricolette, fitting firmly about the waist and hips. Again it may be Georgette, heavily and richly beaded, embroidered and lace trimmed.

Summer Furs

Fashion says Summer Furs, and our fur salon is in complete readiness with an interesting variety of one and two skin chokers, throws, coatees and scarfs, in mole, natural squirrel, sable, mink, stone marten, Baum Marten, Kolinsky, Hudson seal and sables.

$45 to $500 and upwards.

Spring Frocks

Tradition declares that women must have many frocks for Spring. And every woman approves — for never, never, have frocks been lovelier! Stunning afternoon frocks reveal every new manner of artistry and many interesting variations of the prevailing silhouette. Dinner Gowns are lovely to the extreme in their exquisite colorings—and Evening Dresses are adorably filmy, heavily beaded and embroidered.

Suits

The Eton, the Bolero, the Tailormade and the long coat model are the accepted modes in suits this Spring. Their great charm lies in the wide latitude of choice they offer. Youth will delight in the jaunty Eton or Bolero, while her elder will prefer the smart tailleur. New trimmings, stitchings, embroideries, and bright-colored sashes achieve for them an individuality that is most pleasing. In Twillouise, Florenza, Poiret Twill, Tricotine.

Wraps

The silhouette depends on the manner of the draping, for it's a season of drapery in wraps. The new materials lend themselves graciously to lovely draped lines, and are just as entrancing as their names suggest — Chatoyant, Desserette, Fortuna, Marvella, Rodier Duvetyn, and Pantinette. Of even greater allure are the new colors—Japonica, Grotto, Jade, Filbert, Chocolate, Radium, Patridge, and Erica Rose.

Real Love Stories

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. The Tribune will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago.

PROPINQUITY WAS THE THING.

As I had reached the age of 25 years, and was still on the parental bough with no prospects of being plucked in matrimony, mother determined to take matters in her own hands, and save me the "stigma" of being an old maid. For mother was of the old school, a dainty little clinging vine, whose soft tendrils gloried in their utter dependence on the bough of masculinity, and who regarded marriage as the end and aim of every normal girl. She viewed with disapproval—nay, with wildest alarm—my utter indifference as to whether or not I ever entered the estate of matrimony.

In fact, I fear that deep in her maternal bosom mother puzzled over me as did the hen over her ugly duckling; for not only did my views differ radically from hers, but physically I was large, athletic, incorrigibly healthy, and disgustingly happy in my state of single blessedness. But mother evidently decided I must be saved in spite of myself; she not only agreed with Dickens that propinquity was the thing, but amplified his theory by bringing the propinquity to pass.

Whenever she met one of the eligible men of the town she effusively invited him to call and meet her "little" daughter. This caused me no end of humiliation and embarrassment; but the climax was reached one day in early summer.

Mother had managed to become acquainted with the junior partner of one of the largest real estate firms in town, and on pretext of asking his advice on some matters had invited him to supper. Knowing mother's little schemes, I concluded to absent myself for the day. So early in the afternoon I took my racket and hied me to the tennis grounds. Once there I decided it was scarcely fair to mother to do this, so I hurried back home to inform her of my intention to remain away until evening.

As I entered the vestibule with swinging stride, I called out, "I came back to tell you, Momsey, dear, I will be conspicuous by my absence tonight. I don't relish the prospect of being bored to extinction by any male biped." I had scarcely finished this hoydenish speech when I saw a most distinguished looking man seated toward the back of the room, gazing out at me with an inscrutable expression on his face.

I do not know how I ever recovered from my consternation and chagrin, or how I ever managed to placate mother. For weeks the hurt look in the man's eyes haunted me, and I found myself admiring the good nature and aplomb with which he carried off the awkward situation.

One day, something impelled me to write him a little note, apologizing for my rudeness. I received a most cordial response and a request to be permitted to join me in a game of tennis. This resulted in a friendship which ripened into a warmer attachment with the consummation mother had so devoutly wished for.

We have been married four years, and it was not until last week that my husband confided to me that he had gone to see mother early in the afternoon to avoid dining with us. Mother's reputation, it appears, had preceded her and, being as averse to becoming a Benedict as I was averse to becoming a matron, he had decided to take no risks. But one glance at my face on that fateful day had convinced him of the genuineness of my dismay, and my frankly disarming little note had done the rest. He had decided I was one girl who was not on a husband hunt. This had served to arouse his interest. Mother's [and Charles Dickens] famous propinquity did the rest. L. B.

He Asked for a Loan.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young schoolgirl and I am in love with a boy two years older. He is handsome. He asked me to loan him $5, but I don't think it is right. He lives near me. I meet him every morning and after school. I love him very much. Please advise me what to do. CURLY HAIR."

Curly Hair, "handsome is as handsome does," therefore your Romeo must be an ugly boy. Any boy who would ask a girl for money has a pretty low streak in him, and maybe if you would be good enough to tell him that the lesson from you might cure him of a habit which, continued, will make him a thoroughly despised young man.

Don't Tell Howard.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 13 and I am deeply in love with a boy by the name of Howard. What will I do? B. W."

Don't let Howard suspect it, whatever you do, dear, or you will be the object of ridicule in his eyes. You know boys of your age or thereabout have a great contempt for girls generally and a sentimental one gets especially scornful treatment from him.

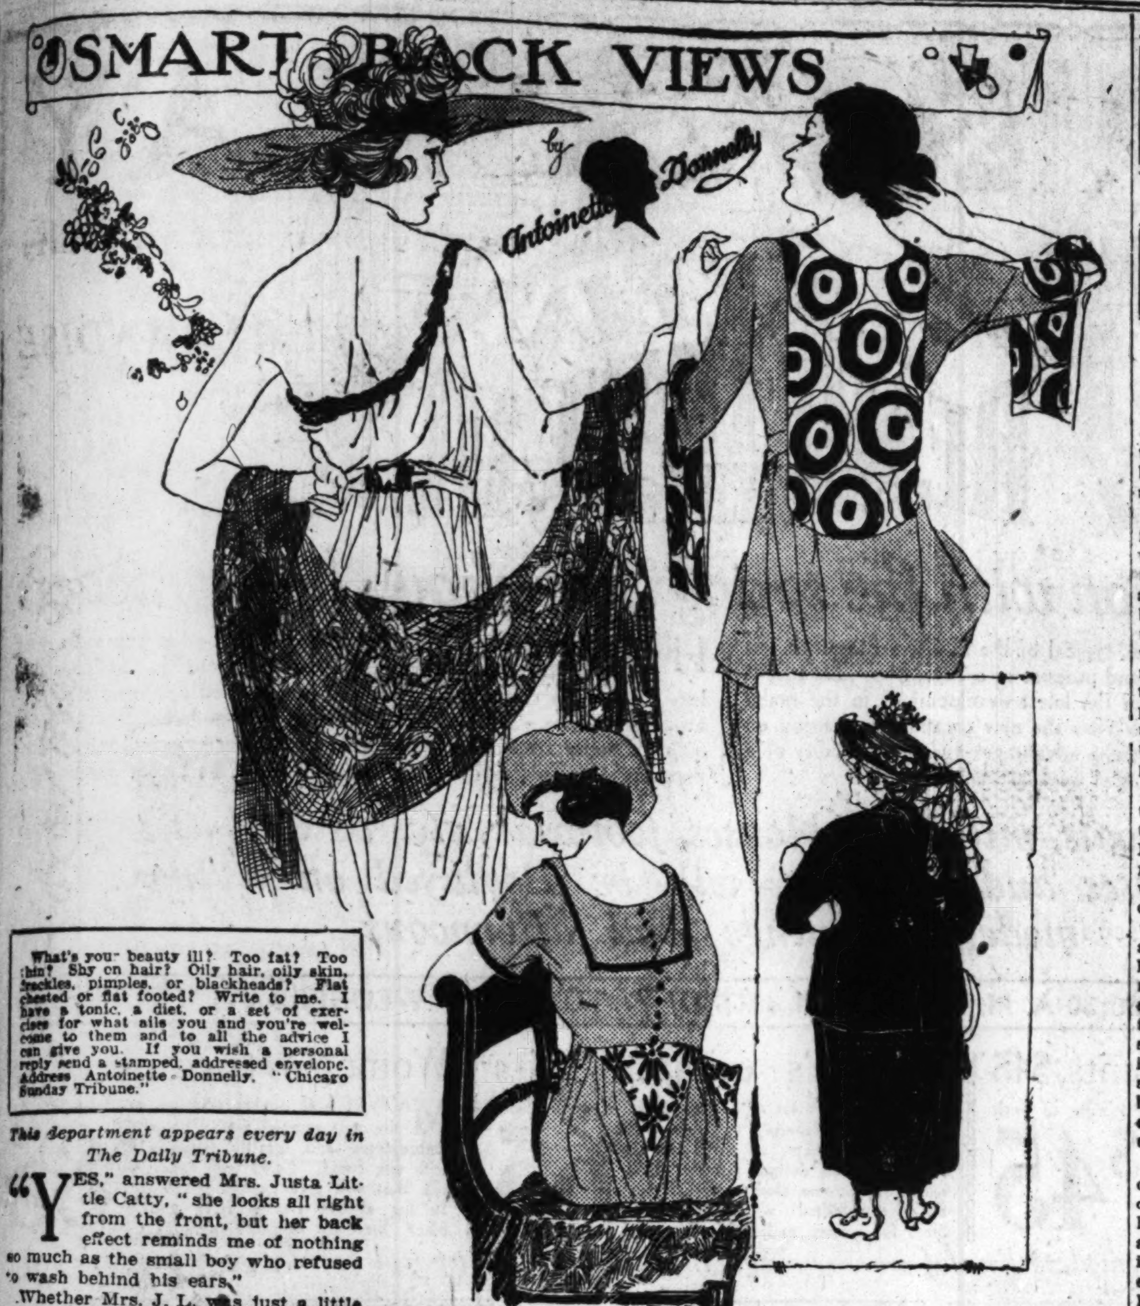
SMART BACK VIEWS



What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send a stamped, addressed envelope. "YES," answered Mrs. Justa Little Catty, "she looks all right from the front, but her back effect reminds me of nothing so much as the small boy who refused to wash behind his ears."

Whether Mrs. J. L. was just a little catty or frankly honest in her appraisal I cannot say, not having seen the particular object of her remark. But haven't you seen in a day's walk just that type repeated frequently? Heels run down, dress applied with deliberate intent to please the passerby approaching from front, but trusting the same Providence were abroad to protect her back as ministered to the eyes that would have spied on poor Lady Godiva.

Smart Woman Studies Back.

A smart woman nowadays doesn't take her back as something to be accepted with blind resignation like a husband's petty vices. She doesn't let it remain just a back, but she studies its possibilities, remedying here with a panel and there with a narrower line, hair tucked in at a skillful turn, and veil, if she wears one, fastened so neatly that its beginning and end make another contribution to the charm of subtlety. Feels? Smart; exact; perfect.

And there you have the woman who extracts the adjectives that are music to the feminine ear for which they are intended: "Stunning, smart, and chic!"

It is not just by the grace of a beauty rod that the adjectives are earned. Study and thought are required. Modistes have worked the backs of dresses until they have reached a perfection unimagined a few years back.

Overcome Nature's Failures.

The smart ones in the profession who expect a return of trade season after season study the figure, and what nature has left undone it is their business to do. A modiste in an establishment with a name known internationally told me that a rule that was preached to the assistants there was:

"Let the front of the dress take care of itself because the back is so situated it can't."

"Make the thin woman with a sway back (the back that goes in at the waist), and there are hundreds of them, and if it weren't for long panels loose to the waist line and folded cleverly under the lower part of the belt what would one's eyes gain by looking backward at her?

For the Fat Woman.

"Or the fat woman with the overhangings of adipose supported by the corset top, for her there is the kimono sleeve cut on the bias, permitting the tight sleeve without drawing the waist tight across the back and giving it a rolling country perspective. And the belt lines adjusted high and adjusted low to suit the individual needs. Or if a slimming need is there a V inserted piece beginning at the back of the belt will do the trick.

"There are all manner of tricks and frills and furbelows and sashes and inverted squares and Vs to lend the helping hand, but it is applying them to the right back that is the art."

The fashion magazines are full of hints, and it is up to you to try them out if your back is not a pleasing picture on parade.

How Coiffure May Mar.

A short necked woman begins spoiling herself right at the start with her hair rolled down on the back of her neck and a wide brimmed hat atop of it. All she would have to do would be to try a high back turban to see its elongating effect after she had first done her hair atop her head instead of sliding sloppily down the back of the neck.

And shoes! Good heels and a neat pair of ankles will redeem an otherwise neglected back? But why neglect it when such a little more would make it perfect? Back or front view, they are the most important of the entire makeup. And the most damning note if they are unshined and run down.

It's all just a little matter of a greater chumminess with the hand mirror or any mirror in which you can just see what others see who have to travel behind you.

Trying to Appear Dignified.

When I was a girl of 18 I was chosen to be Goddess of Liberty at a Fourth of July celebration in a small town. As is usual on such occasions, the whole countryside turned out to celebrate, and there was a great crowd to see the goddess mount her improvised throne. As I crossed the lawn trying to appear dignified before the crowd I stepped in a gopher hole that had become overgrown with grass and turned a complete somersault, losing my crown and becoming unbecomingly tangled up in my long robes. My maids of honor picked me up, but it is needless to say I heard little of the address that followed. E. N.

Jumped a Foot.

One day last week a new couple moved in the apartment across from me and of course I was curious, as all women are, to know their name. One morning when I went to get my mail I also stopped to look at the name, and was trying so hard to pronounce it when a woman said, "Pardon me, may I get my mail?" Say, I jumped a foot, and you bet I'm never going to look again for a name unless I'm real sure no one is waiting. W. F.

SUCCESS ON THE FARM.

A LONG and interesting letter came to me the other day from a woman who has been successful as a farmer. Her letter is too long to print in this column, but because of her unique achievement her story deserves recognition.

Miss Steele was born and raised in the city, and after leaving school worked for six years as a bookkeeper. She worked too long and too hard at her position, however, and her health became impaired. When she realized that she would have to give up her work she had only a small sum of money saved and no immediate relatives to whom she could appeal. The prospect frightened her, but she made up her mind that she would follow the doctor's instructions as closely as possible.

The doctor told her she would have to live out of the city and not go back to her job for six months or a year. He suggested that she try living on a ranch and recommended one to her where she could live cheaply. The idea of the ranch didn't please her, as that was too far away from her native city and the railroad fare would eat into her capital considerably. She compromised by going to a farm that was not many miles from her home. The doctor approved of her plan, and with her small savings she established herself in the household of a kind old farmer and his wife, where she endeavored by rest, wholesome food, and light exercise in the open to regain her lost energy and strength.

For the first two or three months on the farm Miss Steele thought and cared about nothing but getting back her health. She grew strong rapidly and at the close of the third month an interest in the farm and its work awakened in her. When she was able she helped the farmer's wife with her chores in the house, dairy, and kitchen garden, and occasionally when she felt equal to it she even went out to the fields with the farmer.

After six months of rest on the farm Miss Steele's condition had improved to normal and her little capital was dwindling. She had to begin earning a living again, but dreaded the idea of going back to her old job.

She conceived the idea of trying to obtain a position on one of the large model farms in her section of the country. As the result of an advertisement she found an ideal place where one part of her day was given to working as bookkeeper and secretary to the farm manager and another part devoted to work in the dairy.

For three years Miss Steele worked on the farm, doing every sort of task that came to her hand, and learning as much as she could about the care and raising of stock. During that time she bought and read every book and periodical she could find on the subject of stock farming.

By careful management of her finances she saved enough money during her three years on the farm to enable her to lease for a year a small stock farm. She went to work with a will, and at the end of the year she had made enough money to renew the farm lease for another year and live in comparative comfort.

It is now seven years since Miss Steele became an independent farmer, and in that time she has been so successful that she has been able to buy not only the small farm that gave her a start but several farms adjoining. She is not only a successful farmer who owns a model farm but is considered by the farmers in her vicinity as an authority on stock raising.

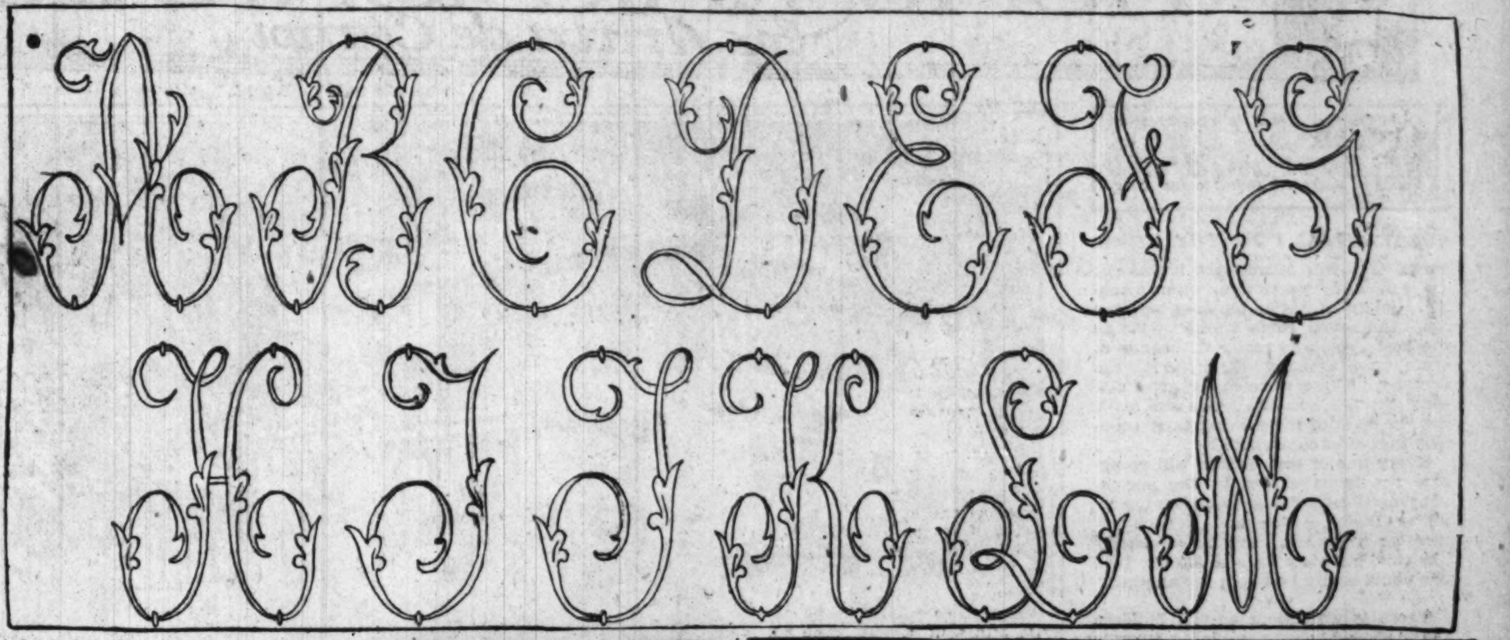
Practical and Fancy Needlework By Clotilde



If you have any question relating to sewing that you would like to have answered write to Clotilde, Chicago Tribune, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

Initial letters should first be outlined in a close, even running stitch, then the spaces filled in with a chain or other padding stitch. Where a running stitch is employed, the stitch should be longer on the upper side, and it is always heavier in the center than towards the edges, thus giving a curved or rounded surface when finished. The padding stitches must all be on the right side, having the stitches that come to the wrong side as small as possible so as to keep the wrong side flat.

The embroidering should be done in a frame, and the stitch is a simple over and over, taken evenly and close together, the stitch always running at right angles to the padding and taken as close together as is possible without lapping.

Letters are sometimes outlined with the over and over stitch and the inclosed spaces filled with the seed stitch; but there is nothing more beautiful than the plain "laid" embroidery work if perfectly done.

MRS. G. C. W.: Usually some of the larger dry goods stores will do accordion plaiting or have it done for you; also there are small specialty shops that do all kinds of plaiting. Three and one-half yards of 36 inch material should be ample to make an empire skirt for a 15 year old girl. The price per yard would depend of course entirely on the kind of material you choose.

MRS. MARY I. C.: I have mailed you the sample of blue which I think will be pretty for the blanket stitch; also a design for the corners of the waist. This will have to be worked over canvas and the canvas pulled out. It can be worked entirely in one color or you can combine two.

COURTESY, AMERICAN BUILDER.

SUBSTANTIAL COUNTRY HOME.

THERE was a time, and it was not so many years ago, when a majority of home builders selected the seven room frame house as the best type, and many thousands of them were erected throughout the country. There were many good reasons why this sort of a home was built, not the least of these being their economy in cost of construction.

Every one of my readers will recognize the home shown in the accompanying illustration as being an old familiar friend. The homes they remember may not have been exactly like this, but they were so similar that one could easily be taken for another.

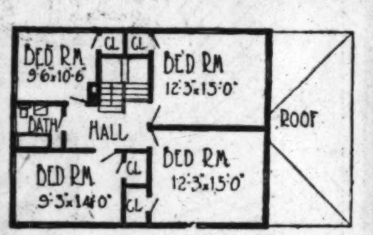
There is an axiom among builders that, spelled phonetically, "korners kount," meaning that every break in a straight wall, both foundation and in the superstructure, increases the cost of a building. That is why these rectangular homes were in demand. Besides, this sort of building allowed every foot of the interior to be used.

The house shown here is 26x34 feet, but it looks much larger. The sizable appearance is obtained by the wide front porch, the dormer windows in the attic, and the roof projections. This method of breaking the severe lines of the house also added to its exterior beauty.

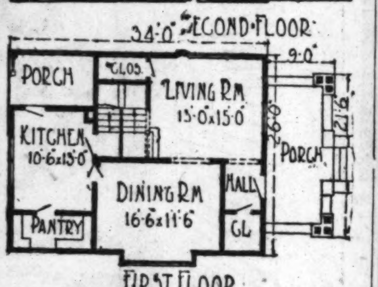
Three of the seven rooms are on the first floor and four on the second. The entrance is into a small hall or alcove of the living room. The latter is of good size, 13x15 feet. Adjoining it through a cased opening is the dining room, 11 feet 6 inches by 16 feet 6 inches. The wide bay with three windows makes the dining room pleasant. At the rear, of course, is the kitchen, 10 feet 6 inches by 13 feet. Adjoining the kitchen on one side is a large pantry, and on the other a porch set into the corner of the house.

An open stairway out of the living room and an inclosed stair out of the kitchen join at the first landing and lead to the second floor. Four good sized bedrooms, each a corner room, are shown on the plan. The bathroom, located at the end of the central hall on the second floor, is convenient to all the rooms.

Stairs lead from the second floor to the attic, which is large, and because of the shape of the room provides space for additional rooms or for storage.



SECOND FLOOR



FIRST FLOOR

The building is set on a concrete or masonry foundation and has a concrete floor. The best building practice requires that the basement be subdivided into rooms—one for the heating plant, the adjoining room for the fuel supply, one for the laundry and the laundry equipment, and a fourth for the storage of fruits and vegetables.

It will be noted that a garage is shown in the view of the home. It also will be seen that the garage follows the same architectural design as the house. The garage is designed to hold two cars and to provide space for a work bench where the home owner can make such minor repairs as are required.

Let Your Teeth Glisten

Like the Teeth You See—Remove That Cloudy Film

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

That is film

It is the film coat that dims the teeth's luster. Film is the basis of tartar. Film is the stain-absorber—not the tooth enamel.

Film is called "bacterial plaque," because germs breed there—millions of them. And countless troubles, local and internal, are now traced to them.

The acids which cause decay form in that film and stay there. So film removal, day by day, is the vital part of teeth cleaning. Without that, brushing cannot save the teeth.

Look about you—note how many white teeth you see nowadays. Your own friends have them—ask them how they get them.

A new teeth-cleaning method is being fast adopted. Millions of teeth now show the results of it. Leading dentists everywhere advise it. See what that method does, and quickly, on your own teeth. Make this ten-day test.

You must fight film

To have whiter, safer teeth you must fight film—the cause of most tooth troubles.

Film is that viscous coat which you feel with your tongue. It is ever-present, ever-forming. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and remains.

The ordinary tooth paste does not dissolve it. A soapy tooth paste makes it more clinging. So the tooth brush has left much of it intact, until a dentist could remove it.

That is why so many brushed teeth discolor and decay. Tartar forms and pyorrhea starts. Despite the tooth brush, these tooth troubles have been constantly increasing. Every dentist nowadays knows that this film is responsible.

How teeth are ruined

The film absorbs stains and becomes discolored. Thus the teeth grow cloudy. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. So few escape these troubles if they leave film on the teeth.

Dental science has for years sought a way to fight film, and the way has now been found. Able authorities have proved it by convincing clinical and laboratory tests.

Now, for home use, the method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. In three great ways this tooth paste meets modern dental requirements. Dentists are urging its adoption. And millions of 10-Day Tubes are sent out, so that people may see its effects.

Based on active pepsin

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

This method long seemed impossible. Pepsin must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. But science has discovered a harmless activating method. Now active pepsin can be daily used. And two other methods are combined with it to bring desired effects.

The result is a tooth paste which is doing what nothing else has done. And the problem of tooth protection has been solved as it never was before.

Argument not needed

Pepsodent quickly proves itself. The results are too apparent to be doubtful. So a 10-Day Tube is being sent to anyone who asks. A book goes with it to explain the effects.

Thus millions are seeing what it does, and deciding for themselves.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how the teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Then consider what this means. Film is the teeth's chief enemy. Its removal means not only pearly teeth, but cleaner, safer teeth. The results may be of tremendous importance, both to you and yours. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

The dainty prettiness of the little collars, vestees and cuff sets, too, is bewitching enough to inspire purchase on mere grounds of exquisiteness, and how much more desirable they seem when one reflects how the sheer organdies and linens, lace-frilled and embroidered, will touch up the silk dress or make more attractive the suit.

The new slip-on gloves of silk, in pretty colors and shades, harmonizing with the spring costume, are always important items in this season's wardrobe. It is so easy to keep them spotlessly fresh. We have kid gloves, too, in all colors and styles; heavy gloves for driving, and the soft sleek leathers.

Well to the top of the spring shopping list come blouses to wear with the spring suit or the sport skirt. Dainty pastel shades in georgette, beaded and embroidered, modish tricolettes and crepe de chines are among the attractive assortments. There are the little cotton, voile and linen blouses, some in tailored styles, so easily kept fresh and dainty.

Fabrics Whole wardrobes lie latent in these great bolts of summery materials. The woman who reviews our array of yard goods will want to make her own clothes from the wonderfully soft silks, sheer crisp organdies, linens or lawns of dainty colorings, and a multitude of new and fashionable weaves in many patterns.

Sweaters Nowadays the sweater is just as much at home indoors as out. Soft, woolly yarns in colors brilliant or subdued are fashioned into pretty little slip-ons. Silk sweaters this year are prettier than ever, and the season is coming when the silken sweater coat will lend its gay dash and color to the boulevard walks.

Corsets The popular silhouette which the youthful spring styles demand can be emphasized by careful corset fitting. The woman today wants style and figure, but she wants comfort, too. Our expert fitters will help you to maintain or to attain the lines so in keeping with the trim spring costumes. We carry a variety of all desirable makes in corsets.

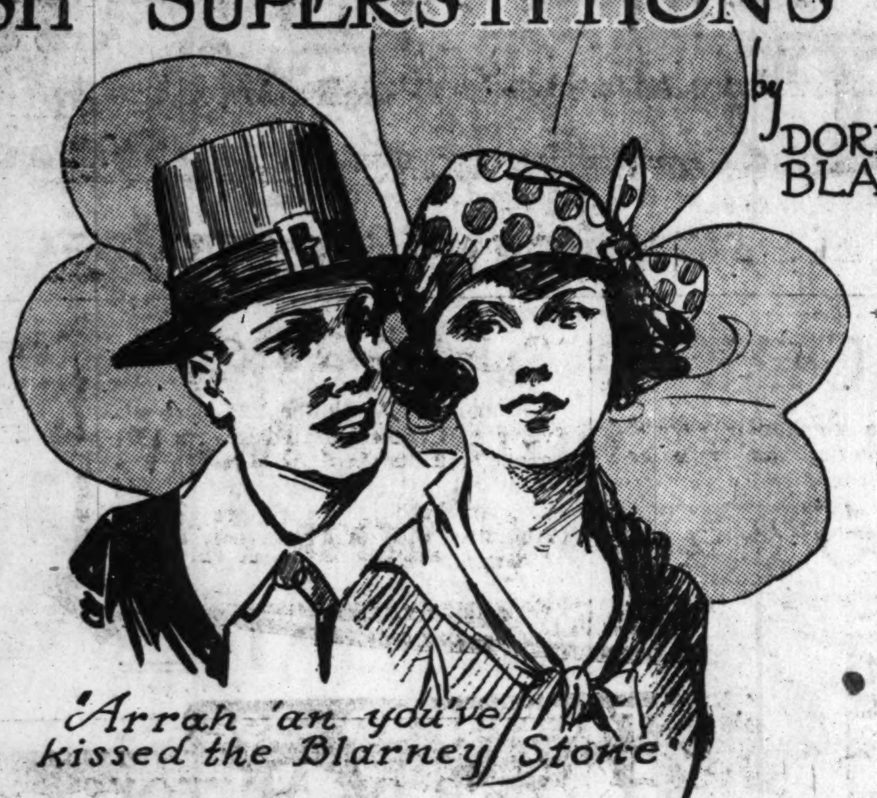
IRISH SUPERSTITIONS

by DORIS BLAKE



'Arrah 'an you've kissed the Blarney Stone'

THE most popular of the many Irish legends are those woven around St. Patrick, as his is the national fête day in the emerald isle. The day is celebrated by Irishmen wherever they exist and the shamrock is worn in commemoration of the fact that when St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, born about 386 A. D., was preaching the doctrine of the trinity, he made use of this plant which bears three leaves on one stem, as a symbol of this great mysterium.

The following bit is a peculiarly Irish version of that most popular legend about St. Patrick driving the snakes and vermin out of Ireland.

There's not a mile in Ireland's isle where the dirty vermin musters;
Where'er he put his dear forefoot he murdered them in clusters.
The toads went hop, the frogs went flop, slap dash into the water,
And the beasts committed suicide to save themselves from slaughter.

Nine hundred thousand vipers blue he charmed with sweet discourses,
And dined on them at Killaloo in soups and second courses.
When blind worms crawling on the grass disgusted all the nation,
He gave them a rise and opened their eyes to a sense of the situation.

The Wicklow hills are very high, and so's the Hill of Howth, sir;
But there's a hill much higher still—ay, higher than them both, sir;
'Twas on the top of this high hill St. Patrick preached the sarmint
That drove the frogs into the bogs and bothered all the varmit.

There is a tale told about an Irishman who made a bet with an American in Boston that if he made a ring of Irish earth around a snake, the snake would not get out of it. He bet $700, every cent he had. Then he got from Ireland a little bag of sand gathered off the shore near Dublin and made a ring of it on the ground. The snake could not get over that ring, and it died there and the man won the bet.

The Welsh are credited with the belief that snakes will not bite an Irish person.

Next in popularity is the Blarney stone, said to possess the power to endow any one who kisses it with unusual felicity in the use of flatery and cajolery, and a great persuasive eloquence. The position of the Blarney stone seems to be a matter of dispute. Some claim that it is inserted in the wall of Blarney castle in Ireland, about twenty feet from the top, and that the person wishing to kiss it must be suspended by his heels. According to others, the stone is lying in fragments on the ground, while still others affirm that it is on the summit of the square tower.

The village of Blarney is about four miles from Cork. The castle is situated in the midst of beautiful groves and was built in the fifteenth century. Its walls are eighteen feet thick. According to tradition, the castle was besieged by the English under Carew, Earl of Totness, who having concluded an armistice with the commander of the castle on the condition of surrender, waited long for the fulfillment of the terms, but was put off from day to day with soft speeches instead, until he became the jest of Elizabeth's ministers.

Other superstitions woven around St. Patrick's day are:

It is unlucky to transact important business on the day. St. Patrick willed that his day should always be fine, so in Ireland ever since his time it is invariably a "foine day for shure."

A superstition that is seasonal with the short skirts of the present day is told by Yeats in the Celtic Twilight. "A lady I once knew saw a village child running about with a long trailing petticoat upon her and asked the creature why she did not have it cut short. 'It was my grandmother's,' said the child; 'would you have her going about yonder with her petticoat up to her knees and she dead but four days?' I have read a story of a woman whose ghost haunted her people because they made her grave clothes too short so that the fires of purgatory burned her knees."

BONING AND PLANKING FISH.

A FINE planked fish or sirloin steak seems to make a great appeal to those who like to have appetites stimulated through their eyes. A number of letters have come to me within a year asking how to mount a fish or steak in this fashion. It is really about the only fashion of mounting that we have as yet adopted, although we have but to go to the French to learn how to build up and garnish dishes of many sorts. A thick cake or layer of corn meal mush is one of the ways of building up a meat dish in much the same fashion as on the plank.

But the plank is probably an American device, first used as a cooking method. Now the plank, heated, takes the place of the platter, and either does not go to the fire at all or but briefly. Originally the plank was rather primitive, but now it is mounted like a table mirror and the board itself is quite an elegant affair. Even little fish like smelts, fried, are served from a wreath of potato roses on a plank.

Shad Tastiest of Fish.

The majority of recipes for planking shad, or a beefsteak, are about fifty words long. This suggests that the business is almost too simple. Just a year ago there was printed an extended description of how to bone and plank a shad in the Ladies' Home Journal by A. Louise Abdrea, who is one of the popular and much experienced lecturers and demonstrators on cooking, and there are various reasons why it seems to me that her description is worthy of renewed attention.

She begins her article by saying that epicures of world-wide experience say that the shad is the tastiest fish that swims, but that on account of its myriads of bones not many people are acquainted with this supremely delicious and distinctively American fish, and that even when one has risked the bones the shad becomes cold while salvaging the first few morsels. Then she says:

"Boned shad has been expensively attainable heretofore, chiefly in hotels, although it is possible and practicable in every kitchen. Any one can bone a shad. It is surprisingly simple when you know how. Moreover, the articles or instruments necessary for the purpose are found in every kitchen. A sharp knife, pointed and with a narrow blade; your kitchen scissors; a two-tine fork, a strawberry huller, and a good sized square of clean wrapping paper upon which to lay the fish during the process of boning.

Cutting Out the Backbone.

"Your first step is to lay your fish in the center of the paper and, with a large knife, cut off the head and tail close up so as to prevent waste. Now, with your slender bladed knife, split the fish all the way, along the under part (the side that has been opened previously to clean the fish). Then, as though you were opening a book, raise the top side of the fish with the left hand and with the knife in your right hand cut the flesh away close to the bones until you have reached the back of the fish, so that the fish can be opened out to lie flat. Any fish remaining on the top of the backbone should be scraped off and pressed into position on to what was the upper half of the fish, thus leaving this flesh on its proper side—and saving it.

"Next, commencing at the 'neck' of [illegible], separate the backbone from the flesh of the lower side and, holding the bone in the left hand, with the knife still in your right hand, cut away the bone from the flesh, down its entire length, scraping off any flesh that adheres. The backbone, with its innumerable small bones attached, being removed, the fish lies flat and wide open. Along each half make three shallow cuts, equal distance apart and running the entire length of the fish.

Bones from the Sides.

"Now, with the point of your knife locate the bones in the first slit. This is easily done if you will run your knife slowly down the incision. Slip the tine of the fork under each bone as you come to it, lift it out, and continue until you have gone the entire length. Then treat your other incisions in the same way.

"You will notice that the nearer you reach the outer edge of the fish the shorter are the bones, and when the outer edge is reached, if you cut off a strip about half an inch wide with the scissors, you will thus remove many small bones and not lose any edible value, as this section of the fish is thin. The small ventral bones come away with the strip also.

"After this run your finger down the incisions just to make sure, and if any bone remains you will feel its sharp ends and remove it with the huller and extract it quickly.

Ready for the Plank.

"After one-half of the fish has been treated in this manner, turn your attention to the other half. Make a mental note of one important point: Be careful when using the knife not to cut through the skin. After the fish has been boned on each side, close it up and with the scissors cut off the large dorsal fin from the back.

"When your shad is boned it is ready for the plank, and planked is the ideal way of serving this fish. Be sure the plank is larger than your fish, as a feature of the fish is its decorative entirety, to say nothing of its exquisite flavor. The plank should be thoroughly heated, then brushed over with an unsalted fat or oil and the shad laid on it with the skin side down. Now you can brush the fish over with melted butter and season with salt and pepper. My preference is for spreading the fish with seasoning butter, which is butter creamed and the salt and pepper mixed with it. This gives a more even distribution of the seasoning.

"Put your planked fish in a hot oven and leave it there until the fish is nearly cooked. Then remove it, plank and all, and decorate the edges with seasoned, creamy mashed potatoes which have been put through a pastry bag and tube. Brush this potato border over with slightly beaten egg and milk, and replace all to brown in the oven. While the potato is browning the fish will finish cooking. Any other decorations to be added to the plank, such as parsley, lemon, radish roses, bacon curls, and so on, should be ready so that they may be placed in position as soon as the plank comes from the oven.

"A planked fish will take about half an hour to cook, although when using a gas range shorter time will do it."

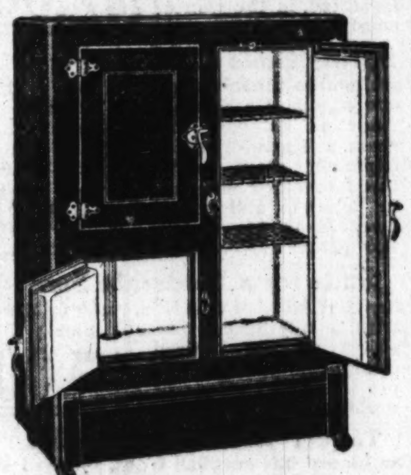
The Scientific Way to Keep Your Food Wholesome

If the health of your family is to be protected your food must be kept clean, fresh and wholesome. Spoilage must be prevented.

The Alaska Refrigerator keeps your food correctly cold—and wholesome. It insures efficient, scientific refrigeration for its entire contents. And at a saving of cost to you.

Ice actually lasts longer. The reason is—Alaska cork insulation. Thick walls of "cubed" cork and "confined" air—the two best insulators known to science—keep the cold air in, the warm air out. This perfected insulation is found only in Alaska Refrigerators.



Food compartments have linings of genuine, seamless porcelain, with rounded corners; or immaculate, durable white enamel. Always clean—easily washed. No odors can cling to these linings. They are as wholesomely clean as glass.

Many sizes and styles. Attractive cabinets, beautifully finished, durable. And all give perfect, scientific refrigeration. Yet the prices are no higher.

End your waste of food and ice. Put this economy into your kitchen now. An Alaska is as necessary now as in summer months—for there is no closed season on food spoilage. Save food—save ice—have clean, cool, cheaper food the year around—with an Alaska Refrigerator. At stores of dealers listed below.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

SILHOUETTE OF THE DAY.

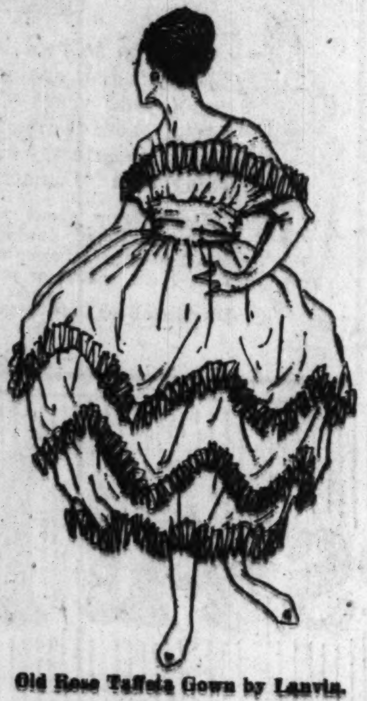
By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

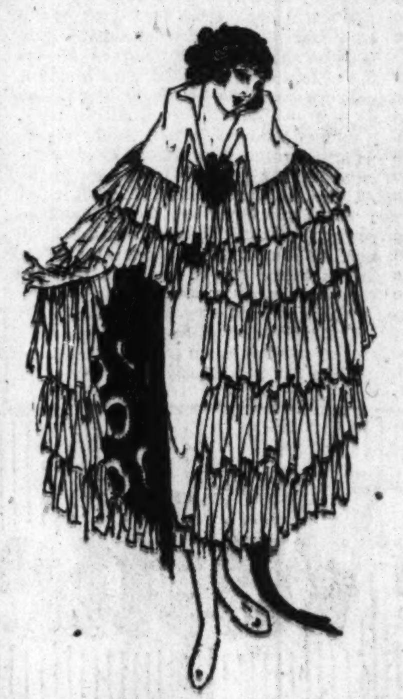
PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—If the world's supply of paper decreases just as the Paris silhouette expands, if the silhouette of the day will not go into the one column allotted to the fashion pictures of the day, the artist wishes me to say that he is very sorry, but he is not responsible for situations such as that, and the accompanying illustration would appear to be to portray what we are coming to in the way of the feminine figure divine.

These are preliminary and sporadic cases now breaking out in fashionable houses; by fall the epidemic will probably be in full last. If you look toward the future and wear your gowns for more than one season you will, without delay, begin making even the straight tunic, beloved heretofore alike of Latin and Anglo-Saxon, to flare a little from the hips. A wide ruffle around the skirt between hips and knees today is the same as money in the bank. It is a long time investment and no lottery about it.

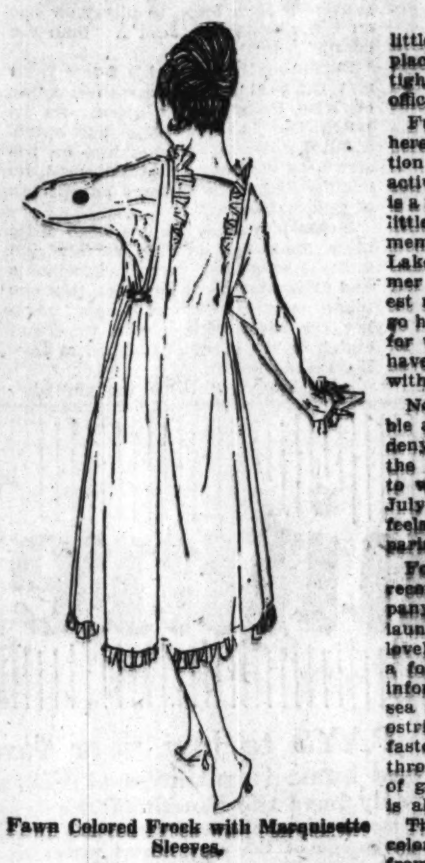
Other fashion notes of the day are that the Egyptian style will be popular this spring. I inquired what it was. We have seen a good many Egyptians around here lately, but not much style. It is discovered, on investigation, to consist of a low, wide girdle and a straight, long bodice blousing over it. It will be becoming to Americans—indeed, I think they have been using it more or less for the last forty years. The Cadet jacket, flaring from the sides, will be fashionable. Fine plaits will fall from the shoulders to another point below the belt, and the costume will be garnished lavishly with soutache braid.



Old Rose Taffeta Gown by Lanvin.



Wrap of Black Tulle Over Cloth of Gold.



Fawn Colored Frock with Marquisette Sleeves.

Skirts will be short. We might have that line set up in the composing room and never torn down. We need to run it every so often, for never will the French women, so the vendeuses say, consent to disguise themselves in long skirts. Indeed, they maintain that the short skirt constitutes the disguise, because it makes you look young even if you are old and ever so fat. Leather will be worn in trimmings—chamois and the soft doeskin that has been so much used in shoes. Gilets will be of leather, and collars erstwhile or organdy will many of them now appear in white doeskin and kid.

To get down to specific cases, the lady of the first sketch is costumed by Lanvin. She goes in for the extremely youthful, you know, and is, therefore, sought by many who are not so young. The first flush of youthful freshness has long ago left the cheek of many an owner of a gorgeous wardrobe, each item of which is signed with the little rose which is the emblem of this artist.

This early spring costume of hers consists of an enormous taffeta skirt of old rose hue with two rows of frillings put on like a rail fence around the lower half of its circumference. The narrower line of the bottom of the skirt is also frilled. The material used is the same taffeta that makes the skirt. A corresponding frill in the same manner and material bounds the line of the bodice on the north. It falls low over the shoulders and does little toward holding the bodice in place. Bands of white net drawn tightly over the shoulders perform this office.

Fur coats are going to be worn over here all summer. They are in preparation now for Deauville for the smart activities of July and August. This is a fashion item which, I fancy, means little in the lives of Americans—remembering, as I do, Lake Forest and Lake Geneva and Newport in the summer season. I can imagine the smartest resident observing: "Fashion can go hang. Bring me a bathing suit and for wrap a bathrobe of toweling, and have an ice cream soda ready for me, with nuts on it, when I come out."

Notwithstanding which uncontestable attitude, there is no gainsaying or denying that one must be prepared for the unexpected and be in a position to wrap up even in the corn belt in July. After dancing one occasionally feels a breath of air which, by comparison, almost seems cool.

For such rare emergencies I highly recommend the wrap of the accompanying sketch. It is designed and launched by the Maison Worth and is lovely. It is of black tulle ruffles over a foundation of cloth of gold and reinforced by a gay lining of peacock, sea green, and turquoise blue. An ostrich feather of turquoise blue is fastened, like a boutonniere, at the throat. The stiff, upstanding collar is of gold cloth, like the foundation. It is altogether a marvelous affair.

The third offering is a frock of fawn color which hangs perfectly straight from the shoulders, except for clasps of tan leather on either hip. The sleeves come of a guimpe worn under the dress, and they are of marquisette with gold lights in it. The ruffles down either side of the back are of the same material as the sleeves and, indeed, are a part of them, coming from an opening in the side seams.

Bright Sayings of the Children

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "The Tribune," Chicago.

My son asked me the other day what the word "extinguish" meant. I replied that it meant to put out. The next day I heard my son violently expostulating with his dog Tricks. I went to investigate what the trouble was and said, "Well, son, what has Tricks done?"

"Why, mother, I told him to 'extinguish' his paw and he can't understand what I mean." B. C.

Dean was standing in the middle of the floor and was the knowing possessor of a dirty face. The presence of a visitor rather fussed him, and she began to laugh. When Dean's mother asked the reason of so much mirth she replied, "O, I'm laughing at the expression on Dean's face." Dean said, "That's not 'spression; that's dirt." E. C. N.

My children had been ill during the winter and to make them more contented to stay indoors we talked and made plans for the new baby we would have sent to us if they were good. The day of my departure for the hospital Ellinor ran after the auto and called, "Good-by, mother; have a nice time and don't forget the baby." L. F.

James was allowed to go with his sister for an afternoon call, but was told he must not ask for anything to eat while there. After playing for a while he began to feel hungry and, lying down on the floor, he exclaimed, "O dear, this is a tired, hungry place!" H. W. D.

Harry and Arthur are country boys and walk a mile to school. As they have chores to do in the morning they are often late. In the interest of discipline their teacher was obliged to lecture them on tardiness, but next morning they were late as usual. The teacher waited for them at the door, trying to look stern, but Harry upset all her dignity and cut her lecture short by observing: "Well, we can't help it if you ring the bell too soon." J. T. T.

Our son George is rather slow at getting dressed in the morning. The other evening when I went in to tuck him in for the night I asked him why it was that he could not get dressed in the morning as quickly as he could undress at night and he surprised me by saying, "Well, mother, I am a local in the morning and a limited at night." G. H. Z.

My little friend, Jack, calls on me frequently, and we always enjoy his visits and encourage him to come often. Recently I was invited to a social affair and had dressed rather elaborately for the occasion. As a finishing touch I added a pair of jet earrings. Just before my departure my young friend came in. He stood at a little distance, eyed me intently for a few seconds, and then said rather gravely, "I never saw you with your ears buttoned before." M. A. S.

One day my uncle, who had gone out on business, was late in returning, and his daughter was waiting at our home with her mother. An automobile drove up to our curb and thinking it was her father she went to the window to wave a welcome to him. Seeing it was not, she showed her disappointment by saying, "It ain't us." R. R. B.

The older boys were snowballing when, all unintentionally, Benny was hit. "Boo, hoo, hoo," cried Benny as he went in to tell the teacher, "That boy knocked me partly non-conscious." H. A. S.

Junior's grandmother had been dead for a week and the little fellow had sadly missed her and seemed much grief stricken for several days. One morning the sun was shining and it seemed unusually warm and the small boy's youth and spirit responded to the brightness of the day, and in an awed tone he inquired, "Mother, does you suppose grandma would care if I would sing just a little?" V. M. B.

At a party the children sat around the birthday cake and made good wishes for the little hostess. Some wished her happiness, others wished her health, and so on.

"Now, what do you wish, Virginia?" was asked when the little one's turn came.

"O, I wish for a piece of the cake," Virginia answered with a bright smile at the others. N.

Mandel·Brothers, at·Spring's·gateway formally·inaugurate·the·fashion·season

The freshness, the color, of the budding season are here vividly anticipated in modes critically selected from the flower of the world's artistic achievement. So many are the designers with world prestige represented here—so numerous and happy the replicas and modifications of authoritative modes—that style preferences the most diverse will appear as if accorded individual consideration.

Gowns' ethereal distinction—costumes' studied elegance—frocks' informal delightfulness—prelude the new season with a symphony of novel line, quaint embellishment and tasteful color that constitutes a remarkable contribution to the advancement of the art of dress.

The premier designers of the world established the themes:

Bernard Worth · DeMay Jenny · Collins Ragout · Martial Armond

and many more; and reproductions and adaptations of their originations add to the "tone" of the whole inaugural exhibit. Costume shop, fourth floor

Girls and misses of six to twenty, and women who have remained girlish in spirit and figure—are provided for in specialized modes that adapt the salient traits of spring fashion to the lines and temperament of youth. Fourth floor.

HATS are fashionable "personages," bearing the springtime salutations of their Parisian sponsors: Fifth floor and others equally prominent; also copies and variations; many showing an Egyptian tendency. Restaurant hats, street hats and sports hats are enthrallingly novel. Off-the-face shapes are in favor—and all styles "vogue."

Tailleurs tautly trim—coats snugly smart—wraps entrancingly opulent—contribute impressively to fashion's spring program, and to madame's and mademoiselle's prepossessing readiness for Easter Day and all spring days.

The costumes of Egypt supplied Parisian designers a fertile field for picturesque inventiveness; and the occidental styles of the eighties provided the prototypes of many quaint bouffant effects.

While not slavishly followed in America, still the impress of the orient and of the occidental fashions of a generation ago may be clearly discerned in many of the accepted styles here displayed for Chicago's modish edification. Fourth floor.

Babies' and tiny children's spring fashions are delightfully adapted miniatures of their elders' modes—and comprise silk and cloth coats, becoming hats, and silk and lingerie frocks. Third floor.

BLOUSES in their spring prologue enthrallingly interpret the mode through exquisite laces—filet, baby Irish, princess, antique; and through radiant silks: peacon, file knitted, tricolette and georgette crepe.

Tie-on, hip basque and smock blouses, in late and lovely shades—tangerine, anola, primrose, cornmeal, copper, golden rod, jade, dawn blue and burnt orange—range in price to $375. Blouse shop, third floor.

Silks·lustrously·mirror·spring's·hues and as lustrously enhance this store's "fame for silks." Late silks just off the looms—in a wealth of novel, "individual" weaves and brilliant colors; and standard silks in every desired grade and shade. Black silks are a feature—and here in every desired weave.

Among the silks spring smiles upon are fan-ta-si, klimax satin, kumsi kumsa, dewkist, whippoorwill and fisher maid; non-crushable printed foulards, radiums and pussy willows; novelty printed georgettes, smart chiffon taffetas and all-silk duvetyn.

inch high grade silk duvetyn, in brown, reindeer, marine, dove, nasturtium and fawn, at 8.50.
inch ivory silk broadcloth at $3 yard. 27-inch imported white habutai silk: special 1.65.
yards of 36-inch navy and black chiffon taffeta silk, considerably underpriced at 3.95.
inch all-silk georgette crepe, firm weave, in ivory, flesh, black and the wanted shades, 2.95.
inch imported black satin charmeuse at an unusual price, 4.95. Second floor.

Dress·goods—richly, correctly·novel

—suitings modishly decorous—coatings conspicuously effective—will suggest to their fashionable beholders an infinitude of possibilities in captivating attire to grace a season that is the inspiration of all gracefulness. Second floor.

Of ultra fashionable interest are the extensive collections of fine imperial serges, jersette tricotines, handsome poiret twills and imported duvetyns, in any color you may fancy and in black.

54-inch fine jersette tricotines, in spring colors, with two shades of dark navy blue; at [illegible]
54-inch fine twill tricotine; in late spring colors: tan, beaver, brown, navy; also black; at 7.65.
54-inch fine finish poiret twill—a decidedly popular cloth; in midnight blue only; priced 6.75.
Imported duvetyn, the very finest quality, shown only here; in new colors and black; at 10.45.
54-inch fine imperial serge; a complete color range, and black; during opening week, 4.95.

Furs'·spring·witchery will win your quick acknowledgment once you see how enchantingly a fur choker surmounts a fetching costume and softly frames a face. And you may choose the fur that best becomes you—natural mink, Japanese sable, stone marten, Hudson Bay sable or fisher—and be certified of first quality pelts, modish cut and skilled workmanship. Fifth floor.

Corsets'·late·contours reveal with surety the trend of spring fashion. Pre-eminently, LaVida corsets define the new "foundation lines" while conforming with infinite grace to the curves of each individual figure. The springtime choice is complete.

LaVida corsets in modish designs for the plump, the slender and the average figure; corsets in a broad selection of materials and trimmings; at 6.50 to $18. Fifth floor.

Laces·to·be "vogue"

In frocks and blouses and hats laces will play a prominent springtime role. Late importations from Europe—and from China—invite you Mandel-ward.

Margot filet effects, d'encon, embroidered nets and chantilly are singularly enchanting; and real rose point, duchesse, venise, point de paris and valenciennes will add charm to many a trousseau. First floor.

Shoes·befittingly·new· —high shoes, pumps and oxfords that conform in line and detail with the advanced versions of the mode—are smartly adapted for wear with formal, informal and tailored costumes. Fifth floor.

The new short vamp is modishly in evidence, and the late conceits in heel and toe shapes, in pinking and foxing. The values are especially noteworthy.

Members of the Fashion-Art League and all other modistes are invited to view the inaugural exhibit of spring fashions and to avail themselves of specially planned offerings of spring fabrics and garnitures.

A FRIEND IN NEED

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

She Needs a Hat.

"Has any one a brown turban or soft hat that I might touch up a little for a girl of 19 years? She needs it, and I should like to make her happy for Easter Sunday. I will gladly pay postage or express. H. B."

All women will appreciate what this means, and perhaps some one will have just the thing for an Easter bonnet.

Donates Services as Organist.

"Having had years of practical experience as church organist, usually at a salary, it is now my desire to donate my services as such to some needy, struggling church (Protestant) where such services are sorely needed. I should prefer a west side location. F. W. R.

I shall be pleased to send Mr. R.'s address to the church wishing to take advantage of his kind services.

Something to Read.

"I am 12 years old, and am recovering from influenza. I will not be able to go to school for about a month and a half, and I should love to have some books or magazines to read. I have a few books, but I have read them several times, and I am so lonesome! LONESOME."

Who can spare a companion or two for Lonesome? Surely there are many extra books that she may have to make her enforced vacation pass quickly.

Copies of Instrumental Music.

"I have hesitated long before asking this favor of your department, knowing the many calls you receive of a more deserving nature. However, my own efforts failing, I will ask your assistance in securing for me a copy of 'Indianola Patrol' and a copy of 'Omena,' both written by B. Hartz, for first mandolin or for piano. Both pieces are out of print and cannot be purchased at any of the downtown music stores. E. J. S."

BOARDING HOUSE TALES

The boarding house is teeming with human interest stories. Tell us a tale about the funny characters you have met in your experience as "paying guest." The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published. Manuscripts cannot be returned. Please write on one side of the paper. Address Boarding House Tales, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

Miss Polly's Mistake.

I met a "gentlewoman" in an exclusive, paying guest establishment, who dallied coyly on the fringe of the 400. The daughter of a general and far from the home of her blue blooded forbears, she could beam with pleasure on the "somebodies"—but the glint in her steel gray eyes froze and shriveled the "nobodies."

Miss Polly was an adept in getting the antecedents of each newcomer from the landlady. However, the presiding genius of the domicile had a daughter, typical, half slavey, half belle, possessing more than the usual allotment of fire and mental attributes. Goaded to mad rebellion by the constant boycotting of undistinguished guests by Miss Polly, she decided to have revenge.

A young millionaire, too recently from college to be readily identified by the autocrat of the boarding house, dabbling in politics, decided to take up his abode there temporarily. He was running for office in the ward and his own home was undergoing alterations. Mother having gone out of town for a short visit, daughter received him and permitted Miss Polly to interview her on the newcomer. Just a "man for board."

Subsequently for all his 6 feet 2, he met the real masterpiece in the line of Miss Polly's stony glare. As he noted the lady drawing her skirts about her when she met him on the stairs, as if fearing contamination, he ruminated on the strange adventures of political candidates.

Meanwhile Miss Polly's drab little niece made her bow to society and aunty had pulled wires interminable and exhausted blood and bone that she might meet the "right people," making the most of her own uncertain clutch on the circle she longed to have her established in.

After a decent interval the landlady's daughter cruelly and brutally informed Miss Polly of the identity of the young millionaire. Smelling salts and a dash of cold water were the immediate remedies and Miss Polly kept in bed a month during the height of her niece's débutante season. A. E. F.

Sparrow on Toast.

We had more style than grub at our boarding house. Our landlady was fond of having fancy names on the bill of fare—pie a la mode, steak smothered in mushrooms, demi tasse, and on this evening it was quail on toast.

At my side sat a poet, who usually was tiresome, as he was on every occasion quoting poetry of his own getup. At this time, however, I don't think I ever witnessed anything half so funny as when he arose from his chair and, holding aloft the poor little bird on its thin piece of toast, in majestic tone and manner recited:

"I shot a sparrow in the air,
It fell to earth, I know not where;
But, judging from this quail on toast,
Here is my sparrow or its ghost."

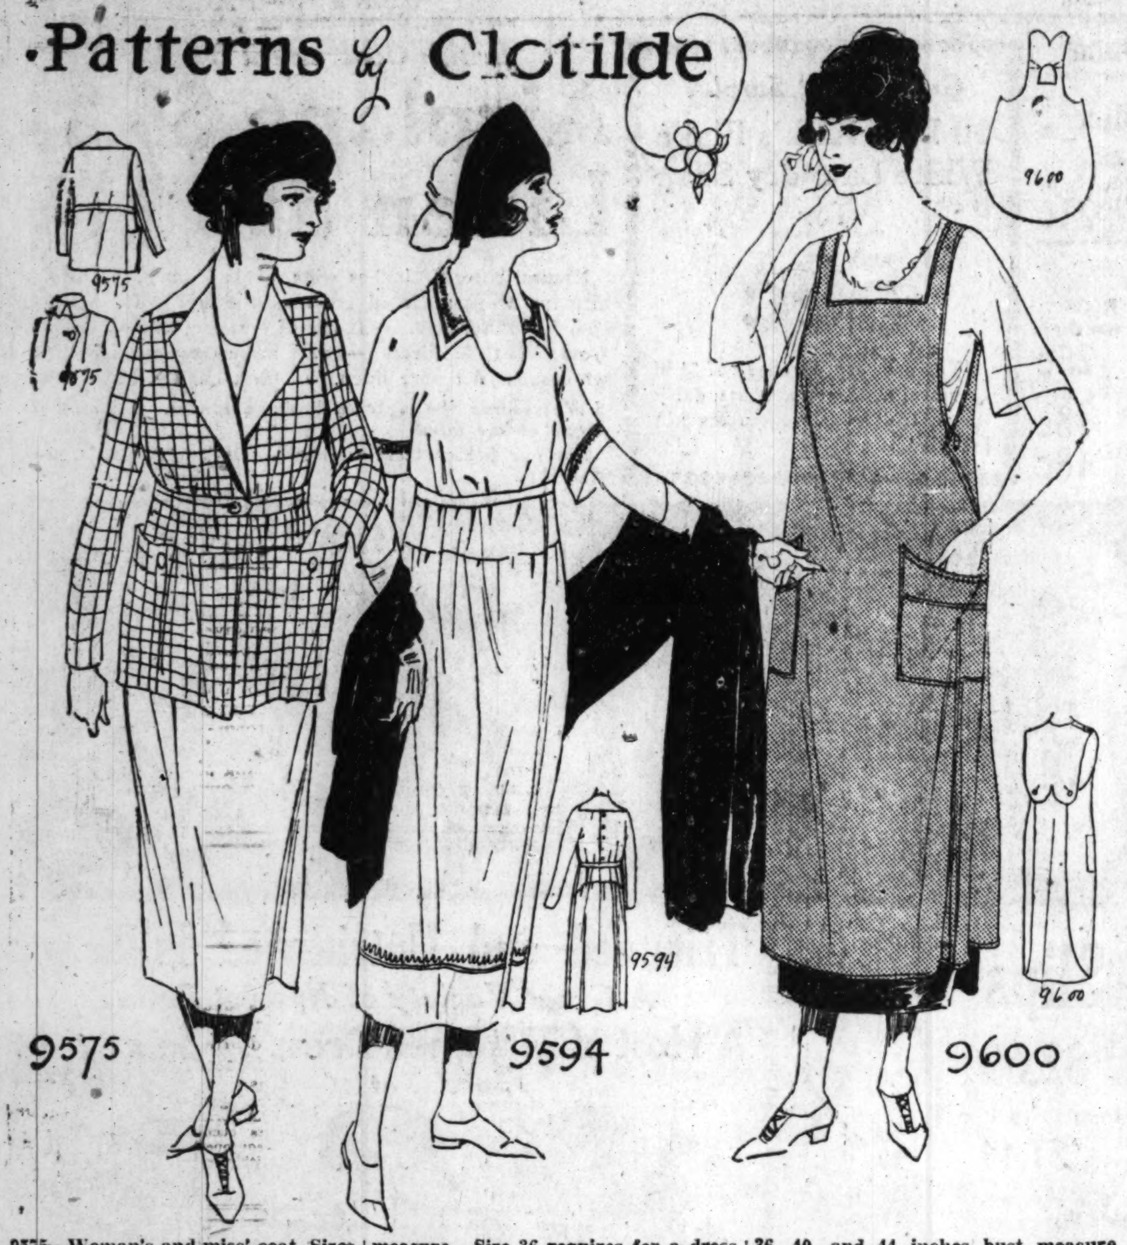
Patterns by Clotilde



9575—Woman's and miss' coat. Sizes 16 years (33 inches bust) and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 36 inch, or 2⅝ yards of 44 inch, or 2 yards of 54 inch, with ⅝ yard contrasting.

9594—Woman's and miss' long waisted dress. Cut in sizes 16 years (33 inch bust) and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires for a dress of one material 3¾ yards of 36 inch or 2⅞ yards of 54 inch.

9600—Woman's apron. Cut in sizes 36, 40, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2¾ yards of 27 inch or 2 yards of 36 inch material, and 8¾ yards of binding.

How to Use the Patterns

THE coat shown in today's picture, pattern No. 9575, is a good design to use for an unlined coat of wash material, silk or wool jersey cloth or other light weight woolen.

It might be time saved to cut the pattern first out of some old muslin and fit that perfectly before cutting into your real coat material. An old sheet is good or in fact any pieces one may happen to have; but it is essential that the material be prefectly smooth and that as careful attention be paid to marking and following traced lines as though working on the actual garment. Then, if any alterations have to be made in the pattern, the fitted pattern can be ripped apart, pressed smooth, and used.

The best finish for seams for an unlined coat is to bind them. The binding, whether of ribbon or bias strips of thin cloth must be basted on with care and not held tight so as to give a drawn appearance on the right side.

The front pocket sections, held in place with large buttons give a smart finish and no trimming is necessary, particularly if a contrasting color is used for the collar and reverse.

Putting the two piece sleeve together is one of the most particular points about the coat, and one that most home sewers find difficult to do. The work should be done on a lap board or table, and never attempted by holding up in the hands.

Have the seams plainly marked, and any notches or perforations clearly indicated. Lay the upper or larger sleeve portion on the board with the inside or front seam away from you. And the wrong side of the material uppermost. Now lay under the sleeve portion right side down, on the upper, so that the inside or front seams come exactly together, pinning the seam together first at the elbow and then up and down from the elbow.

Now turn the sleeve around so that the outer seam is away from you, and in this part of the work it is absolutely necessary not to raise the sleeve from the board, but in putting this outside seam together, let the whole width of the under part remain flat on the table and bring the extra width of the upper over to meet the under seam. Bring the upper outside seam edge over to meet the under and put a pin in horizontally exactly at the elbow line, also seeing at the same time that the traced seam lines meet there. Then bring the seam together from the elbow to the top, so that the outside fold made by bringing the upper portion over to meet the seam of the under part is perfectly smooth, not showing even a slight tendency to twist.

When this is accomplished, pin the two pieces together exactly on the seam lines, from the top down to the notches on the pattern indicating where the fullness comes.

Then the sleeve is pinned together from the wrist to the notches indicating the fullness. The sleeve from the elbow to the wrist being more or less bias on the outer edge, it is a particular piece of work pinning it together, for it can easily be injured by stretching. So handle it lightly and shift the position of the upper sleeve part until it folds over to meet the under part, making a fold in the upper sleeve section that cannot twist. Then pin and baste together.

The elbow fullness should be disposed of so that when the sleeve is pressed there will be no puckers of plaits. If the gathering is done in small, even stitches and the basting is well done, the stitching and pressing will successfully complete the work.

Pattern No. 9600 is one of those enveloping aprons that are so nice to wear when one is getting dinner or supper and is dressed for the afternoon and evening. These aprons are capable of being made so they are attractive looking by choosing pretty materials and finishing with a little trimming in the shape of binding the edges in some contrasting color, or setting a wide ricrac braid on the under side so that the points on one side extend beyond the edge and stitching twice, once on the edge and the second time so the stitching will catch the opposite edge of the braid and the edge of the hem at the same time.

Pattern No. 9594 is an easily made dress, particularly so if one chooses flouncing for the skirt part. Made of thin material it will be just the thing for warm summer afternoons at home and the directions for making are clearly given with the pattern.

He Plans to Give every Baby In the World A Ride

Marshall B. Lloyd Is the Master Builder of Baby Carriages

From the very first dawn of history all of the weaving of wickers has been done slowly and laboriously by hand.

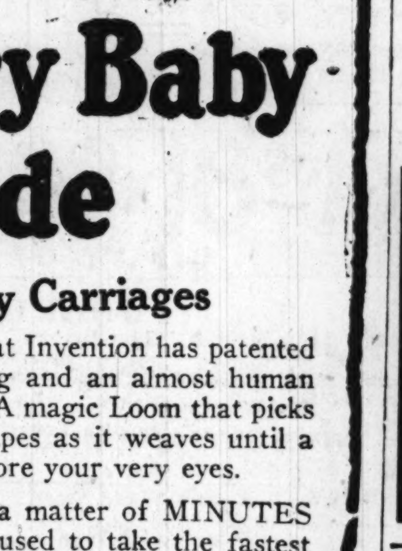
From the basket in which Moses was floated among the bulrushes to your Sewing Basket of today there has not been a single change in the method of weaving wickers in all of those SIX THOUSAND YEARS—UNTIL NOW.

But now this Wizard at Invention has patented a new method of weaving and an almost human machine that does it all. A magic Loom that picks and chooses and even shapes as it weaves until a Baby Carriage grows before your very eyes.

A Loom that does in a matter of MINUTES far more perfectly what used to take the fastest fingers many weary HOURS.

Are You Expecting Mr. Stork?

Your coming son and heir will have a carriage of the finest weave which you will be able to buy at the price of the coarsest reed.



A Carriage woven as fine as a fabric, as soft and as pliable as a knitted scarf, and more durable than any other Buggy ever made.

This loom has made it possible to buy a Packard Car at a Ford price.

But you must act now if you want one.

The demand for these Lloyd Baby Carriages has kept our factories working night and day. But that demand is still far from being supplied.

So if you want to get a Carriage of the finest weave at the price of the coarsest reed, if you want to get one of these wonderful products from this magic loom, you must act now.

Look through this paper today and on the days following for the dealers who will announce that they have these wonderful LLOYD CARRIAGES in stock and watch for the window displays and window announcements of your neighborhood stores.

Or Better Still, Send Us This Coupon and We'll Send You the Names of the Stores in Your City or Town Who Have These Lloyd Carriages. And That Will Save You All the Trouble of Trying Yourself to Find Out.

In order to induce our customers to purchase in March instead of during the April rush we are making this remarkable money saving offer.

An early visit to Exhibition Hall, Peoples Gas Building, or to any of our neighborhood stores will convince you it is to your advantage in many ways to buy your new Range Now, and get this valuable premium. Guarantees, Prices and Terms of Payment are the same as usual.

Amplifying Chamber.
The sounds carried from the reproducer through the tone arm are given volume and resonance in a scientifically designed amplifying chamber or horn. This chamber is built of carefully seasoned wood, and, like the sounding board of a fine violin, imparts to the reclaimed sound vibrations purity and resonance. A perfectly balanced combination of reproducer, tone arm and amplifying chamber makes every record a true reflection of the personality of its creator.

The Reproducer.
Tone quality is dependent upon the reproducer, tone arm and amplifying chamber. Each must be correctly designed and harmonized in its relation to the other two in order to produce a sweet, pleasing tone, free from scratching sounds. The SILVERTONE reproducer accurately restores every sound vibration, every subtle, elusive shading of tone and expression. It is so designed that all scratching and mechanical noises are reduced to the minimum.

Plays All Disc Records.
The SILVERTONE convertible tone arm permits the playing of any make of disc record. A universal joint in the tone arm makes it possible to adjust the reproducer at will so that it will play either vertical or lateral cut records. It is almost as easy to adjust the reproducer for different types of records as it is to change needles.

Tone Control.
The tone modulator with which each SILVERTONE is equipped gives complete control over the volume of sound. It serves the same purpose as the doors and shutters used on other makes of phonographs. You may set the modulator at any desired point, thus giving a uniform volume of sound, or the modulator may be manipulated while a selection is being played, thus enabling you to impart your own interpretation to the music.

Powerful, Silent Motor.
The SILVERTONE motor is as near perfect as mechanical and human efficiency can make it. Every part is made and fitted with care and precision and gears mesh silently. Powerful springs furnish an abundance of power, and a perfectly designed governor keeps turntable speed absolutely uniform, eliminating discordancies which sometimes occur owing to variations in speed. The motor is equipped with a silent winding device and cranks with very little effort.

Send No Money

THE SILVERTONE Phonograph was designed and built to meet the demand for a good phonograph at a reasonable price. That it succeeded in fulfilling those requirements is proved by the fact that over two hundred and fifty thousand satisfied owners are unanimous in their praise of the SILVERTONE.

No effort or expense has been spared to make the SILVERTONE the best phonograph we could build. Experts in acoustics and mechanics have been kept constantly at work developing and perfecting new and better phonograph devices and mechanisms for use in the SILVERTONE. Skilled furniture designers have created cabinets worthy of SILVERTONE quality—artistic, harmonious and dignified. None but the finest of woods and other materials enter into SILVERTONE Phonograph construction, and they are fitted and finished with exquisite care and perfection. SILVERTONE quality is supreme.

And we have kept the price of SILVERTONE Phonographs within the reach of all. Building phonographs in enormous quantities, as we have to do to meet the requirements of our six million customers, has enabled us to reduce the manufacturing cost per phonograph to the very minimum And selling them direct from factory to customer makes it possible for us to offer SILVERTONE Phonographs at prices which are much lower than those of any other instrument of the same high quality

We believe that when you see the SILVERTONE and hear it play, you will be convinced of the truth of our claims for it. That is why we are making this liberal trial offer. We want you to try a SILVERTONE in your home for two weeks without the payment of one cent, and without obligating you in any way. Here is the offer:

No Money Down—Two Weeks' Trial

Select any SILVERTONE Phonograph shown on this page, fill in the order blank at the bottom of this page, and mail it to Sears, Roebuck and Co., Chicago, Ill. Send no money with it!. We ship SILVERTONE Phonographs on two weeks' trial. This trial will not cost you one cent, nor obligate you in any way. All we ask you to do is to give the phonograph a thorough trial. Examine its mechanical features, cabinet work and finish. Try it with any kind of disc records you desire, and note its beauty of tone, how faithfully and accurately it restores every delicate shading of tone quality, every minute variation of volume, every sound vibration. Give it every test necessary to prove the truth of our claims for it. And then compare the price of the SILVERTONE with that of any other phonograph of the same size, quality and musical excellence. If, at the end of this two weeks' trial, you are not fully satisfied with the phonograph, if you do not believe that mechanically, musically, and in workmanship, material and finish, it is the equal of any other phonograph on the market selling at from 25 per cent to 50 per cent higher prices, simply notify us and we will take away the phonograph at our own expense, and will return any transportation and cartage charges you have paid.

Small Monthly Payments

If, at the end of two weeks' trial, you are fully satisfied with the SILVERTONE and desire to keep it, send us the price of the phonograph you have selected in equal monthly payments until the total is paid. The amount of the monthly payment is shown under the illustrations of the various models. There is no interest or extras of any kind to pay.

Fill out the order blank today, before this paper gets out of your hands, and let us send you one of these beautiful 1920 SILVERTONE models for two weeks' trial in your home, without having to pay a cent down on the phonograph, and without obligating you in any way. You are to be the sole judge of the quality and value of the SILVERTONE.

The Theaters

By Percy Hammond

CONFIDENCE being a plant of slow growth in an aged bosom, this prognosticator feared, in his report of "The Rose of China," that the little opera was too genteel for the hardy yeomen of the Union loop. His misgivings, however, were ill-founded on a skepticism, bred earlier in the week by the popularity of "Monte Cristo Jr." The play at the La Salle, despite its lack of violence and vulgarity, is doing well—better, in fact, than any tenant the theater has had since "Leave It to Jane," which was also a failure in New York. Two plays which have experienced adversity in the theatrical capital this season are extraordinarily prosperous in Chicago at present—"The Rose of China" and "The Ruined Lady," in which Miss Grace George, at the Princess, is having her crowded hour. "Howdy, Folks," too, which under the caption, "Thunder," suggested languors and ennui to Broadway, is steadfast at the Olympic, a growing success. The fightin' parson in "Howdy, Folks," recalls to Drury Underwood one of Opie Read's mountain high priests. He got into an altercation with a layman and received a sound blow upon the cheek. He turned the other, in observation of the scriptural ordinance, and then, peeling off his coat, said, "By God, here's whar the Bible stops!"

Capt. J. A. E. Malone, a magnate of theaters in London and other points in the British empire, looked us over last week with a view to exporting some of our drama to England, Australia, and South Africa. Especially was he interested in "Welcome, Stranger," whose flourishing existence at Mr. Cohan's Grand is whispered reverently by managers from wild Randolph street to Bosphorus' waters. Capt. Malone was reticent concerning the esthetic merit of "Welcome, Stranger." But the sight of the ingots piled high in the box office of Mr. Cohan's opera house hypnotized him, and at once he engaged the play at a high price for performance in foreign parts. One hopes that he will have it acted elsewhere as well as it is acted here. They tell an odd thing about "Welcome, Stranger." Though planned by Aaron Hoffman, its author, to explain if not to endear the under-Jew to upper-Jews and non-Jews, the play is disdained by Jewish people of all strata. Yet evidently they go to see it, since no theater is prosperous unless it has the patronage of the Jews.

As a director of that Great British musical comedy superstition, the London Gaiety, Capt. Malone was cautious in his remarks about "The Rose of China." "It has been a long time," said he, "since any American musical comedy company invaded England. and London always loves these breezy American productions, of which this is such an excellent type. I am sure that London would appreciate Mr. McIntyre and the pretty singer, Miss Richardson. Miss Cunningham and Mr. Shaw we already know, for they have played on the other side, and would add much to the success of 'The Rose of China' if it is presented abroad."

New York newspapers embrace Mr. Barrymore (John) for his impersonation of Richard III., and one or two of them even threaten to kiss him. But Mr. Woollcott of the Times in a fine, fearless, wholesome enthusiasm says that "all in all it is a magnificent achievement," ranking with Rehan's Katherine and Forbes-Robertson's Hamlet, . . . bringing his technical fluency abreast with his winged imagination." Mr. De Foe in the World records it as "a happy surprise even for optimistic souls." In Mr. De Foe's description Mr. Barrymore as Gloster "is, in short, a personification of relentless, calculating villainy—a human monster of overwhelming ambition who is resolved to hesitate at no extreme of diabolical wickedness to attain his criminal purpose"—apparently a new idea of this evil party. The Barrymore edition of the tragedy is a retailing of abbreviated scenes from "Henry the Sixth" and "Richard the Third," arranged, it is said, by Edward Sheldon, who rewrote "Camille" for Miss Ethel Barrymore.

Boston has ratified Miss Theda Bara's descent from the silences. At her first performance there in "The Blue Flame" they had to call out the constables, so agitated was the cultured multitude which wished to attend. With characteristic dignity Miss Bara declined to be driven to and from the theater in a carriage drawn by fourteen white horses. "Do you want to put me on a plane with Bernhardt or Jenny Lind?" said she to the committee, registering contempt. Owen Davis, author of a thousand plays, is now suing Mr. Woods, claiming that "The Blue Flame," by George V. Hobart, is none other than "Lola," which Miss Laurette Taylor acted in 1911.

New plays this week:

Miss Elsie Janis and Her Gang promise to whoop it up tomorrow night at the Illinois with an A. E. F. Revue, played by whilom doughboys, aided, as Miss Janis says, by "some rather nice accessories" in the shapes of a group of pretty girls.

General Pershing declared that Miss Janis was worth a division to him, so heartening was her cheery presence to those of the army who were not engrossed in dreamily crusading. Miss Janis substituted for a lot of prominent American actors who, explicably, found it impossible to court, even at a distance, the fire-eyed maid. She and a few others of her class, helped by many unknowns from the Jones-Linick-Shaefer and similar circuits, eased the anguish of the tortured hours for our lonely army abroad and gave it a pretty fair time in the sad and solemn bivouacs of the Argonne. Hence, for Miss Janis and her gang, three hearty cheers.

"The Shubert Gaieties of 1919," involving two acts and twenty-five scenes, aiming to satirize the life of Broadway. Harry Watson, Jack Norworth, Marguerite Farrell, and Stewart Baird are among its employés.

THE impending production of a comedy that bears the title of "Golden Days" as a utensil for Miss Patricia Collinge at Powers' theater calls the attention of Chicago playgoers to the spring activities of that indefatigable producer of dramas, George C. Tyler. For the last month Mr. Tyler, whose "Clarence" has been a winter success at the Blackstone, has been in a whirl of activity. "Jacques Duval" had proved to be a little too bad for the complaisant admirers of George Arliss, so Mr. Tyler secured from Booth Tarkington a piece called "Poldekin," Russian of atmosphere and anti-bolshevik of theme, giving Mr. Arliss a welcome change of rôle. For the much-praised Helen Hayes, in whom eastern critics can find nothing but girlish delight, he staged "Bab, the Sub-Deb," dramatized from Mary Roberts Rinehart's flapper stories, and Miss Hayes now pleases the Bostonians as the ebullient Bab. For Emily Stevens, in whom Mr. Tyler, together with many of the cognoscenti, discovers symptoms of a fine actress, he secured from Philip Moeller a play called "Sophie," dealing with a French prima donna who was the Mary Garden of the days when Marie Antoinette was a bride. "Sophie" is now at the Greenwich Village theater, New York. The new play for Miss Collinge brings Mr. Tyler's fecundity of play-making into the Chicago arena.

Miss Collinge won a deserved popularity here last season in "Tillie," the play of Pennsylvania Dutch types which her personal appeal kept running at the Blackstone against the competition of Victory loan drives and homecoming soldier parades for about five months. This engagement established a record for the Blackstone theater, and so encouraged Mr. Tyler with the possibilities of that playhouse that he contracted to fill all of its "time" this season. Miss Collinge went on tour in "Tillie" last September and kept it traveling, a note of wistfulness and quiet romance in a morass of noisy revues, until two weeks ago.

Before "Tillie," which marked Miss Collinge's rise to stardom, she appeared for three seasons in "Pollyanna." She was the original of that devastating Glad Girl in the theater, and she has been followed in the rôle by numerous ingénues, among them the much-mentioned Helen Hayes. Mary Pickford is now carrying on the tradition in the films. Farther back in Miss Collinge's career she might have been found playing Youth, the leading ingénue rôle in "Everywoman," with Miss Juliette Day, recently a charmer in such musical comedies as "Oh, My Dear," playing beside her as Modesty. The early training of this young star was secured, in part, with the New Theater company, under whose august auspices she appeared as one of the children in "Mossy" Masterlinck's "The Blue Bird."

"Golden Days" is announced as "a comedy of youth." It was first called "The Golden Age," but Kenneth Grahame of the sketches of adolescence objected. The play was written by Sidney Toler, an actor who appeared here in "On the Hiring Line," and Miss Marion Short, who helped in the authorship of "A Grand Army Man" for David Warfield. Miss Collinge will be supported by one of those well selected casts in which Mr. Tyler's talent as an impresario is sometimes manifest. The first performance will be given at Powers' March 22. South Bend, Ind., will be the scene of public rehearsal, the Saturday before the Chicago premiere.

Musical comedy producers are giving peremptory instructions to their lyricists to include the wavering ouija among their chorus numbers for the spring shows. Among the plain plays that will opportunely invoke the "flitting shapes and beck'ning shadows" of spiritualism later in the year are Cosmo Wilbur's "The Unseen Hand" and a serious psychic study by Anne Crawford Flexner to be produced by John D. Williams.

New Triumph for John Barrymore as 'Richard III.'

By Burns Mantle

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Probably there were not fifty persons in the audience at the Plymouth theater the night John Barrymore made what he terms his "audacious plunge" into the classics with "The Tragedy of Richard III." who would recognize a "great" Richard if they were to meet one. And yet all the talk the next day was of "great" Richards and "good" Richards and of the younger Barrymore's place among them.

The answer is simple. He is a great Richard, else he could not have held 1,800 persons in their seats until a quarter before 1 o'clock in the morning to see him play Richard. Not in this day of weekly blizzards, uncertain commutation, and little interest in Shakespeare.

He is a great Richard, too, in being a new Richard. He probably never saw the part played, and I doubt if he had much coaching from those who offered to help him. He is of a mind these days to do things in his own way. Thus he is unshackled by convention or tradition. He reads the text naturally and not unmusically, as it appeals to him, stressing with the enthusiasm of a boy who has discovered a new ghost story the fiendish imaginings of hell's famous conspirator.

He plays Richard with the same zest that, as a young cartoonist, he drew weirdly grotesque and fascinatingly misshapen humans. He extracts a certain joy from dragging the shortened leg, weighted with armor; in favoring the withered arm, and in bending forward, when the situation is right, so the crooked back may add its bulge to the picture. Occasionally, when the scene and the speech appeal to him, he is apt to forget his deformities and to stand erect, defying all and sundry, not as the envenomed Plantaganet, but as himself, John Barrymore, Richard's most understanding friend.

He is not a strong Richard, in a physical sense. He could not have been a terror in the field, nor slain reasonably whole groups of his armored enemies. He is crafty, sinister deceitful, subtle, and is careful to make it plain that from his quarrel with the fate that sent him into the world an ugly and a crippled thing is sprung his passion for power and the satisfaction of being even with God by doing Satan's bidding.

In humor he is not lacking and yet in his wooing of the widowed Ann, following close upon his murder of her husband and her father, which many Richards have played with obvious smirks at the audience, he is so earnest and so gentle in his pleading, the success of his suit becomes the more understandable, though the scene is made theatrically less effective.

He is, not to use more space in saying so, a great Richard in being a fascinating Richard who by daring to be himself gives new life to an old tragedy that only such treatment could successfully revive for this particular generation of playgoers.

The cast is mostly English and thoroughly competent. It includes Leslie Palmer as Buckingham, E. J. Ballantine as Clarence, Arthur Row as King Henry, Reginald Denny as Edward, Mrs. Thomas Wise as the Duchess of York, Evelyn Hall as Elizabeth, Helen Robbins as Anne, and Stanley Warmington as Catesby.

In Percy Mackaye's "George Washington" we first meet "the man who made us," which is the author's subtitle, when he was a farmer lad at Mount Vernon and just after he had completed a particularly good job of surveying Lord Fairfax's acres. He is then a husky boy of 23 and much inter-

THE CAST.

"Toodles" Walden	Wallace Reid
President Mutchler	Tully Marshall
J. D. Ward	Theodore Roberts
Dorothy Walden	Ann Little
Darby	Guy Oliver
Henderson	Otto Brower
Griggs	James Gordon
Ritz	Walter Long
Oldham	Jack Herbert
Police magistrate	Fred Hunter

By Mae Tinée.

THIS is rather a new venture for the "adorable" Wallace Reid, the reason being that he forsakes his usual rôle of irresistible swain for that of a husband and father. In other words, he is "Toodles" Walden, son-in-law of the president of an automobile concern. By now you have probably realized that "Excuse My Dust" was made from the story, "The Bear Trap," which appeared in a weekly publication.

In a paragraph all by itself let us add that Mr. Reid Jr. is also in the cast. Mr. Reid Jr. does not walk yet, is an addict to the bottle, and has his father's own heart breaking smile.

The story has to do with automobiles and automobile men. "Toodles," besides being manager of one of the Darco agencies, is a speed fan and artist, his passion for fast driving keeping him in hot water with his wife and the police court magistrate. At last he finds himself on probation with both of them.

The Fargot people are the rivals of the Darco and their souls are heavy with longing for a glimpse at a new motor that Darco is building. By various machinations they inflame the ire of the Darco people. There is a most memorable race from Los Angeles to San Francisco, which features a wreck, a sick baby, and much excitement.

You will notice that Ann Little is again supporting Mr. Reid. I had thought I should be very glad to see this combination in action again, and I probably will be by the next picture. Her rôle in this, however, does not particularly suit Miss Little, who looks better in outing costume, with her hair unwaved.

Theodore Roberts gave me much joy, however. So did Mr. Reid Jr. And so, of course—O, of course!—did Mr. Reid Jr.'s fond papa.

The story was an interesting one and took to screen adaptation admirably.

Lubliner & Trinz report jubilantly that since Owen Moore's divorce there has been a record breaking attendance at the theaters showing his picture, "Sooner or Later."

Something new, in intent at least, is soon to be perpetrated by Selznick. They plan to produce a special oriental production called "Content," the entire cast of which will consist of Chinese.

Ask Me! Ask Me! Ask Me!

G. E. W.: I have a good notion not to answer your question—anybody in the state of fear and trembling such as you proclaim yourself to be! What, said she, have I ever done to frighten you so? I should love to meet your little niece Bumps. No reason why you shouldn't send your scenario to Mr. Chaplin. Judging from his last picture, he's rather up against it for ideas. If you will send a stamped and self-addressed envelope, I'll mail you a list of companies that accept photoplays. My best to Bumps.

WANDERING WAIF: My heart is with you in your sorrow, and I can quite understand your feelings in regard to the actor you mention. Won't you, however, please try and be fair to me and realize that it is my duty to judge a picture as a picture? If I were to let personal dislike or prejudice influence me, I would not be giving you people honest service.

PINKIE: I think it would be a lovely and gracious thing to thank Miss Talmadge for her kindness to you. People never become too famous to appreciate a word of appreciation now and then. I think you write a beautiful hand, and I'm crazy about your stationery.

F. A.: Your fervid French looks to me like you're calling on heaven to rest my soul! If so, quit it! My soul's doing nicely. Address Enid Bennett, care of Thomas Ince, Culver City, Cal. Come again—yours was such a nice letter!

"CUCKOO": O, you like my jazzy replies, do you, "Cuckoo"? And you're the original diamond in the rough, are you? And you feel that you're about to show intelligence? Well, well, Vincennes is certainly looking up! You got your list of firms all right, didn't you? We mailed them to you.

EDWARD B.: For all the information about that corporation you would better write to the United Artists, 729 Seventh avenue, New York. They will probably have no objection to giving you the data you request.

Concerts and Recitals

THE Knights of Columbus some eight years ago presented John McCormick in his first recital in Chicago. This afternoon they bring forward another Irish tenor in the person of John O'Sullivan in the Auditorium, who will then be heard for the first time here in recital. Assisted by Leon Samatini, violinist, and Marcel Charlier, pianist, he will sing the Prize Song from "The Mastersinger," two Cadman songs, John Alden Carpenter's "The Home Road," Dufranc's "Phydile," Damrosch's "Danny Deever, and a large group of Irish folk songs.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianist, conductor, and composer, will give his only piano recital in Chicago this season in Kimball hall this afternoon. He has listed for presentation the Handel "Harmonious Blacksmith" Variations, a Rondo Espressive by Ph. Bach, the A major Sonnata of Scarlatti, Beethoven's D major Sonata op. 10, the Mendelssohn Serious Variations, four of Schumann's Fantasy Pieces—"Evening," "Whims," "Why," and "Soaring—his own "Melody" in E minor, and the Liszt F minor Study.

Mme. Pavla Frijsh, soprano, and the Carlos Salzedo Ensemble of seven harps will offer a concert in Orchestra hall this afternoon. The harpists will play the Sixth French Suite of Bach, three Debussy Preludes, and will accompany Mme. Frijsh in a group of Scandinavian folk and art songs. Mr. Salzedo will perform three of his own Preludes and Mme. Frijsh will sing a group of songs, including Erlanger's "Human Tears," Debussy's "Madoline," the Lullaby from Moussorgsky's "Child's Nursery," and Carpenter's "Odalisque" and "Home Road."

Rudolf Gunier, operatic tenor, assisted by Ebba Sundstrom, violinist, will offer a concert in Central Music hall this afternoon at 3:30.

Oscar Seagle and Barbara Maurel were to have joined with Isador Berger, violinist, in the last of the Musical Extension Concert series in Orchestra hall tomorrow night, but Frank Morgan, who manages the series, states that for no reason save that Mr. Seagle "is to remain in California" the contract has been broken by the eastern agents and the program therefore will enlist the services of Mr. Berger associated with Lillian Eubank of the Chicago Opera and Vera Poppe, cellist. The program consists of two groups of songs by Miss Eubank and the "Vissi d'arte" from "Tosca"; two groups of cello numbers by Miss Poppe, and five of his own compositions and the Paganini Concerto in D for Mr. Berger.

Bessie Birdie Kaplan, the Chicago pianist, is to be heard in recital in Kimball hall next Tuesday evening. She has arranged a program which includes the B minor Sonata of Chopin, the Brahms Rhapsody in G minor, three Leschetizky numbers, Liszt's "Robert the Devil" paraphrase, and Ganz' "They say 'tis Love."

Hans Hess, the local cellist, announces his annual recital for next Thursday evening in Kimball hall.

The Chicago orchestra concerts in Orchestra hall next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening will have Merle Alcock, contralto, as soloist. She will sing three Pergolesi selections for which Mr. Stock has supplied orchestration—"Salve Regina," "Eia Ergo Advocata Nostra," and "Et Jesum Benedictus"—in addition to which she will give the "Fair Spring" aria from Samson and Delilah." The orchestral selections consist of the Schubert "Unfinished" Symphony, the Overture to Mozart's "The Impresario," Brune's "A Fairy Tale," Moussorgsky's "Musical Pictures," and the Dvorak-Brahms Hungarian Dances, Nos. 17 to 21.

Rudolph Polk, the American violinist, is to offer a recital in Orchestra hall next Tuesday evening. His program consists of the Tartini's G minor Sonata, Saint-Saëns' Concerto in B minor, the Dvorak-Kreisler Slavonic Dance in G minor, Burleigh's Perpetual Motion, Aulin's "Swedish Dance," Gardner's "From the Cane Brake," and the Smetana Bohemian Fantasy.

New Triumph for John Barrymore

ested in scientific farming. More interested in farming, in fact, than he is in the girls, who already are beginning to irritate him. To avoid them he slips off and marries the widow Custis and brings her home as Martha Washington. And that is the first act.

Next we discover the "Liberty Boys" becoming active. A group of them surround King's (now Columbia) college, acting much like groups of radicals usually act and threatening to ride the Tory cooper on a rail to prove their contempt of King George and all his adherents. Then appears young Alexander Hamilton to harangue the mob into good humor and take their minds off the defiant professor long enough to permit him to escape.

Jumping back to Mount Vernon we find the loyal Martha buckling on George's sword and promising to wait for him under the sycamores, or at least to be there when he shall come home from the wars. Next scene we find the general settling a dispute between the Massachusetts "Johnnies" and the Virginia "Jennies" in the first rainbow division to gather in these states.

Then we have an impressive picture of Washington reading a paragraph from the declaration of independence [accepted locally as a timely protest against the eighteenth amendment] and proceed thence to the shores of the Delaware with Tom Paine and Alexander Hamilton exchanging greetings and philosophies in the foreground and Washington pacing the background, depressed and heart-broken because none of his divisions is ready to risk the crossing with him at dawn.

Thirdly, we are at Valley Forge, where thanks to one of those muddling congresses from which many citizens still are forced to accept their ancestors and pretend to do so with pride 3,000 of the faithful troops were left "naked and starving" the winter through.

But here the light begins to shine with the arrival of Lafayette and the promise of aid from overseas, and next scene we are at the edge of Yorktown with Washington, Knox and Col. Nicola describing the bombardment that finally flashes, white and blue to indicate a victory won. And lastly we are taken back to Mount Vernon, where the fighter who would a-farming go returns, to Martha and the sycamores.

It is not, on the whole, an impressive spectacle. The poet Mackaye has labored earnestly and brought forth a masque for children and patriotic holidays that misses the holding quality of drama. It serves to humanize and creditably to visualize the father of his country and there are moments when it flares with the inspiration of great historical moments. But generally it is crude and choppy and does not compare with John Drinkwater's drama of "Abraham Lincoln."

Opera's Eastern Ventures Waste of Time and Money

By W. L. Hubbard.

AN interesting and, it is believed, peculiarly profitable meeting was held a week ago yesterday afternoon by the Chicago Woman's club, at which the subject of opera and song sung with English text was discussed.

The club had previously sent out copies of a resolution asking the Chicago Opera association to consider the giving of all modern operas hereafter in English translation. These copies had been mailed to all important women's clubs, musical societies, and art organizations in the city and its immediate environs, asking for signatures and approval of the resolution. The response had been hearty and immediate, and despite shortness of time most of the larger clubs and societies had returned the resolution signed and approved.

It is believed that the movement may become sufficiently widespread and general to result in the presenting of such a petition to the Opera association that the request can scarcely be ignored.

Among the most illuminative features of the afternoon were some remarks made by Mr. Max Pam who, as representative at the meeting of Mr. Harold McCormick and of the Chicago Opera association, can be regarded as speaking with authority. As is well known Mr. Pam has for several seasons been the power behind the throne where the opera directorate is concerned; he, since Mr. Campanini's passing, has been principal adviser and coworker with Mr. Johnson, and it is generally expected will become even more mighty with the coming autumn. His utterances therefore take on the weight of the official, and may be regarded as voicing the attitude, the intent, and the aims of the association itself.

Chicago Company's Eastern Tours.

Among the many points which Mr. Pam emphasized was one which touched upon a statement included in these columns last Sunday and which had reiteration at the meeting. This was that the visits to New York were probably due to Mr. Campanini's natural desire to show the organization to his eastern admirers and competitors. This Mr. Pam regarded as a slight upon Mr. Campanini and his memory.

The assurance can be voiced here that no such slight was intended, or wished, and yet this assurance in no wise retracts the statement that the taking of the company to New York by the late maestro doubtless was largely due to the desire mentioned, that such desire was wholly natural and in large measure justifiable, and that the fulfilling of that desire casts no possible reflection upon Mr. Campanini as man or as impresario. He had striven and labored there, he had moved to Chicago, the Metropolitan continued its steady course, and he humanly wanted to go back to the scenes of former triumphs and show friends and foes what he had accomplished.

There is no desire or inclination to criticise the Opera association for having gone to New York and Boston in the past. The course was exactly the same which the Chicago orchestra in its early years followed. But the Orchestral association has wakened to the fact that losing money through taking orchestral concerts to New York which is already satiated with such entertainments is poor policy. The realization has come that Chicago and the middle west are the natural, the legitimate, and the more profitable field for the orchestra and its activities, and therefore the trips to New York and Boston have been abandoned.

It has been well enough for the opera company to make the same journey season after season, but it is believed that now the time has come for it, too, to realize, as has the orchestra, that such effort is waste of time, of money, and of effort. The great field is here in the west, and the Chicago Opera association owes it to itself, to its standing as a future factor in American musical development, and to the actual justification of its existence to see it turns to that field and cultivates it.

Reasons Given by Mr. Pam.

Let us consider for a moment reasons which Mr. Pam gave as those prompting the company to visit New York and which he inferred justified the continuance of the policy. These were three in number. Briefly stated, they were as follows:

First, Chicago does not support its company as it should and therefore the visit to New York, where patronage is more liberal, is necessary; second, the opera association wishes to give to Chicago only the greatest artists, and these artists naturally wish to sing in New York, since it is the metropolis of the country, and therefore in order to secure their services and to please them and keep them satisfied it is necessary to go to New York for a substantial season; third, the Chicago field and season are so limited that the company cannot exist on the ten weeks here and has to find other outlet for its activities in order to exist.

The third reason is the only one which is not open to question. That a grand opera organization cannot be maintained without difficulty and loss for a period of only ten weeks is a fact recognized by every one familiar in any way with operatic management. Sixteen to twenty weeks are necessary if engagement of singers and players, securing of repertory rights, and proportioning of overhead expenses are so to be accomplished that heavy deficit is to be avoided. Granted, however, that ten weeks suffices to satisfy Chicago's opera needs and that a longer season would prove disastrous, surely some plan could be worked out whereby the preliminary tour which the company made last fall and which consumed some three weeks could be lengthened without adding greatly to the expenses through transportation and traveling costs.

Cities where one or two performances were given could in many instances, it is believed, be found equal to taking three or four. Railroad costs would be but little more and the using of the company profitably throughout a longer period could thus be accomplished. The guarantee secured for each performance might not be so great as at present, but the reducing of this would be in the way of encouragement to the guarantors to take the company again, whereas present high rates not infrequently act as a discouragement. And the guarantee for the sum total of performances could still be made to reach the needed amount.

Spend Week in Some Cities.

In certain of the larger cities surely an entire week of opera could be given before or after the Chicago season, and thus utilize to genuine musical purpose and cultural helpfulness the weeks which now are spent in New York and Boston. Even if loss were encountered it would be loss in the good cause of creating in the west appreciation and love for grand opera and making genuine patrons for the Chicago season, instead of being loss in the poor cause of satisfying personal vanity in parading the company before New York and gaining such possible social and personal prestige as position at the head of such an organization might secure. One would be the helping of music and musical understanding in America. The other is toadyism of the poorest sort.

As for the second reason, it seems hardly worthy of consideration. That an organization like the Chicago Opera association should admit that its business and artistic policies have to be governed by the desires and whims of the artists it engages is a most illuminating but none the less pitiful evidence of how little of true American spirit and business method have been brought into the management of it and kindred organizations in this country. Doubtless most of the artists would like to have appearances in Paris, in Milan, in Berlin, in London. Is that any reason why the organization should visit those cities? Would any of our large business houses open a branch in New York or Boston simply because some of their clerks would like to sell goods in those cities?

Who is the operatic artist anyway that he should be able to dictate to the organization that hires him and pays him his wage? He is not one iota better or greater than any other man or woman who is doing the line of work for which he or she is equipped and fitted. He has been gifted with a voice and he may or may not have worked to cultivate it. He has mastered a few rôles which he assumes over and over again. He, in the majority of instances, knows nothing outside of these few rôles, and the tiny little world in which he moves and has his being, and which he in his egotism believes constitutes the whole universe. He is one sided, he is spoiled, he is narrow. Yet we as a people have through publicity and through deference so magnified and glorified him that he regards himself as a god, and we in our blindness bow down before him and beg him to abuse us. Meanwhile for this we offer him sums of money such as he can earn nowhere else in the world. And it is to such people that we need must kowtow and let them dictate what shall be our business and artistic policies!

Foreign Artist Worship.

There is not an artist on the Chicago Opera company roster who would not soon accept much lower figures for his other services if the management but insisted upon it. There is not one of them who would not play in any city or town the management selected if told his fee and his season contract depended on his so doing.

Such a justification for visiting New York is a pitiful suggestion of weakness and want of business decision. It shows how deep sunk we are in the mire of foreign artist worship, and how vigorously we need to climb if we ever are to bring clear, clean American business methods and sense to the managing of our operatic organizations. The day we Americanize the methods of the opera houses of this country such grovelling and kowtowing before the artist will disappear. And on just that day will commence the operatic liberation and development of the United States. It will not come one moment before.

As for Mr. Pam's claim that Chicago does not support the opera company as it should, he, in partial palliation of our inefficiency in this direction, cited the statement of a speaker who had preceded him, to the effect that in Italy every person, even the illiterate, knows the principal numbers of all the best operas and can sing not only the tunes but the words as well. This, Mr. Pam urged as showing the "intelligence" of the Italians as an operatic folk, and pointed out that we here in America, and in Chicago in particular, were not thus "intelligent." When such "intelligence" came to us, then the opera company would find here the patronage which it merited and which would make unnecessary the visiting of other cities.

Would it not be well to inquire how it happens that the Italians are thus "intelligent"? They are intelligent where opera is concerned because they have been hearing it all their lives in the language which they understand. Mr. Pam pointed out that he himself had visited Europe almost yearly for over a quarter of a century and had heard grand opera repeatedly in all the capitals there. It would be interesting to know if he himself could sing the words of even the best known arias in any language whatever.

Must Realize America's Needs.

Only where the opera is heard constantly and unfailingly in the vernacular can such "intelligence" come into existence. Countless people know that the first words of the duke's song in "Rigoletto" are "La donna e mobile," but how many in this broad land of ours know what the rest of the text is? How many know what follows the first two words, "Celeste Aïda," in the Rhadames aria, or "Salve Dimora" in "Faust"? How can we be "intelligent" about opera when our brains are left wholly out of consideration by our operatic purveyors, and only our ears and eyes are appealed to?

Chicago will begin to become "intelligent" in opera the day Mr. Pam and his associates on the board of directors become American in spirit, realize America's needs, take the broad American attitude of treating every man and woman be he artist big or little as a man or woman worthy of wage and honor, according to the work he or she does, but not permitting them to browbeat or intimidate us, and putting down from its dominant place all foreignism, giving it welcome only in so far as it can be of use to us.

When this is done the giving of opera in English will begin, not as a fad or whim, but as a fine big intent and purpose, Chicago will take its place first in this mighty work and unique in the world, and patronage will be sufficient to make not only ten weeks but a full season of opera possible here. Then will deficit steadily decrease, then will Chicago and the western United States become operatically "intelligent" and appreciative, then will New York and Boston be looking to Chicago instead of our looking to them, and then will they themselves see the handwriting on the wall and follow the way we have led. Is there not more of glory, more of honor, more of real service, and more of genuine social eminence in this than are to be derived from the present sychophantic course?

WHERE ROMANCE AND ADVENTURE FLOURISH STILL

Travel by Land and Sea to the Picturesque Places of the World—Afforded by the United States Marine Corps.

"Sailing Orders"

If you're weary of the office
And your step has lost its snap,
If you're looking for a life that fits
A big two-fisted chap—
If you want to go a-roving
All this jolly old world round,
Come a-runnin', runnin', buddy,
When the bugle starts to sound.

For we've got our sailing orders,
And there's joy in all our hearts—
O, we're dropping down the river,
And it's hey for foreign parts!
It's hey for Guam and Haiti
And the beach at Wakaiki!
The Marines have got their orders,
And they're putting out to sea.

If you're tired of the factory
Or you're weary of the plow,
And you don't find any romance
In the job you're doing now,
Here's a chance to go a-roving
To the place Adventure's found,
So come a-runnin', buddy,
When you hear the bugles sound.

They're cheering from the ferries,
And they're waving from the shore;
The dull old life's behind us
And the new life lies before.
We're off to make talk "howdy"
With the Moro and Chinee.
The Marines have got their orders,
And they're putting out to sea.

The young man who has not felt the call of the sea, who has never known the "wanderlust"—that restless hunger for the sight of strange foreign lands and stranger people—he does not exist. But how many men neglect their opportunities and grow old without ever having wandered very far from their own home towns.

What have such men gotten out of life? What have they to look back on but a monotonous round of uninteresting toil? How they must envy their more fortunate—or perhaps more daring—fellows, who have traveled and seen and done—who have lived life to the full!

How the "stay-at-home" must regret his lack of enterprise, as he sits, one of an interested group, while some ex-Marine spins yarn after yarn (and true yarns they are, too) of his adventures on tossing seas and under tropic skies.

The Marine and the Wide World

At the moment you are reading this there is hardly a country on earth where there are not United States Marines, doing men's work —yes, and playing, too, as real men play—storing up health and memories that will last them to the end of the chapter.

There are Marines down in Cuba, picturesque old Cuba, almost as Spanish today as when the red and yellow flag of Spain floated over Morro Castle. In Haiti—the queer little republic, where the colored folks speak French, Marines are helping to slap bad little bandits on the wrist when they misbehave. That's life—life with just enough danger in it to make it worth the living.

There are Marines walking the streets of London and Paree. They are hearing real ukeleles on a real beach at Wakaiki. They are in the Philippines and "somewhere east of Suez," where Mr. Kipling tells us "there ain't no ten commandments and a man can raise a thirst." Maybe it isn't as bad as that, but the Orient is mighty interesting.

Days of Real Sport

Any man who feels at home with a gun and a fishing rod was born to be a Marine. You see, a Marine lives on and near the water so much that he's web footed, and where there's salt water there are fish. And in tropical waters there are fish such as fish stories are made of—fish and turtles that would make a New York chef weep for joy.

And game! How would it be if this morning we had started on a hunting leave way up into China in search of deer or bear? Or suppose we were guarding Uncle Sam's big ditch at Panama and got leave to go out and pot a jaguar to make somebody a leopard skin coat?

Home Life of the Marines

No Marine ever seems to stay in one place long enough to get rusty. When he is not just off for foreign ports or just coming home from service abroad, he is on one of the big battleships which are always on the move from one port to another. Today he may be in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and the next bound for France or Constantinople, or goodness knows where.

And when he's on duty in the States he may be at any one of a number of interesting places—Quantico, the station just out of Washington; the League Island Navy Yard, at Philadelphia; the Brooklyn Navy Yard, at New York; or he may be at San Diego, in sunny California, or Mare Island, in San Francisco Bay.

Work Time for the Marine

The Marine's life is not all play. There's work to be done. But it's a man's work and interesting.

There are short, snappy drills that teach a man to be on his toes. There are setting-up exercises that give a man a chest like a barrel. There are hikes, short ones at first and gradually increasing, that teach a man to walk on his own two feet, and like it. And there's rifle practice. But that isn't work—that's sport. There is wireless telegraphy and signal work to be learned. There is training in scouting and woodcraft. Maybe you didn't know that every Marine is a regular Robinson Crusoe when it comes to making himself comfortable in a wild country.

There is artillery practice and something of sailing, rowing and seamanship. For a Marine is a sailor as well as a soldier. But it's good work—all of it.

In addition to giving a man physical fitness and mental alertness, the Marine Corps gives plenty of opportunity for learning a trade that will mean big money for him after his discharge. Thousands of ex-Marines have immediately been taken into well-paying jobs in civil life as aviators, airplane mechanics, gas engine mechanics, chauffeurs, wireless operators, printers, barbers, ball players, chefs, bakers, electricians, foremen, etc., etc.

An honorable discharge after two, three or four years' service in the Marines is the best letter of recommendation any man can have.

The Marine Corps wants only GOOD men, but they don't have to be giants, just ordinarily healthy. Don't say, "I can't pass the test," until you have tried. The doctors are kindly and courteous. Give them a chance to look you over. Send for booklet.

Tourists Marooned by Lack of Ships in the West Indies

By Mme. X.

PORT ANTONIO, Jamaica.—[Special Correspondence.]—At last I know how Robinson Crusoe felt when he couldn't get away from his beautiful, tropical, palm shaded island, which, by the way, was one of these same West Indies, the Isle of Tobago—or so says the guide book. Here we are, my side partner and I, marooned on this beautiful, tropical, palm shaded Jamaica, with no apparent chance of getting away, except by rowboat to Cuba, ninety miles or more to the north.

That is the main drawback to these enchanting and nearby West Indies. There are not nearly enough steamers plying between here and the mainland, while there is practically no interisland communication.

There was a recent convention of the West Indian Chamber of Commerce at one of the Barbadoes, at which Jamaica, the largest, most important of the British possessions hereabouts, was not represented, because the only way that the two delegates appointed to this conference could reach the designated place was by going to it via England, although the Barbadoes are perhaps a two or three days' distance by steamer from Jamaica.

No Way to Get Away.

The American Steamship company, which owns almost all of Jamaica, as well as the rest of the Caribbean sea, has brought here in relays thousands of cheerful, prosperous wayfarers—not a prohibitionist among them, either. And now every one of these cheerful, prosperous wayfarers wants to return to his native land at the same time and by the same steamer which is a problem in transportation beyond the power of any steamship line to solve.

O, you fortunate ones who only have to be packed in like perpendicular sardines twice a day on that unequaled institution, the Chicago street car, think on the lot of your fellow mortals in this part of the world who must be packed in horizontal rows, four in each stuffy cabin, six in the smoking room, six in the music room, two in the barbers' chairs, four in the crowd's nest, and so forth and so on, in order that all may get home before the Fourth o' July!

The yacht owners have it all over the common traveler in these waters. A smart little, low lying, rakish craft of this genus, the Sachem, owned and run by Manton B. Metcalf of New York, spent a few days this week in this quiet, banana logged harbor of Port Antonio.

Touring the West Indies.

With the commodore (every yachtowner is a commodore) were two former Chicagoans, "Harry" Black (of the Fuller Construction company) and Paul Starrett, who was with the firm of Daniel H. Burnham at the time of the world's fair. The fourth member of the party, Walter Dodge Cooper, gave it a literary flavor by being a descendant (direct or collateral) of James Fenimore Cooper. He and the commodore were born for life on the ocean wave, and the Sachem is reported to have quite wavy moments. The other half of the quartet feel more than ever before the tender appeal of the expression "Mother Earth."

The party had been touring the West Indies, visiting, among others, Santo Domingo and Haiti, where they were on the outer edge of one of the weekly revolutions. Both these states they report as being extraordinarily rich in many potential sources of wealth—mines, agricultural possibilities, tropical products, etc.—all as yet untouched and unexploited.

Celebrate Washington's Birthday.

Breathes the American with soul so dead that he doesn't celebrate Washington's birthday, no matter in what part of the globe the date hits him? Here in Port Antonio the English joined with the Americans to commemorate it with a dinner and ball at the hotel. Every one wore some sort of fantastic paper cap and blew a horn or rattled a rattle. Red, white, and blue lights were strung under the clattering palm trees and in among the hanging white trumpets of the big thunbergia vine which covers the pergola.

In the harbor at the foot of the hill the Sachem, also all alight with red, white, and blue lights and hung with many flags, lay on the silent, glassy, black bay, its illumination mirrored and melting in long, flaming cascades. A cheerful company of his compatriots dined with the commodore that night, and found the table adorned with small (and harmless) hatchets, clusters of cherries, and other appropriate emblems.

As Port Antonio offers the eager purchaser nothing but bananas and cocoanuts for his money, these birthday adornments must have been part of the yacht's cargo when it left New York, which shows an unsleeping patriotism on somebody's part.

In Tropical Setting.

Coffee, cigarets, and liqueurs (choicest benedictine from a French cellar in Haiti) on the after deck, with a soft land breeze just stirring the air, and brilliant stars hanging far down out of a black velvet sky, all combined to make a birthday party G. W. himself would have enjoyed.

But what you need in the West Indies for entire comfort and freedom is a neat little seaworthy steam yacht, so that when you are surfeited with the beauty and heat and strong local colors and perfumes of one island you can move on to the next set of sights and sounds and smells, and so fill your days and nights with the sensuous joys of the tropics.

According to your nature, your pleasure will be intensified or damaged by the vision in the back of your mind of the black frosts, blinding snowstorms, and far reaching ice fields that lie like ramparts between you and your native heath. Probably Robinson Crusoe consoled himself in restless moments by such phantoms of the past.

Sanitation Almost Unknown.

There are some phases of life here that catch the attention of the traveling American. When one sees the early morning milkman here delivering his lacteal wares in large, ancient, discolored cans, in a quaint, open, two wheeled cart, our own hygienic, bottled milk, and spick and span white delivery wagons come to mind. Sanitation and hygiene are words almost unknown in Port Antonio. Except in hotels built by and run for Americans, arrangements for man's most imperative needs are primitive in the extreme.

Large families (of natives, of course) live in shacks so small that floor space for sleeping must be inadequate. All their cooking, washing, and other domestic occupations are carried on in the open air. At present there is an epidemic of mumps and the mumpified, with visages framed in soiled white bandages, walk arm in arm with their unmumpified friends. It seems probable that every one in Port Antonio who has up to now escaped this painful, grotesque disease will have it before the open season for mumps closes.

It may be of interest to our world of commerce to know that one prominent American firm manufacturing soaps and perfumes has, so to speak, "copped" the entire business in this line in Port Antonio. As almost every native here uses the second of these products, it must be a profitable enterprise for the American firm. Also I congratulate the firm on its products. The perfume is almost strong enough—almost, but not quite.

Thanks to our tariff, these soaps and perfumes sell here for the same price that they do in our country—even less in some shops, though it must cost quite a little to ship them and get a market for them so far away from home.

WOMEN'S CLUB PAGE

Lake View Club Active Worker in Varied Interests

AT the Lake View Woman's club on Tuesday afternoon Dhan Gopal Mukerji will address the club's members and guests. Mrs. T. O. Wallace, chairman of the philanthropy department, will be in charge.

In the fall of 1893 a group of women of Lake View organized the first woman's club on the north side. Since that event its steady growth and widening scope of activities has given it rank with other and older clubs of Chicago.

The first work was the establishment of a kindergarten and later a crèche in the "clay holes" at Perry and Dunning streets. The board of education paid a director and the club bore an annual expense of $500 in connection with the maintenance of the school. Some years later a new activity appeared in the establishment of school play grounds. This was followed in rapid succession by other varied interests, ever in touch with the important movements of the city and state.

As "new occasions teach new duties," the club has recently added another activity, an industrial committee, which meets twice a month to sew for the dependent girls, wards of the Juvenile court, who are under the jurisdiction of Miss Mary Bartelme.

The club's four departments, due to the persevering efforts of their respective leaders, are endeavoring to reach the ideal held by the founder, Mrs. Helen C. Peirce. She believed that the object of a woman's club is high minded, effective service in the cause of humanity.

In recognition of some of our foreign born citizens the art and literature department has given papers on Alsace-Lorraine, Bulgaria, Ukrania, and Greece at the morning classes. The current events talks by Mrs. Louis H. Myrick have also brought much interest. Affiliated with the Municipal Art league, the annual gallery tour has become a feature of great value.

Reports relative to the city hall, school board, sanitary district, and the work for equal suffrage are brought by delegates, and thus the members of the civics and economics department are kept in touch with civic questions as they are being carried out by various bodies. Under the auspices of this department a book called "Balanced Meals with Recipes" has been published and the proceeds have been devoted to the club's friendly fund for the blind.

The philanthropy department contributes to the Glenwood Manual Training school, Park Ridge School for Girls, Christopher house, Juvenile Protective league, the Chicago Nursery and Half Orphan asylum. This year it furnished a room in Beulah home.

Through the Vocational Supervision league the education department gives a definite sum monthly to enable four girls to complete high school work that will make them self-supporting. Cooperating with the League for Better Speech, which asks no money but urges you to increase your own capital by improving your speech, this department is working for Americanization. The work of the Boys' Brotherhood Republic has been assisted by this group, and its civic committee is interested in bringing zoning and housing problems before the club.

A most comprehensive study of French history has been given at the morning study classes on business meeting days, a new departure which has been eminently successful.

The officers of the club are: Mrs. Willett H. Cornwell, president; Mrs. Wesley M. Thomas, first vice president; Mrs. J. M. Coen, second vice president; Mrs. B. F. Bullard, recording secretary; Mrs G. E. Arndt, corresponding secretary; Mrs F. H Gansbergen, treasurer; Mrs. Harry Olson, auditor; Mrs. Samuel D. Snow, chairman of the education department, Mrs. George Campbell of art and literature, Mrs. T. O. Wallace of philanthropy, Mrs. Louis J. Hotchkiss of civics and economics, and Mrs. Dorr E. Felt, social chairman.

THE HARBINGER

By Guy F. Lee.

Hats off to Spring! Yea, very soon
 The flivs will jam the thoroughfares;
The giggling maid and lovesick loon
 Will crowd the county clerk in pairs;
The Great West Side, all in a sweat,
 Beside the lake will disembark;
And in a week or so we'll get
 The Robin Yarn from Highland Park.

Grand opry, praise the Lord, is gone
 Until Old Boreas' blasts again;
The overcoat can go to pawn—
 A solace in the lives of men;
Not long from now we'll hear once more
 Advice on golf born in the ark,
And read in gratitude galore
 The Robin Tale from Highland Park.

O Glorious Robin! Fabled Bird!
 Our adoration you compel,
Although, as B. L. T.'s averred,
 You herald spring, Lykelle, Lykelle;
Despite the fact you often prove
 A bloomer as a weather shark,
We fondly wait and dearly love
 The Robin Fake from Highland Park.

McDougall

THE FIRST KITCHEN CABINET

First Aid to Good Cooking

McDougall Auto-Front

Man!—do you hanker for more home-cooked things than are given you? Here's a tip: a woman has more desire to exercise her culinary art when the preparation of those tasty eatables is made easy. So get a McDougall Auto-Front for the kitchen. It keeps 400 things within easy reach. Saves steps. Work takes wings. Her added cheerfulness at night, her greater willingness to go places with you —and more real home cooking will reward you. Try it and see. ℂ Made by the pioneers of the kitchen cabinet industry, the originators of kitchen cabinets and all their major improvements since the first, you will find in a McDougall those conveniences that women want. Broad range in style, size, finish and price. The right one for "her" is ready.

See the "Auto-Front," the famous McDougall patented wood curtain (above the tabletop) which drops open automatically. Disappears entirely! Leaves no groove to catch food or dirt. Lifts shut and locks! See it work!

See the tabletop that locks as firm as rock when pulled out. Can't jiggle up and down or rattle when worked upon.

See the handles, latches, catches and hinges, handsome refrigerator-style. Can never break or pull out. Finest used on kitchen cabinets.

See the lustrous finishes that distinguish all McDougalls. Those in oak are Spar varnished—won't turn white despite kitchen steam, heat, or washing.

See the high-leg bases, that can be swept beneath —sanitary!

See the construction in a McDougall. Built like a good sideboard. All joints mortised and tenoned solidly together instead of merely nailed or screwed. Nothing rickety.

See the steel braces in the eight corners of the base—staunch as Gibraltar! The drawers are dovetailed and mortised like dresser drawers—won't get out of shape and stick. McDougalls are the finest built of all. They do not grow wobbly and creaky with age.

See the flour bins, sanitary, cleanable (latest improved types) with cleanable sifters; see the sanitary glass sugar jar (non-corroding), see all the supremacies that McDougalls have.

VISIT A McDOUGALL DISPLAY THIS WEEK!

Many stores in Chicago and environs handle McDougalls. A few are listed. If you reside away from Chicago, write for your local dealer's name. Address McDougall Company, Frankfort, Indiana.

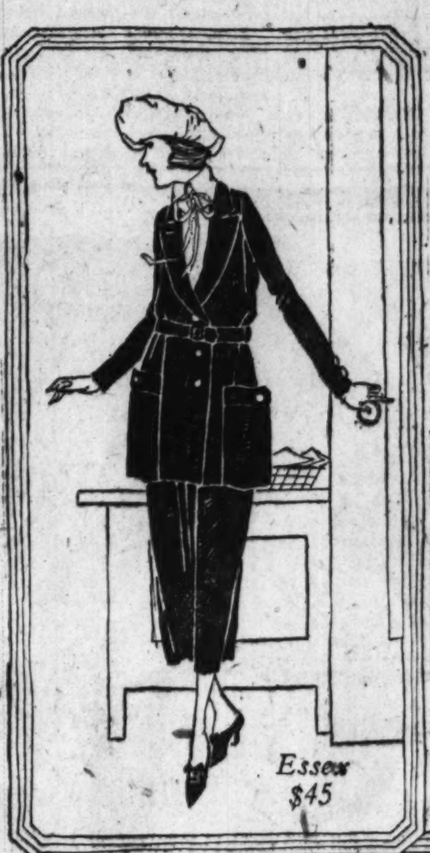
A Complete, Exclusive Specialty Shop for Women



To Introduce Our New Sports Department

Fifth Floor

We Announce An Unusual Suit Event

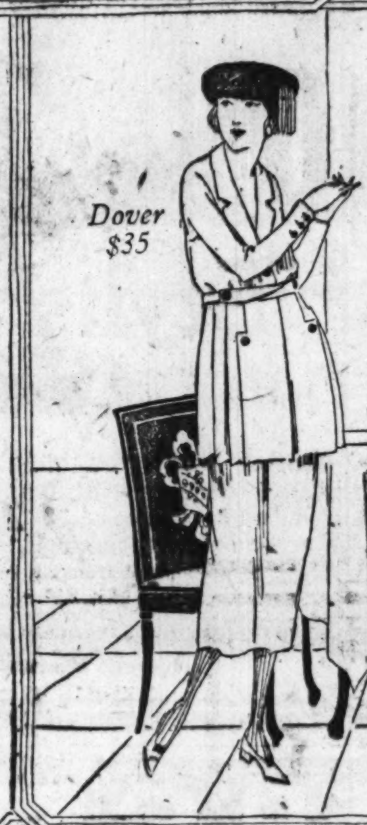
The Wool Jersey Suit

for the "Woman Who Does Things"

$25 $35 $45 $55.

A merchandising scoop that the new sports Department is justly proud of—this timely sale of wool jersey suits—the suit that is acclaimed by the well-groomed woman as the smartest, the most practical suit she can buy at such a moderate price.

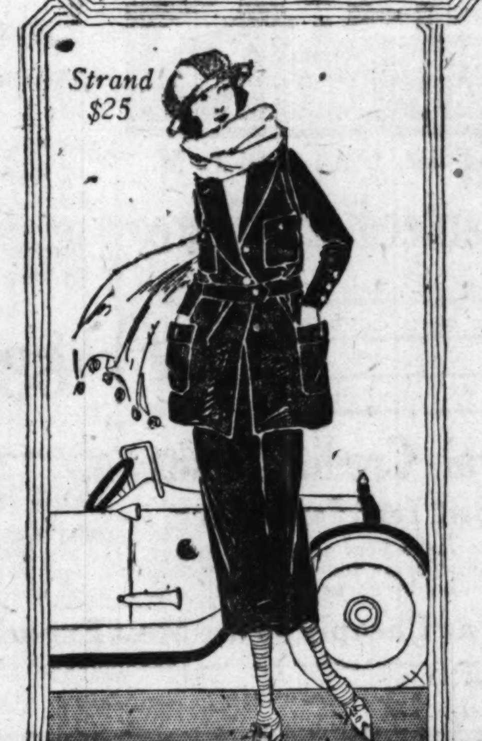
It is an all day and every day suit for the American woman whose interests are many and varied—and whose apparel must be in accordance—alert, smart, and ready for service.



Paris Favors the Vogue of the Wool Jersey Suit

The economy of a suit that is equally serviceable in summer, winter, spring and fall made an instant appeal to the women of France, so Paris predicts the vogue of the wool jersey suit for a long time to come.

The idea of buying a smart suit at $25, $35, $45 or $55—a suit that assures her of always being well dressed —is going to appeal just as quickly to the American woman. The Wool Jersey Suit will find a definite place in her wardrobe.

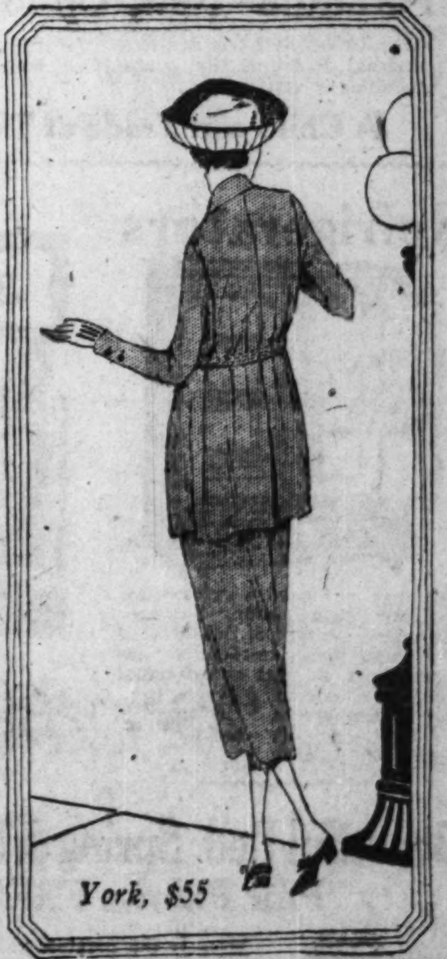


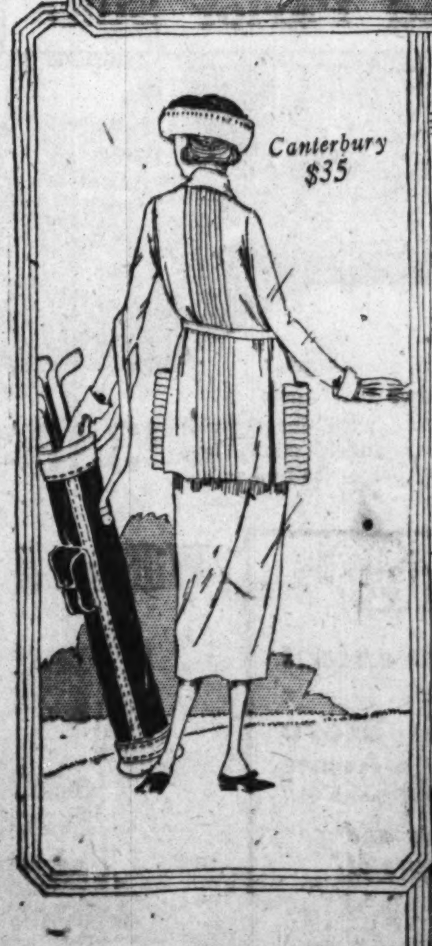
The All Year 'Round Suit

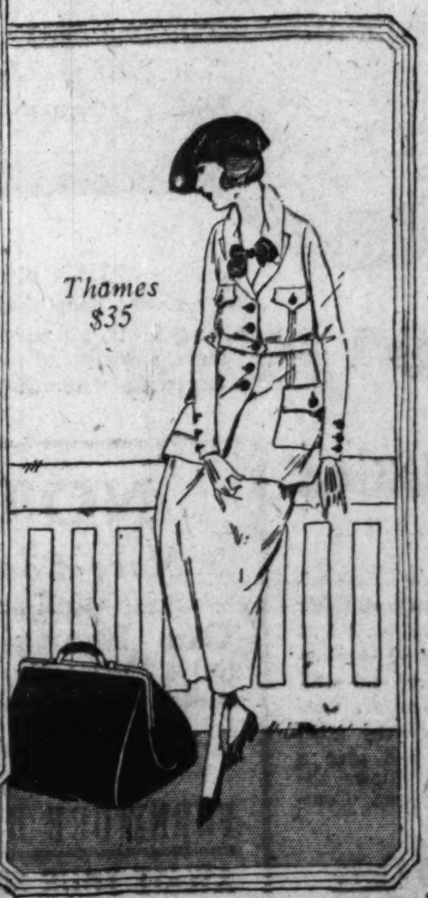
Ideal for Business, Sports, Traveling and General Wear

The popularity of the Wool Jersey Suit is added to by the fact that it doesn't muss easily. Roll it up, put it in your traveling bag, take it out the next morning and it's just as trim as ever.

This is the time to buy your Wool Jersey Suit, while the prices are so extremely moderate, because we have no assurance that these values can be secured later.







Colors: Navy, Black, Brown, Tan, Gray, White and Canard Heather Mixtures, Brown, Green, Copen. Sizes 14 to 42.

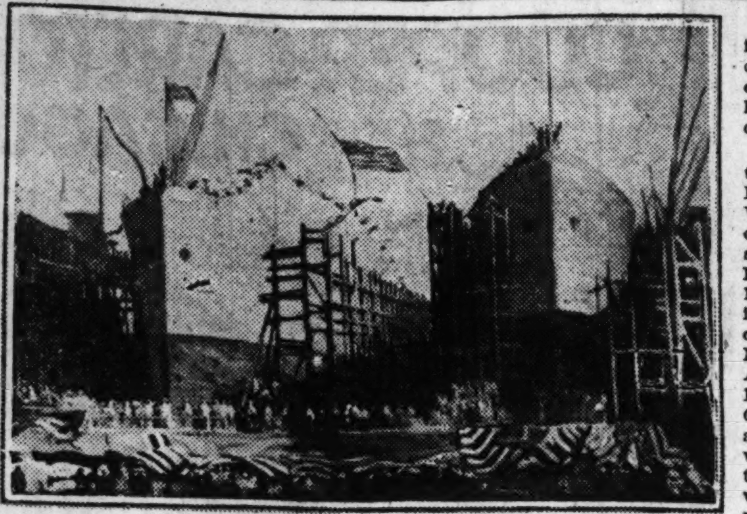
ART

Foreign Pictures Missed from Art Institute Exhibit

By Eleanor Jewett.

THERE opened on Tuesday at the Art institute an exhibition which lacked much of its expected brilliance, owing to the strike that confiscated in delayed express cars the most eagerly awaited of the foreign features. Of course, one always enjoys the charming child sketches of Adam Emory Albright, and the prints shown by the Chicago Society of Etchers are an annual pleasure, but one missed the anticipated Renoirs, the paintings by Degas and Arthur Davies, however much the shipyard scenes by John C. Johansen and the various offerings of the American painters, sculptors, and gravers gave one pause.



"A Gala Day at a Shipyard," by John C. Johansen, on exhibition at the Art institute.

I noticed somewhere, though my memory fails me as to the exact authority, the statement that this exhibition of work by Mr. Albright proves that with him the landscape is the real theme of his canvas and the children are but secondary to it. I am afraid I must take issue with this statement. In no single instance in the entire gallery devoted to his pictures is this true. In every case it is the child or the group of children which fixes the motif. There are children by the sea, children on the hillside, children in sunny meadows—but children, children always. The fields, the hills, the water exist for them. For them the sun shines and the winds blow; for them the sands are yellow and the ocean calm. It is essentially a children's world, the earth as seen through the brush of Mr. Albright.

Nor is this an adverse or unkindly criticism. From Homer down the world has been the toy of children. Their pleasure and delight come first. There should be no clouds and no rain to mar it. Adam Emory Albright has in a simple, heart-whole manner realized this and made it his creed as a painter. For which reason we get year by year from his palette, no matter what part of the world he portrays, fresh pictures of busy, glad, young life.

The tenth annual exhibition of etchings under the management of the Chicago Society of Etchers has an excellent group of prints this year. It has also made an excellent start. On the morning of the opening day, Tuesday, twenty-one prints were sold and $315 put in the society's treasury.

The standard of the society is high, and is lived up to successfully this year. Among the most delightful etchings are the children by Elizabeth Telling and the glimpses of wild ducks by Frank Benson.

The prize prints are "Two Old Women," by Adolphe W. Blondheim; "Three Score and Ten," by Arthur W. Heintzelman; "Wheelwright Shop," by Ernest D. Roth, and "Shipping," by J. W. Winkler.

The Art institute has purchased for its permanent collection "Market Day in Bruges," by J. Paul Verrees; "Little Marsh," by George Resler; "Duran Chapel, Talpa," by Ralph M. Pearson; "Field Museum from Japanese Bridge," by Bertha E. Jacques; "The Island," by Charles W. Dahlgreen, and "Heavy Going," by Kerr Eby.

Among the other artists showing prints are Wallace I. De Wolf, Louis O. Griffin, Lester G. Hornby, Ralph Fletcher Seymour, Lee Sturges, Thomas E. Tallmadge, John Taylor Arms, and J. C. Vondrous.

It is doubtless a difficult task to discover beauty in places devoted solely to industrial manufacture — even though that industry may result in such beautiful things as the graceful lines of our seagoing vessels. In the shipyard paintings by John C. Johansen the difficulty of beauty finding is sensed clearly, but also the fulfillment of the quest is to a certain extent realized. There is much of beauty in these paintings. It may be discovered in the color, in the composition, in the setting, in the gayety of the flying flags, or in the earnest devotion of zeal of the workmen. But no matter where it is discovered, it is there.

The exhibit does not cause a startling cry of appreciation. It rather, from its very nature, grows upon one's sympathy. At first glace the similarity of the paintings a trifle appals one. Almost chills one. But, after a bit, under eager examination, the charm that must have been in these busy places for the artist thrusts itself into notice and one knows their worth.

Among the paintings are "A Gala Day at a Shipyard," "Bolt and Rivet Crew," "The Fifty Shipways of Hog Island," "Interior of a Cargo Carrier," "Amidships in a Modern Shipyard," "Bristol War Shipyards," and "Putting in a Bulkhead."

The collection of paintings, drawings, and sculpture in the exhibition of American Painters, Sculptors, and Gravers is not entirely satisfactory. It is the first exhibit one comes to in going through the east wing of the Art institute, and it does not raise any great hope of great work. This, in spite of some excellent things and a number of celebrated names.

"The Piper," by Gari Melchers, is spirited, colorful, and vigorous, highly characteristic of the verve of the Scotch spirit, particularly when allowed to express its emotions through the national instrument—the bagpipes. "The Picnic," by Leon Kroll, is a decorative, jolly piece of al fresco painting. "Off On the Breeze," by Jonas Lie, is a gay, attractive harbor scene. Much better, by the way, from the standpoint of painting, than his "When the Boats Come In," also a harbor scene, but impregnated with a quantity of badly drawn masculine figures. The "Portrait of My Mother," by George Bellows, is a tender, sympathetic canvas. She is a sweet old lady, and her son has adequately portrayed her.

There are a number of other paintings, too, which might be pondered on, but space lacks, and, besides, the evident atmosphere of not the best hangs so heavily over the exhibit that one regrets a deeper consideration.

Among the artists who have contributed to the collection are Gifford Beal, Randal Davey, Paul Dougherty, Walter Griffin, who shows a really charming sketch of Venice; Childe Hassam, with a number of nice things; Robert Henri, Hayley Lever, George Luks, who shows a horrible, unfinished portrait in brown; John Sloan, of whom one expects better work; Maurice Sterne, Albert Sterner, J. Alden Weir, Mahonri Young, Albert Laessle, Paul Manship, C. C. Rumsey, Gertrude V. Whitney, Timothy Cole, and Joseph Pennell, in the spirit of whose war industry etchings it seems to me that John C. Johansen has worked in the creating of his shipyard paintings.

In the print room of the institute is an interesting collection of drawings and etchings by Arthur W. Heintzelman and of etchings by Katherine

Cleaner Clothes

QUICKER YET

The "Dolly" Does It-

The fundamental principles of successful clothes washing are hot water and plenty of good soap. Hot water expands the textile of the fabric. The soap dissolves the dirt and the water washes it away. The Quicker-Yet self-adjusting, cross-arm "dolly" agitates the water, making the best suds possible. Thus the soap is used to best advantage. The cross-arm "dolly" allows the clothes to nest in between the arms of the dolly, removing strain from the pegs, washing the finest fabrics without harm. No metal protrudes through the Quicker-Yet dolly. The dolly can be raised, while in operation, so as to get a different hold on the clothes if desired. Is it any wonder that the does your washings quicker and cleaner? And remember that the cypress wooden tubs keep the water hot from start to finish as they retain the heat. Also, bear in mind that in a Quicker-Yet Washer, the clothes are under water all the time that the dolly is working.

Quicker-Yet Washers are sold all over by good dealers both for cash and easy payments. They cost no more than the best and in many cases less. There are three styles. If you do not know the name of the Quicker-Yet Dealer in your locality, write us. Be sure and see a Quicker-Yet before you buy.

Cameron. They are all exceedingly nice. It is impossible to say, in looking back over them in my mind's eye, whether the portraits of grown persons, the adorable sketches of children, or the landscapes and animal prints by Heintzelman are the most to be preferred.

With the etchings by Katherine Cameron a choice is more practicable. I know I like the landscapes, but to my mind the poetry of her Japanese prints, Japanese probably not by intention, are infinitely more appealing. The bees tumbling in and around the slender stalks of heavy scented flowers; the butterflies lingering lazily in the chalice of the warm prickled thistle—there is to these etchings a breath of summer romance that the more prosaic countrysides lack.

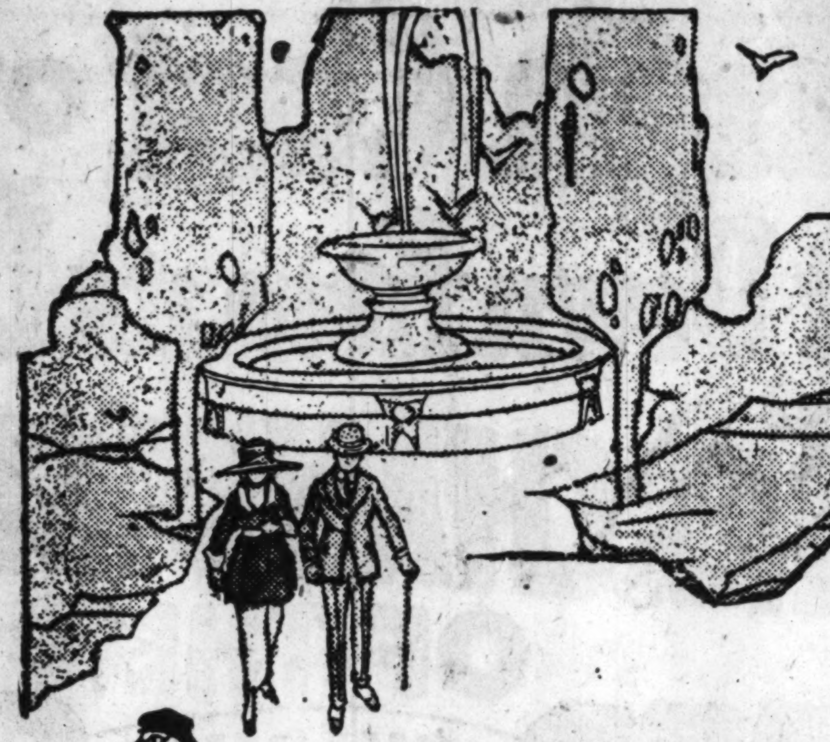
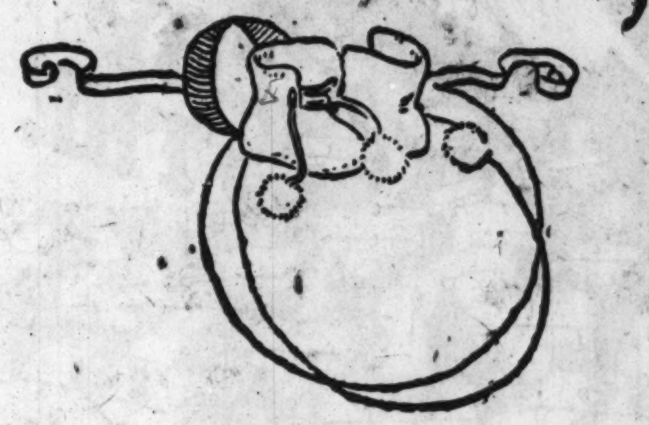
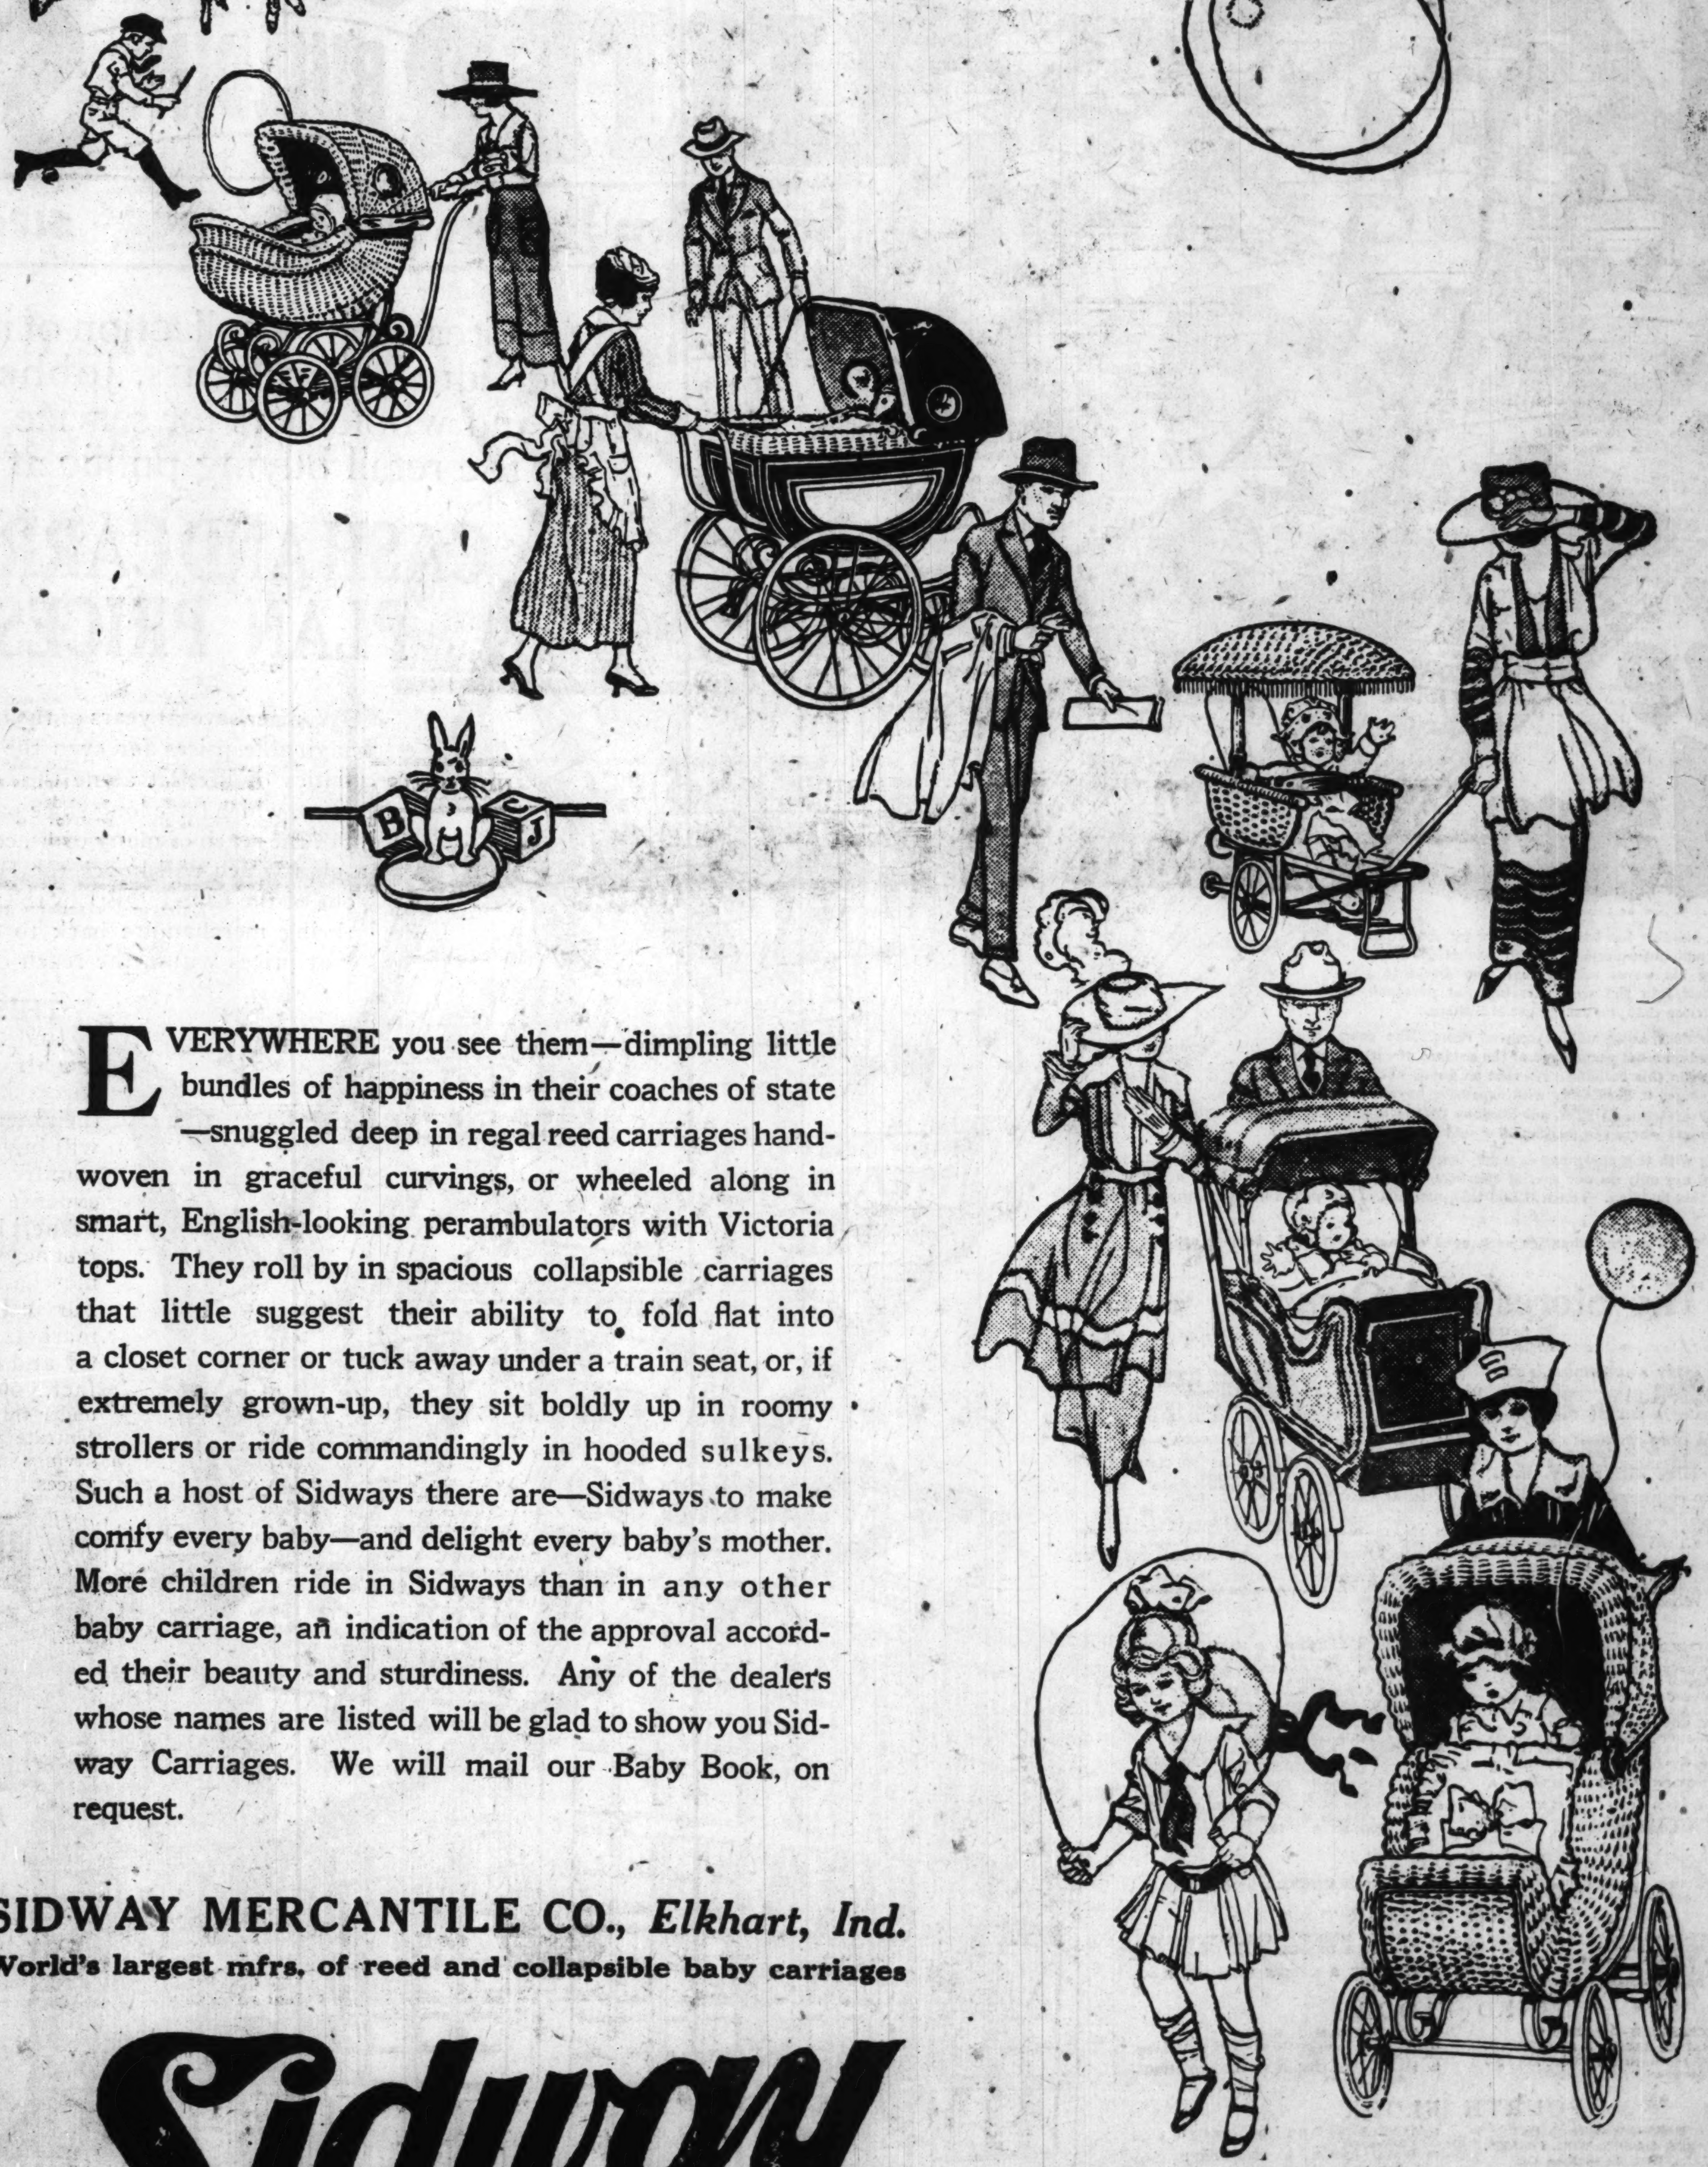
Sidway carriages are sold by leading dealers everywhere. If you do not know the name of a dealer near you, we will be glad to tell you.



Here They Come!

Happy Babies In Their Sidways





EVERYWHERE you see them—dimpling little bundles of happiness in their coaches of state—snuggled deep in regal reed carriages hand-woven in graceful curvings, or wheeled along in smart, English-looking perambulators with Victoria tops. They roll by in spacious collapsible carriages that little suggest their ability to fold flat into a closet corner or tuck away under a train seat, or, if extremely grown-up, they sit boldly up in roomy strollers or ride commandingly in hooded sulkeys. Such a host of Sidways there are—Sidways to make comfy every baby—and delight every baby's mother. More children ride in Sidways than in any other baby carriage, an indication of the approval accorded their beauty and sturdiness. Any of the dealers whose names are listed will be glad to show you Sidway Carriages. We will mail our Baby Book, on request.

The Plan

This great building has been taken over by about seventy-five individual merchants, each managing his own store, buying his wares and selling them direct to you, putting himself into the work, serving you personally and giving you service that you cannot get elsewhere.

This plan does away with excessive rents. The rents, in our plan, are based on a flat percentage of the amount of cash taken in each day. No store in this building pays rent on goods not sold. You save on their rent savings. It does away with expensive buyers, charge account systems, delivery systems, garages, sub-stations (delivering, at our expense, only from departments where the merchandise sold is too bulky to carry).

Dispensing with this enormous expense, you are going to reap the benefits of our great savings, not only on our special offerings, but every day in the week, in every store within this building. You will find this plan makes our prices beyond competition.

One price to all and merchandise exchanged or money refunded if goods are not satisfactory.

CASH AND CARRY PLAN PRICES

NOW, after several years of the highest imaginable prices for even the dire necessities of life, let alone the many luxuries, which have long since passed out of the reach of many of us, comes a plan which will knock the HIGH out of the COST OF LIVING and bring merchandise back to earth at prices within the reach of all.

Watch the Daily Papers For Our Opening Date

THIS PLAN IS SOMEWHAT NEW, created by and built upon the brains and experiences of seventy-five of Chicago's most prominent and successful business men, who own and operate their own businesses, and who, here in these stores, will buy and sell their own wares over their own counters, with 99 66-100% of the unnecessary expense eliminated, matching their wits in the keenest kind of competition, that being the fellow just across the aisle who is selling the same kind of merchandise, and at whatever price he may dictate. For instance, you will find seven or eight meat markets; ten fruit and vegetable stores; three butter and egg stores; two or three candy stores; in fact, you will find in many lines competitive stores under this one roof; with the result that you may concentrate your buying in these stores and make greater savings in less time than by shopping in a dozen different places.

For the Accommodation of the Public:

The Leiter Building Stores will have centrally located each of the following offices:

Bureau of Complaint
Bureau of Information
Bureau for Exchange and Adjustments
Bureau for Delivery, Accommodation and Numerous Others

Canada Second Only to U. S. in Producing Autos

TORONTO, Ont., March 13.—Canada is now the second nation in the world in the manufacture of automobiles, the number of cars owned, and the number per capita. The United States is first and Great Britain third.

Figures taken from a government report show that the automotive industry in Canada employes 15,000 workers and represents an investment of $50,000,000. The total sales of cars last year amounted to $100,000,000 and the pay roll exceeded $15,000,000. During 1919, 94,000 automobiles were manufactured in Canada and it is believed this total will be increased 35 per cent in 1920. Latest registration records show that about 350,000 motor vehicles are in operation throughout the dominion.

One in every twenty-three persons in Canada own a motor car. There are 6,000,000 automobiles in the United States or one to every twenty inhabitants. In England there are only 180,000 cars or one to every 268 persons. There is one automobile to every 402 people in France, to 684 people in Germany, to 1,000 people in Italy, to 2,700 people in Austria, to 5,300 in Russia.

Registration of cars in Canada increased 13 per cent over that of 1918. Ontario continues to be the banner province for automobiles with 127,860 passenger cars and 11,428 motor trucks in use, with Saskatchewan, Alberta, Manitoba and Quebec following in order. The rural population owns more than half the cars in the dominion and in the prairie provinces the percentage is higher.

My Funniest Motoring Experience

> Every one who has taken the road in a motor car has some story to tell. What is your best one? The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published in "My Funniest Motoring Experience." Write as briefly as possible, on one side of the paper only, and address Funniest Motoring Experience, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Another Oil Strike.

The road had just been treated with crude oil. A suburban car had stopped to let off passengers, and a young man in a light palm beach suit alighted and, walking backward, stepped directly in our path. My brother-in-law, at the wheel, turned sharply and the hook on the front light caught the material of the young man's trousers and ripped them pretty well from hip to below the knee, and then, after dragging him about ten feet, gently let him down in a puddle of oil. The man turned, and on seeing his face I recognized him as a one time suitor. Our embarrassment was indescribable, but we picked him up and took him to a tailor shop. To this day my brother-in-law does not know we were acquaintances.

MRS. W. B.

A "Relief" Fund?

While returning home from a drive one evening we found that our lights would not burn. As we feared might happen, we were stopped by an officer, who, to our surprise, asked $1 from each of us. We gladly handed him the money, thinking we were getting off cheap, whereupon he handed us each an envelope, which we suspected of being a summons. Upon opening them, however, we found they were tickets to a forthcoming policeman's dance.

L. F. T.

How's This, "Pedestrians"?

It was an inky black night and we were riding along a country road, when we saw a railroad crossing ahead. We stopped about a hundred feet from the tracks and peered through the brush and trees that lined the road. There up the track we saw a light moving toward us. The driver wished to move on, but I, being very nervous, objected loudly, so we waited at least five minutes. The light kept drawing nearer, but the driver in disgust insisted upon crossing, saying it was probably a slow freight. But again I shrieked loudly, for I knew train lights were so deceiving at night and it must be nearly upon us by now. We continued waiting in the darkness for the train to pass, and as the light drew nearer we discovered our locomotive to be nothing more than a man coming down the track with a lantern.

The Experts Say

WHEN a bolt is so located that it is difficult to start it, the the trouble may be obviated by attaching a piece of wire to the end of the bolt by a drop of solder. Using the wire as a handle the bolt is easily started and after it is in place the wire is easily removed by a few turns.

The seat covers used in motor cars generally wear first at the seams. In order to prevent this it is a good plan to reinforce the seams by sewing over them a strip of imitation leather about an inch wide. The strips are sewed to the cover cloth on each side of the seam. This reinforcement also prevents dust from accumulating in the seams and thereby adds to the cleanliness of the cover.

Sometimes the threads of the cap of a grease gun becomes so warm that the gun jumps the threads. In these conditions take out the plunger and unscrew the cap. Next solder a nut of the same size and thread as the screw on the inside of the cap. This will obviate the former trouble, as the new threads will hold the cap firmly in place.

A very convenient filler for putting electrolytic in battery jars is made by steaming an old jar until it is soft and then forming a sort of spout at one side by means of two pieces of board. When the jar cools it retains the shape that has been given it.

When a car stops in a heavy rainstorm, suspect the distributer, the top of the coil, or the plugs and wires of being wet. Water is an excellent conductor of electricity. A driving rainstorm will enter through the ventilatin cuts in the hood and often manage to produce a short circuit, which stops the car as effectually as if it were robbed of its spark plugs. The only remedy is to wait for the affected parts to dry, or to locate them and dry them off with rags. The best remedy is prevention. Small covers of oil cloth made to fit over the coil and distributer, similar in effect to the leather hood which usually protects magnetos, will keep out the fine water spray which does the damage, and prevent an annoying stop under uncomfortable circumstances.

A useful tool box for the man who does much work about his garage may be made by constructing a two shelf box, each shelf being V shaped, so that the tools will not roll off. The shelves should be six or eight inches apart, so that free access is permitted.

When driving screws into hard wood breakage is a trouble frequently encountered. This may be prevented by applying beeswax to the screw, as this relieves the intense friction which is the cause of breakage.

Own a "Selected" Farm in Western Canada

Make Bigger Profits!

THE most wonderful opportunity in the world for Business Farmers is in the "SELECTED" FARMS which can be bought for $15 to $40 an acre along the lines of the Canadian National Railways in Western Canada.

"Selected" Farms

These "SELECTED" Farms are carefully chosen from the cream of the richest wheat and cattle country in America, to meet your special needs, on the advice of experts representing 14,000 miles of railway, whose assistance, though free to homeseekers, is of great practical value.

A Cordial Welcome

Western Canada extends a helpful hand to homeseekers. Friendly neighbors, with the same customs and language—churches and social life—every benefit that you formerly enjoyed and many advantages that you could not get from higher priced land elsewhere—warm, sunny, growing summers and dry, cold, healthy winters—await you in this wonderfully prosperous "LAST WEST."

Fine Schools in All Farming Districts

The school system of Western Canada offers splendid advantages to settlers along the lines of the Canadian National Railways.

It requires only four families with a minimum of 12 children to secure a primary school, and the government is active in building schools in the farming districts and assisting them by money grants.

In Saskatchewan, for example, during the nine years from 1906 to 15, 2,335 schools were established on an average of one for each school day! There are now nearly 000 school districts in the Province of Saskatchewan alone and this favorable condition is also substantially true of Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia.

Settlers on these "Selected" Farms, therefore, will find every educational advantage for their children that they could enjoy in the most favored farming sections in any country. Western Canada believes in education and backs its belief by every possible aid in perfecting an ideal school system.

Big Profits in Wheat and Dairying

Western Canada is famous for its big wheat yields. "SELECTED" FARMS along the lines of the Canadian National Railways average more than 20 bushels of wheat to the acre. Under specially favorable conditions a yield of 50 to 60 bushels per acre is not uncommon.

Dairying is exceptionally profitable. That soil and climate are well adapted to it is shown in greatly increased production and high quality maintained. A world-wide market awaits all that Western Canada can produce.

Fortunes from Beef and Dairy Cattle

Western Canada, the Cattle Man's Paradise! Beef and dairy cattle yield great profits. Stock thrive on the prairie grasses, which in many cases cure standing and make fine hay. Cattle and horses require only natural shelter most of the weather, and bring high prices without grain feeding.

Taxes Are Low

Western Canada taxes fall lightly on the farmer. A small tax on land, but buildings, improvements, animals, machinery and personal property are all tax exempt.

Easy Terms

Terms on "SELECTED" Farms: About 10 per cent cash down, balance in equal payments over a term of years; interest usually 6 per cent.

Special Rates to Homeseekers

Special railway rates will be made for homeseekers and their effects to encourage personal inspection of the Farms along the lines of the Canadian National Railways. Rates and full information will be sent free on request. Write or mail coupon TODAY!

HUDSON SUPER SIX

Also Judge Essex Fineness By The Hudson Standard

The Essex Is Famous for Beauty as Well as Performance

Essex performance proofs naturally overshadow its qualities of quieter appeal.

For prior to Essex, it was held that light weight must mean some forfeit in smoothness, speed, power and endurance.

But even those whose choice was decided by Essex supreme performance ability, are captivated by its notable beauty of design, its luxurious fittings, and quiet riding ease.

Comfort and Qualities Like the Costliest Car

It is not merely that Essex matches even large high-priced cars in comfort. It is not only its speed, its quickness at the getaway or its easy mastery of the hills. Its charm is the combination of these qualities with a flying smoothness in action, and a responsiveness that heeds the lightest touch.

Abundant surplus power handles the Essex with ease in every situation. It is this surplus power and strength beyond any need you will ever have for it that accounts, too, for Essex smoothness and ease in tasks at which many cars strain with permanent injury to their mechanism. It stops, starts, turns and picks up far faster than is possible to heavy types.

Though style preference must always be a matter of personal taste, a car must offer unusual beauty and distinction to gain the following Essex has among people who are accustomed to fine quality in all things.

Hudson Design and the Super-Six Motor Still World Supreme

Every day you see Hudsons, two and three years old, which, both in performance and style, might well be judged of recent production.

First, because Hudson design has never been guided by caprice. It has never sought to excite attention by dubious extremes. It has been too sure of what are the essential permanencies of beauty and dignity.

The advance ideas you will always find in Hudson. This fact created its leadership. But they must earn their right to belong. No mere straining after something new has ever won place for a single feature of Hudson design.

On fashionable boulevards and drives you will see more Hudson closed and chauffeur-driven cars than of any other make.

The Super-Six Motor Exclusive in Hudson

Yet leadership of style alone was not enough to win such recognition.

Hudson's chief advantage has always been in performance. By every way open to proof it has shown its supremacy. Its records were made four or five years ago. Yet they still stand. They account for Hudson becoming the largest selling fine car in the world.

That is sufficient reason why no change has ever been made in the principle of the Super-Six motor.

It is exclusive to Hudson. You can get its advantages in no other car.

See That You Get What You Pay For When Buying 'Gas'

Good Fuel as Vital to Engine as Good Food Is to Stomach.

BY HIGH SPEED.

THE gasoline your engine uses corresponds to the food that you eat and it is only natural to expect a lot of trouble if the engine food is poor or unfit for the engine. Just as it would disturb the digestive apparatus of an Eskimo to feed him French pastry, so it would be courting trouble to feed a grade of gasoline of the wrong composition.

I might mention just a few troubles that are brought about by wrong fuel usage: Rapid carbonization, overheating, hard starting, plug fouling, lack of power, poor fuel economy. The owner must do a little experimenting in order to find a gasoline such as will give the best results in performance with the least carbonization.

In most localities there are a number of gasoline stations, and the owner usually goes to the same one each time, but when the owner ventures away from the trodden path he buys whatever gasoline the wayside dealer has to sell. It is quite possible that in all these different dealings he may procure gasoline of good and uniform quality, but it is much safer, after having found a good grade of fuel, to buy that grade only. I refer to a grade as a trademarked fuel or one put out by a certain refiner.

The need for this precaution in buying is much greater now than in years gone by, when the fuel was not a so-called mix. Today all gasolines you buy are physical mixtures of different fuels. Some of the mixtures are well made and are made with exactly the same proportions of each constituent. Others, however, are made with whatever ingredient the refiner happens to have in quantity, with the result that the "gasoline" from the latter refiners will not be of constant composition and will give trouble.

In the past we have referred to gasoline as having this or that specific gravity, or perhaps Baume gravity. Those terms do not indicate the quality of the gasoline at all. The real indicators of the quality are the initial and final boiling points, but these figures are not generally known by the gasoline dealer and might lead to a lot of deception any way. The owner has only to try one grade of gasoline for a week and if the engine performs satisfactorily he should not change to another fuel unless he thinks he can improve engine performance or economy or both.

Now for some advice on getting what you pay for when you drive up to the gasoline station. Especially on cold days the car owner is apt to say "Fill her up," leaving the whole work of filling the rear tank to the gasoline dealer. The average dealer is honest, but be always sure that his pumping outfit pumps what the indicator says. At all filling stations the gasoline is drawn from an underground tank by means of a hand operated pump. As many things can go wrong with that pump as can go wrong with a tire pump, and you know from experience that the tire pump doesn't always pump air in the desired volume. Leaky pistons, leaks in the hose, and other things contribute to short measure of air, and likewise in the gasoline station to short measure of gasoline.

If you ever have listened to the gasoline as it is being forced out through the nozzle, you may have noticed that often there is a sputtering sound, and if you will look at the end of the nozzle on the next occasion you will find that that sputtering brings about a condition where the volume pumped is reduced. The sputtering is caused by air being forced out with the gasoline. When you hear sputtering rest assured it will be worth while to ask to have the measure checked, unless you are satisfied to pay for air with your gas.

It should really be the duty of the gasoline vender to have his measure checked. If no official certificate is presented upon demand it should not be beneath the dealer to demonstrate the accuracy of the measure by making a test before the consumer's eyes.

Most owners are familiar with the fact that the hose can hold as much as half a gallon and that after pumping the hose ought to be drained in order that full measure be obtained. The argument that the fellow before you did not get the hose full and therefore you get what he left and so on, does not hold good. Get what is in the hose, otherwise you are not getting full measure.

At Indianapolis last week one of the new Overland 4 stock cars was driven 5,452 miles continuously in seven days and nights, over frozen country roads—and finished ready to do it again.

This is an average of 772 miles per day: more than the distance between Toledo and New York City covered each day. This is another tribute to the cushioning effect of Triplex Springs and the quality of material in Overland 4.

It is often remarked that Paige trucks always render the same dependable service, regardless of the tasks to which they may be assigned. Long-distance hauls, under capacity load, apparently impose no greater burden than the lighter, every-day jobs of trucking.

Paige trucks possess the basic strength to keep them uninterruptedly on the job. This quality is built into them as a part of the heritage to which, as Paige products, they are justly entitled. "DO IT ALL" TRACTORS
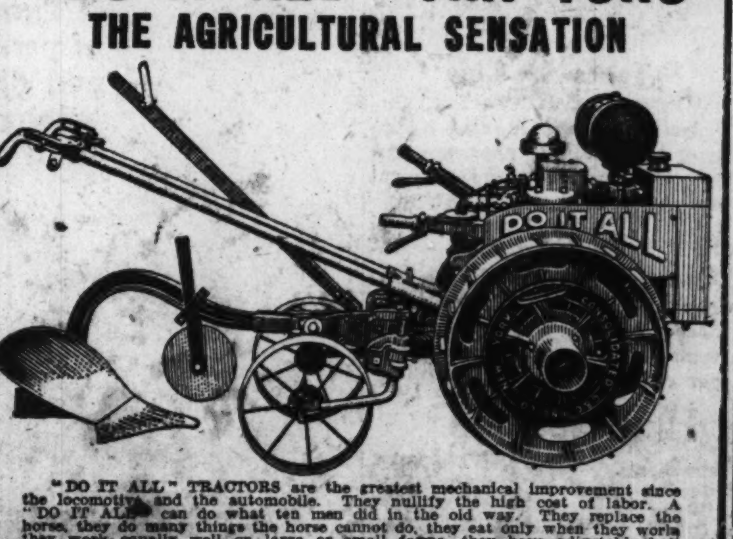
THE AGRICULTURAL SENSATION



"DO IT ALL" TRACTORS are the greatest mechanical improvement since the locomotive and the automobile. They nullify the high cost of labor. A "DO IT ALL" can do what ten men did in the old way. They replace the horse, they do many things the horse cannot do, they eat only when they work, they work equally well on large or small farms, they have adjustable bull wheels. With one wheel in the furrow or when working on side hills the tractor is level. You do not walk on the edge of your feet. Why buy a tractor that rides on the edge of the wheels? The "DO IT ALL" pulls from a 9 to 10 inch plow in sod or stubble; weighs about 1,000 pounds; it has 6-H. P. for belt work. You cannot afford to farm another day in the old way. Get the "DO IT ALL" working for you; it means more and better crops, easier work and a saving of money. Ask for catalog 31. It tells you more about the "DO IT ALL."

Mr. Business Man- Your O K will follow your investigation of Almond Orchard profits in California

Investigate thoroughly.

Look into the character of the men who head our Association—shrewd, level-headed business men themselves who have invested large sums of their own money in almond orchards in the Paso Robles district.

Get full particulars of the trust agreement we have with one of the strongest trust companies in the United States, which gives the investor the largest measure of protection ever offered by any other similar trust agreement.

Verify from any authoritative, disinterested source the facts regarding the profits now being made and the assurance of still greater profits to be made in the future from our big co-operative almond orchard development plan.

Apply the same rigid tests to this investment that you would to any other—and you will say just as emphatically as we do that every claim we make is 100% fact—that we are offering by long odds and in every way the BEST investment opportunity that has ever been brought to your notice.

Performance Greater Than Promises

You are a business man. Mere words mean little to you. You scrutinize every business proposition dispassionately, analytically. It may appear plausible, but unless it stands up under your searching probe for solid facts you reject it. You want performance—not promises.

We realize this. We know and you know that sometimes when men are engaged in an enterprise in which they have unlimited faith—an enterprise which with their own eyes they see growing and expanding on all sides—their intense enthusiasm is apt to get ahead of their better judement to such an extent that their claims lean toward exaggeration.

We are intensely enthusiastic over our almond orchard development project at Paso Robles. We admit, too, that it is often difficult to restrain this enthusiasm, knowing, as we do, the remarkable money-making possibilities of these almond orchards. Nevertheless, good business judgment tells us that it is far better to underestimate the real conditions rather than to make any statements which anyone can question. We want every investor to come to the realization that he has made a better investment than he thought he was making—that our performance is, in truth, greater than our promises.

Take the matter of income yield. Your knowledge of investments tells you that gilt-edge bonds, stocks, mortgages, etc., are safe and convertible. You know, too, that the earning power of your money in such securities does not exceed 6% to 7%—that it requires an investment of $40,000 to earn $2,400 to $2,800 a year.

It may, then, surprise you to learn that a fully developed 10-acre almond orchard, costing but a mere fraction of that sum, should easily return a net income of from

$2,500.00 to $3,000.00 a Year for Life

What assurance can we give that an almond orchard will produce net profits of $250 to $300 an acre?

The assurance of past performance—of the profits almond growers are now making in the Paso Robles district—and the very strong probabilities of even greater profits for those who come in with us NOW.

Here are some figures that will interest you. In 1918 the selling price of Paso Robles almonds was 25c per pound, at which price we estimate net profits of from $250 to $300 an acre. Last year there was a far greater production and the selling price was 30c to 32½c per pound.

We plant 700 of the finest pedigreed almond trees that horticultural skill can produce to each 10-acre tract. Our Field Manager, Mr. G. A. Nehrhood, who is the acknowledged almond authority of the Pacific Coast, estimates a yield of 20 pounds per tree when the trees are eight years old. Yet on January 10th of this year Mr. Nehrhood appeared before C. D. McFarland, Notary Public in and for San Luis Obispo County, California (in which Paso Robles is situated) and made an affidavit as follows:

> "TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:
> I hereby make affidavit that I have planted and now own young orchards which are annually producing in excess of the estimates set forth in the booklet gotten out by the Associated Almond Growers of Paso Robles, entitled "A Life Income Plus California." I not only have orchards that are producing more than the said estimate, but there are other orchards in the district which also surpass the estimate in question. I attach hereto and desire to make a part hereof, the tabulation referred to in said booklet.
> (Signed) G. A. NEHRHOOD."

Now just figure the very moderate yield of only 20 pounds per tree and multiply that by the 700 trees comprising a 10-acre orchard—a total of 14,000 pounds—at last year's lowest price (30c) and see what the returns actually are—$4,200! Allow $50.00 an acre for EVERY POSSIBLE expense of cultivating, pruning and otherwise caring for the orchard, harvesting and marketing the crop and deduct this $500 from the 10-acre yield and there still remains a net profit of $3,700.

An Almond Monopoly

That is exactly what California has. This state produces 99% of all the almonds grown in this country. Practically the entire crop is handled by the California Almond Growers Exchange, which is now advertising the choicest almonds as the Blue Diamond Brand.

The very finest almonds grown in California come from the Paso Robles district. Why? Let Mr. G. A. Nehrhood tell you why.

> "For a number of years I traveled over California examining lands and testing soils as to their productivity and adaptability to various crops for the purpose of establishing a basis of loans for several large banks and trust companies. In certain sections of the state—sometimes in widely separated areas—I found soil conditions favorable for oranges, lemons, figs, raisins, grapes, etc., but NOWHERE did I find the soil so ideally adapted to ALMOND CULTURE as in certain portions of what is known as the Paso Robles district. The fact that the soil does not require irrigation is a great factor to be considered. I have specialized in almond culture for many years and my experience, in this as well as other almond growing sections, has proved to me that almonds grown in non-irrigated soil are far superior both as regards richness of flavor and meat content to those grown in soil that requires irrigation.
> "G. A. NEHRHOOD."

Sure Crops—Steady Demand

Almonds are the most dependable crop grown in California. There has not been an almond crop failure in the Paso Robles district in 35 years where the trees have been properly planted and cared for.

The demand for almonds is stable and active. It increases from year to year. Price advances to keep pace with increased demand are inevitable.

Your Every Interest Protected

When you enter a contract with our association you deal with an organization composed of men who are themselves almond growers and whose interests are identical with your own. In fact, our association can be successful only through the success of the individual investors who buy these tracts. As an additional safeguard we have created a trust fund for the express purpose of developing these orchard tracts and which can be used for no other purpose. This fund is held in trust by one of the largest trust companies in California, which also holds a clear title to all of our orchard lands. Under the terms of our agreement with this big trust company, money for development purposes can be paid out only on properly receipted bills and vouchers. And it is further stipulated that the trust company shall deliver the title and deed to this property upon the buyer's completion of his contract with us. Your financial interests could not be more carefully safeguarded.

FREE LECTURE

Lyon & Healy Hall, 64 E. Jackson Blvd.,
Monday Evening, March 15th, at 8 o'Clock

Don't miss this lecture. It will prove a revelation to you—intensely interesting and highly instructive. The big colored lantern slides give you entrancing views of some of California's most magnificent scenery—snow-capped mountains, peaks that pierce the clouds, crystal lakes, foamy waterfalls, beach scenes, missions hoary with age, vine-covered bungalows without end, vast forests of giant trees, vivid flowers that cover hillside and plain as far as the eye can see and, which is of the most momentous interest, panoramic views of the almond growing industry in every stage from the planting of the young trees to the gathering of the golden harvest. You will enjoy this lecture. COME—and bring your friends.

Crops Pay Half

A moderate payment down and small payments as low as $25 per month puts you in possession of one of these big profit-making ten-acre orchards. But you pay only half the price out of your pocket. We will accept payment for the balance from the sale of the almonds after the trees are in bearing.

Additional Profits From Increase of Land Values

Your profit of $2,500 to $3,000 a year is only part of the revenue from one of these ten-acre almond orchards. From the day it is planted the land value begins to rise. It continues to increase in value at the rate of about $100 an acre for from 12 to 15 years. If, therefore, after the completion of your contract, you should at any time wish to sell, you could do so at a big advance over your contract price.

Our Money-Back Guarantee

If you can conveniently do so, by all means make a trip to Paso Robles and examine conditions there first hand. Investigate. If you do not find everything just as represented we will refund to you any payment you have made, together with your railroad and Pullman fares. This same offer holds good if, instead of going yourself, you have a representative make the trip of investigation.

So call at our office and get full particulars. Let us show you our magnificent collection of large colored photographs of the almond orchards at Paso Robles in all stages of development from the one-year-olds up to the full bearing stage.

Let us show you samples of the remarkable sea-marl adobe soil which is found in quantities only in certain sections of the Paso Robles District.

Let us explain fully our monthly payment plan which makes it so easy to own one of these big profit-making almond orchards. Let us more fully explain how completely your interests are safeguarded by our iron-clad trust agreement.

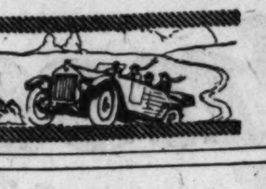
MOTORDOM



GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

ARRANGEMENTS have been made for a huge parking ground back of the new Packard service building at Thirty-fifth street and Princeton avenue, where Packards may be parked free of charge while their owners are watching the game at the White Sox ball park.

George B. Warner, general manager of the Renault factory branch at New York, announces that Fred J. Titus, a veteran in the automotive business, has joined his staff as sales manager.

According to the department of commerce, the production of eastern crude rubber for 1919 is placed at 360,000 tons, of which 320,000 tons is of the so-called plantation grades and 40,000 tons is wild. United States rubber imports for the year will aggregate 220,000 tons as against 40,000 tons for the United Kingdom.

Six hundred Buicks were driven away from Flint, Mich., over snow covered roads in one day recently.

The International Motor company of New York, manufacturers of Mack trucks announces the opening of another branch at Cincinnati, O. G. K. Ross will be in charge.

On March 26 and 27 the National Association of Motor Truck Sales Managers will hold its spring meeting in Chicago.

Increasing prosperity in the south is being reflected by the growing number of deliveries of automobiles in train-load lots. Recently a solid train of forty-five cars of Columbia sixes reached Jacksonville, Fla.

STARS OF DIFFERENT FIRMAMENTS MEET—Here is "Doug" Fairbanks, with his placid smile, shaking hands with Roscoe Sarles, just after the latter had turned the course of one and one-quarter miles on the new speedway at Los Angeles in 41 seconds flat.

Trucks for Farms.

According to figures compiled by the department of agriculture there are about 7,000,000 farms in this country, while the number of motor trucks used on them is about 80,000. Although 42 per cent of the farms contain more than 100 acres, most of the motor trucks are used on farms of lesser acreage where intensive farming is done. Truck manufacturers estimate that 350,000 trucks will be made in 1920. These figures give some idea of the field for motor trucks on farms.

On a Flat Tire.

When it is absolutely necessary to run on a flat tire keep the tire in soft dirt if possible. If the trouble occurs on city streets run on the trolley tracks rather than on cobblestones.

Don't Overheat Garage.

While it is, of course, most advantageous to heat the garage by some means or oher during the cold months, there is another extreme that should be avoided. If the heat is too intense, the sudden change of temperature when the vehicle is taken out into the cold air, or when it enters the overheated garage after being in the cold, is apt to cause the varnished panels to check and fine cracks to appear in the finely finished varnish coating of the body.

Keep Up Compression.

Modern cars are equipped with electric self-starters and do not have the crank handle installed. Without a crank handle it is dufficult properly to test the compression of each cylinder. Oftentimes a motor is run with cylinders simply because it is too much trouble to attach the crank handle and test the compression of each cylinder. If the compression of each cylinder is not kept up to standard there is bound to be more or less of a pound in the engine, which is injurious to all the working parts, and especially to the bearings.

National Standard Truck Cost System
Truck Owners Conference
RECAPITULATION BY YEARS
MONTHLY ANALYSIS OF OPERATION

Cost Keeping Instruction in the Truck Owners' Conference—a semi-formal association of Motor Truck Users. Its "National Standard Truck Cost System" is the first complete and impartial method for determining what each truck actually costs per ton-mile of transportation. Not only wages, gasoline, oil and tires —but repairs and replacements on his assembled trucks as compared with a truck built from the ground up as a homogeneous Engineering unit

Who Pays for High Costs

DR. LOUIS PASTEUR started to help the vine-growers of France. He ended by raising the health standards of the whole civilized world.

Every positive forward step brings benefits no man can foresee.

The merchant, the industrial man, starts to keep running costs on his trucks. Before he gets through he has searching figures on which trucks to keep and which to scrap—and what make of truck to put his money on in the future.

Here are facts summarized from the National Standard Truck Cost System as kept for over 1700 Packard Trucks during 1919.

Efficiency in operation secured through the help of the National Standard System has resulted in an average gasoline saving of 10 per cent.

Many unusually low records for gasoline have been scored.

The National Standard System used in connection with Packard Trucks has shown it possible to reduce cost per ton mile.

90% of truck owners who have used the System for a year or more and have compared the Packard with other trucks are standardizing on Packards.

To get the full meaning of a record you must scrutinize the facts behind it—and the Organization that made the facts possible.

The Packard Organization has attained a precision in machine finish unknown elsewhere. It has achieved production of top-grade parts in quantity.

It has shown the world a radical advance in the improvement of metals by heat-treating.

It designs, tests and stands responsible for every part of every Packard Truck.

Even the Packard owner often finds it startling to see his advantages put down in cold figures—though he has known all about it in practice ever since 1906.

MOTORDOM

Big Gain Made by Car Exports in 1919 Over 1918

Increase During First Part of Year Not Maintained.

BY STUART D. TREGO.

LAST year was a record breaker for the automobile industry in more ways than one. More vehicles were made of greater value than heretofore, and exporting was on a greater scale than during any previous twelve months. The year's production of 1,891,929 motor vehicles exceeds all previous records, including the banner year of 1917, when 1,868,949 cars and trucks were turned out. Taking wholesale prices as a basis, the industry almost nosed into the $2,000,000,000 class.

Production of passenger cars did not quite measure up to 1917, these totaling 1,586,787, as against 1,740,792. There was a large gain in the truck field, however, the total production numbering 305,142, compared to 227,250 in 1918.

The total value of the trucks was $408,311,585, an average of $1,338 per vehicle, while the passenger car valuation amounted to $1,399,282,995, an average of $882 per car. The total value of both classes of motor vehicles was $1,807,594,580. Add to this the wholesale value of bodies, spare tires, and accessories to equip the cars or trucks ready for the owner's use and it will be seen how closely the total passes the two billion dollar mark.

The growth of automobile production during the last ten years makes an interesting story. The production of passenger cars is told in the following table:

	Number of cars.	Value.
[illegible]	3,700	$ 4,750,000
[illegible]	21,281	23,634,364
[illegible]	127,731	159,918,506
[illegible]	543,679	413,859,379
[illegible]	1,740,792	1,053,505,781
[illegible]	926,388	807,937,925
[illegible]	1,586,787	1,399,282,995

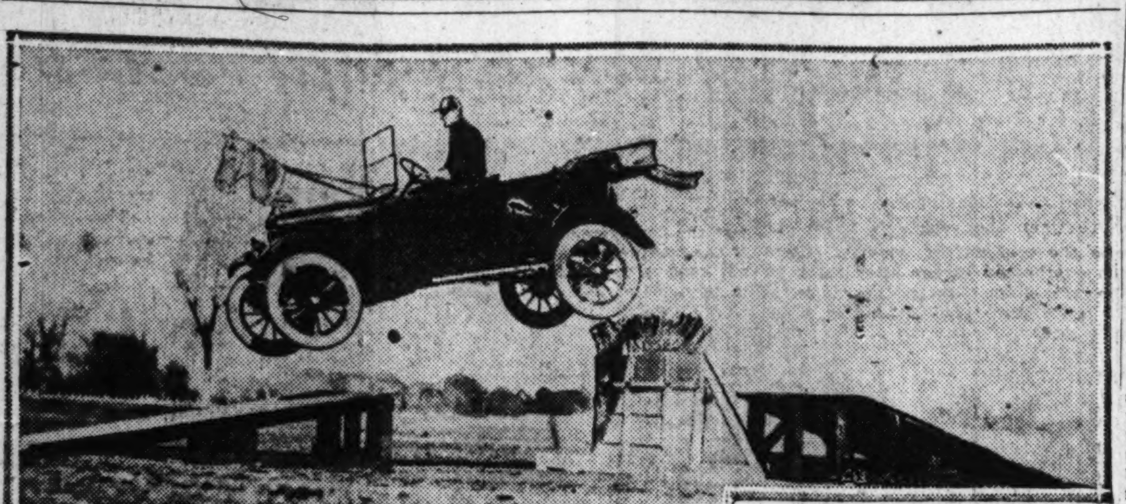
The growth in production of motor trucks is shown by the following:

	Number of trucks.	Value.
[illegible]	411	$ 946,947
[illegible]	10,655	22,292,321
[illegible]	128,157	220,982,668
[illegible]	227,250	434,168,992
[illegible]	305,142	408,311,585

The values given are the wholesale values.

Net gains of 88⅓ per cent in car exports and 50 per cent in truck shipments over the year 1918 are revealed in the totals for 1919. The large percentage of increase established during the first part of the year fell off slightly toward the last, due to the exchange situation.

Passenger cars exported in 1919 numbered 67,106, valued at $73,642,035, as against 36,936 cars valued at $36,278, 292, for 1918. There were 15,467 trucks, valued at $35,099,079, exported last year, compared with 10,308 trucks, valuation $26,814,952, the previous year.



A MODERN STEEPLECHASE—This car was used as an added starter in the hurdle jumping contests at the annual horse and stock show at Denver, Colo. The car leaped eighteen feet through the air, clearing a five foot hurdle, repeating the feat several times a day during the show.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS By High Speed

I have a Ford touring car which I have run 5,000 miles. I took the Kingston carburetor off to clean out the sediment in the bowl, put it back on, and now it floods. What is the cause of it flooding and how can I fix it to stop it from dripping on the floor?
G. D., Chicago.

Possibly the cause of this flooding is in a bent holder of the float. The small holder of the float which is made of brass is easily bent, and this may have happened in your case when you were cleaning the parts.

I have a six cylinder car and had some misfiring trouble. I tried everything to stop this trouble, and so did the mechanics, but it did not stop. A friend of mine suggested that it might be because the intake gets cold in front and the gas condenses. What do you think and what would you suggest?
J. B. P.

Your friend may be right. A sufficiently cold air draught might chill the manifold down to such a low point that the mixture becomes half liquid. Try covering the end of the manifold with an asbestos sheet.

I am having continual trouble with my storage battery, although I have followed the maker's directions and have kept it filled with distilled water. Could there be any trouble in the generator?
F. E. L.

Yes. The trouble probably is caused by the generator's charging rate being incorrect. Perhaps you drive a lot at night, using current for lighting and also for starting. Consult the nearest battery station of the make you have, where an expert will adjust the charging rate to take care of the service you demand of the battery.

Steels that make a Maxwell Alert

More miles per gallon
More miles on tires

That quick, sympathetic action you get when you call on a Maxwell to pass the car ahead, to flatten out a hill, to escape from the crowd in traffic has a story.

It's a story of steels.

You can analyze a Maxwell pound for pound with any car built and you will find it quite the equal in fine steels.

A Maxwell had to be made of fine steels. There was no other way.

Because it was built to deliver economic transportation. That meant no superfluous weight. It meant light weight.

But it also meant excessive strength.

Because a rare combination of strength with lightness had to be provided in its steels.

Any metallurgist will tell you that the only answer was the very finest of steels.

They never burden the Maxwell engine, so when you call for results you get them in a Maxwell.

That's one of many reasons why the friendly drift towards Maxwell continues to increase day by day.

Now there are nearly 400,000 of them on the roads of the world.

The demand so far exceeds the supply that only 60% of those who have set their minds on a Maxwell can succeed in possessing one this year.

The excessive flow of oil so common in modern automobile motors can be controlled by installing one McQuay-Norris Superoyl Ring in the top groove of each piston, with McQuay-Norris LeakProof Rings in the lower grooves.

The Superoyl Ring collects in its oil reservoir the excess oil from the cylinder walls on each downstroke of the piston, leaving just the film that is necessary for proper lubrication. The reservoir empties on each upstroke.

The position and shape of this reservoir cannot be obtained in any other ring. It is not a mere groove on the face of the ring. Its unique position, as shown in the cross-section illustration, is responsible for its success in solving oil and carbon troubles.

This ring will also maintain compression as well as any well-made one-piece ring can do—but should always be used in combination with McQuay-Norris LeakProof Piston Rings in the lower grooves to turn all the fuel into power.

Both these rings are made in every size and over-size to fit every make and model of motor.

Your repair man can get the proper sizes for you promptly from his jobber's complete stock.

Budgeting Irregular Income

By Alice Manning Dickey.

> Mrs. Dickey will furnish sample budgets upon request and assist in planning individual budgets with the coöperation of the woman's department, fair price commission of Illinois, and the budget experts on its staff. Address Mrs. Roy Dickey, The Chicago Sunday Tribune.

"A BUDGET is no doubt the efficient way of handling family finances," said a woman the other day. "But there are circumstances in which it is utterly impossible to plan a budget. Take my family, for instance. My husband is a physician and I have no more idea what our income is to be this year than I have as to who is to be our next president. It is perfectly clear that, whatever the advantages of a budget, I can't share in them."

But this is a mistaken conclusion. Anybody whose living expenses do not fall below a certain standard any year, though they may show high peaks of affluence at irregular intervals, can plan a budget. It is a much more difficult matter than apportioning a perfectly definite income, of course, but it can be done.

If any household acounts have been kept the problem is lessened, for a glance back at monthly totals for the last two years will serve to indicate how much the bread and butter needs of the family have cost. And the woman whose husband is a professional man with no fixed income must start by considering only those bread and butter needs. Whatever record there has been of the cost of maintaining the family for the last two or three years, even though it may exist only in the memory, will show that for no year have the total expenditures fallen below a certain sum.

Makes Survey of Past Expenses.

It is this minimum standard which must be adopted as a starting point in planning a budget for an uncertain income. A mental review of the last year will be a great help—the clothes that have been purchased for the different members of the family and their cost; the amount paid for rent, taxes, insurance, light, heat, put into investments, paid to church or charity, spent on vacations or travels, club dues, etc.

A careful and conscientious survey of past expenses will prove illuminating, besides providing that minimum basis for computing a budget. For many a woman who feels that the clothing bills of the family have been so meager as to cut little figure in any swallowing up of the family income will be surprised to find to what a total the expenditures she deemed modest will amount.

Suppose a survey of minimum expenses for the necessities of life under the standard of living to which this family is accustomed indicates $3,600 as the sum below which the family bills have never fallen. That, then, will act as a basis for a budget.

The budgeteer should proceed on the assumption that she is to have an income of exactly $3,600 and should work out its apportionment accordingly; so much for food, so much for rent, so much for light, heat, personal service, and other operating expenses; so much for clothing or for the personal allowances of each member of the family, including clothing; so much for savings, so much for recreation, etc.

Study Other Budgets.

Other people's budgets are a help here. No budget ever planned will exactly fit two families, but it will suggest the proportions which should govern the division of the income, and with alterations to make it suit the different sized family and the special idiosyncrasies which appertain to it, it makes budget planning infinitely easier. Therefore, one should consult every "second hand budget" which comes under one's notice, and observe carefully the relative proportions of the different branches of expense.

Somebody else's $3,600 budget will thus be a help to the woman who has the particular problem to face which we are discussing. If it is for a family of five and hers has only three members, she should alter the amounts for food, clothing, recreation, and general expenses, but the rent will remain the same. If it is for a family of three, and she has five to care for, she should increase the allowances for food and clothing, and cut down on recreation, sundries, possibly savings, and all other expenses which can be reduced.

Here is a budget for $3,600 a year for a family of four:

Food	$80
Rent, including heat	65
Clothes	42
Housekeeping expenses	30
Miscellaneous and savings	83

"Housekeeping expenses" include light, gas for cooking, personal service—in this case, a laundress one day—and other incidental expenses of running the house—"operating expenses." Under "miscellaneous and savings" comes recreation, health, church, charity, various personal expenses of each member of the family, and other sundries.

Using the Surplus.

Having figured out a hypothetical budget at the $3,600 figure, she should then consider what items she will increase from time to time as more money comes in than she has planned for. For more money will come in, if she has taken a sum covering only the necessary expenses of the family, below which the family expenditures have never fallen, at least for the last two or three years. This means that each year, under the uncertain income plan, they have had more than this sum to spend, and naturally she will have more the coming year as well.

The woman who does not increase her food allowance as her income grows is a wise woman, provided it is at a point of comfortable though economical living. Where, then, shall she apply the surplus income she is sure to receive? Not on rent, because that is definitely settled. It is for her to decide whether the clothing items should or may be the first to be increased, or whether the first "largesse" shall be added to the savings account, or whether it shall be set aside for vacations or recreation or additions to the household furnishings.

It is perfectly possible for her to figure out her surplus in units of $50 or $100—what she will do with the first $50 which is in excess of the amount she knows from past experience will come in monthly; what she will do with the next. If there are long, lean periods when money fails to flow in, then she must adhere to the minimum budget until bill paying time for her husband's clients seems to have arrived again.

This adventure in budget making has really more possibilities of satisfaction than fall to those of definite income. If there is no budget, there can be no considered buying, and people of indefinite and irregular income are likely to spend money without getting the most out of it because its expenditure cannot be planned.

Once substitute a plan for haphazard spending and there is so much more pleasure in apportioning that surplus and so much satisfaction in getting the most for it and in applying it to that particular branch of the family's tastes or needs where it will do the most good or give the most pleasure that no woman would willingly go back to any other plan of handling the family's finances.

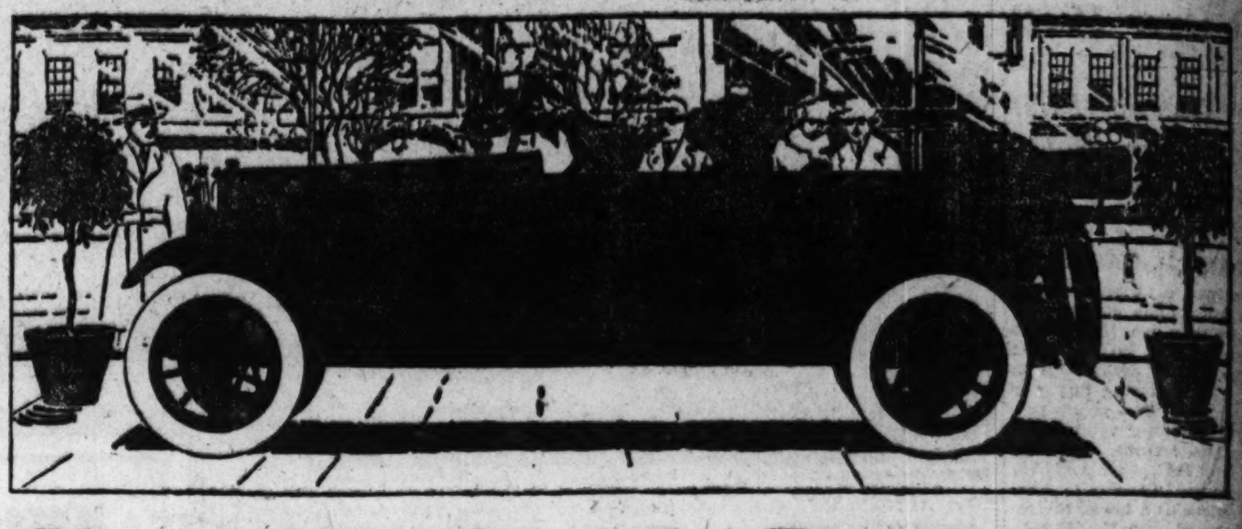
CHANDLER SIX

Famous For Its Marvelous Motor



Chandler Leads Because of Its Real Worth

IT is easy to boast and make claims and to so magnify mere incidents that they may appear as mighty events. It is easy to paint in the colors of exaggeration.

Chandler advertising has never carried boasts or unfounded assertions to the public. It has never extolled some single performance as final evidence of superiority.

The Chandler Six is so distinctly the leader among medium-priced high-grade cars because of its own worthiness, which for sales purposes does not need the support of exaggeration.

Chandler worthiness comes primarily, of course, from its great chassis, light, strong and enduring, featured by the famous Chandler motor developed throughout seven years of constant manufacture with no change of type of design, but with refinements and developments which have kept it long strides ahead of any other six.

This isn't a claim. It's a fact, and over sixty thousand Chandler owners would tell you so if you could ask them.

Six handsome bodies, splendidly built and finished, are mounted on the one standard Chandler chassis.

Other cars of some similarity are listed at hundreds of dollars more

A rebuilt Marmon 34 has all the intrinsic value of a new car

In considering a rebuilt Marmon 34, remember it is something out of the ordinary in used cars.

In the first place, a Marmon 34 is a Marmon 34, regardless what year it was built. The design is stabilized. Any refinement in a new series never alters the basic Marmon design and appearance.

Any Marmon 34, therefore, always looks up-to-date. And a used Marmon 34, renewed as we do it, has all the intrinsic value of a new one just out of the factory.

Made new-like

We renew only those cars that are in excellent condition when turned in.

And when we finish with the car you would think it fresh from the factory. We tear down the engine completely. We do not hesitate to replace any number of parts. Tests must show the engine to be in perfect condition before the job is O. K.'d.

Every detail of the car receives this careful attention—the upholstery, trimmings, plated parts, etc. Then the car is repainted. Thus renewal is complete.

We urge you to call and visit our shops, examine our equipment, and see the type of expert mechanics we employ renewing Marmon cars.

Full warranty

We give you exactly the same warranty on a rebuilt Marmon 34 as we do on a new Marmon. This entitles you to full new-car service.

A good "buy"

For the man who is interested in a long-life car, one that brings comfort mileage at low cost, a rebuilt Marmon 34 offers a wonderful investment. An inspection will be convincing. If you cannot call soon, phone or write for our Bulletin of Rebuilt Marmon 34's.

Special attention to out-of-town buyers.

Locomobile – Mercer – Simplex

ANNOUNCE

a plan of joint operation to insure the most efficient use of their combined resources

HARE'S MOTORS

(The stock of which is entirely owned by The Locomobile Company and Mercer Motors Company) has been organized to direct and coordinate the production and distribution of these affiliated Companies

History

In October 1919 Mercer Motors Company acquired the property of the Mercer Automobile Company.

In December 1919 The Locomobile Company was organized to take over the property of The Locomobile Company of America; Mercer Motors Company receiving a substantial interest in The Locomobile Company.

In January 1920 Mercer Motors Company absorbed the Simplex Automobile Company, manufacturers of the Simplex and Crane-Simplex cars.

Today Hare's Motors assumes the directing power of all these properties. Its function will be to see that in effecting the big increase of output already under way, and the rapid diversification of product for which these factories are being equipped, there shall be no waste of plant space or of effort in any respect.

Organization

Hare's Motors will be officered by these well known men:

President—Emlen S. Hare, formerly Vice-President, Packard Motor Car Company.

Vice-President, in charge of Engineering Development—H. D. Church, formerly Chief Engineer Motor Truck Division, Packard Motor Car Company.

Vice-President, in charge of Production—Ormond E. Hunt, formerly Chief Engineer, Motor Carriage Division, Packard Motor Car Company.

Vice-President, in charge of Distribution & Maintenance—Henry Lansdale, formerly General Carriage Sales Manager, Packard Motor Car Company.

Vice-President and Consulting Engineer—A. L. Riker, formerly Vice-President and Chief Engineer Locomobile Company of America.

Secretary & Treasurer—F. R. Hickman, formerly Treasurer, Locomobile Company of America.

Through the medium of Hare's Motors, Locomobile, Mercer and Simplex are welded together for purposes of operation and tremendously strengthened by each other's resources plus the directing brain power of the Hare's Motors staff. It is safe to say that the knowledge and experience of automobile engineering, production, and distribution in the quality field which is brought together by the combination of these executive groups is not equalled or even approached in any other organization throughout the length and breadth of the industry.

Purpose

To provide a complete assortment of highest grade passenger and freight transportation units.

In furtherance of this object, to increase materially and immediately the output of all plants under its control.

Standards

Hare's Motors is managed by men who know but one standard of quality and that the highest. The manufacturing practice of its shops will be the soundest known to American workmanship.

Ideals

In these momentous times a statement of ideals will not be out of place. The contemporary clamor for rights is submerging the emphasis on duties. An unprecedented zest for gain tends to obscure the fact that permanent gain comes only by way of obligation thoroughly fulfilled.

The Hare's Motors management intend that their Company shall succeed most by serving most.

They mean that it shall deserve the confidence, possess the admiration and receive the enthusiastic patronage of the American people by standing for all that is best in American business enterprise.

Slams of Life

by J. P. McEvoy

A NATIONAL HYMN FOR SOVIET RUSSIA.

Upon a Steppe a Soviet sat
And played his light Ukraine,
His favorite pogrom nestled near
And uraled each refrain,
While now and then a denikine
Would trotsky o'er the plain.

"Oh, proletariat," he sang,
A scheme we should devise,
To vladivostok what we have
Or else denationalize,
Unless you feel a protocol
Would not be quite so wise."

In charming old bourgeoise that day,
A syllogism heard,
"You are a moratorium,"
He pskoffed the horrid word,
A minor premise lurking near Replied, "O, what's a kurd!"

The vodka on his ikon rode
As only vodkas ride;
"I'm semenoff to smyrna them"
He kiosked in his pride,
Is yonder Bolshevik irkutsk?
"Odessa," he replied.

Hints on Driving.

There is no need to tell the old driver that railroad tracks should be crossed diagonally to ease the jolt, which is bad enough at best, but the new driver will save himself some shaking up by heeding this advice. Again, it will be found advantageous to drive up long, steep grades in the country, where traffic is light, in a series of zigzags, as teamsters do. This lightens the grade and helps the motor.

WHY THEY LAUGH IN VAUDEVILLE

PALACE.

Billy Frawley and Edna Louise:

"Well, 7 o'clock! Time to call the customers. Hello! 7 o'clock, madam. No, not p. m.—a. m. Hello, dearie. Seven bells. No, not seven barrels. This is a call, not an order. Your radiator's leaking? Call the garage. You're speaking to the night clerk now. Hello! Did you say you wanted to take the 7 o'clock train. Well, it's just gone. Ah! 7 p. m. The hour when sunshine angels change to moonshine devils."

"Say, dear, I'm just crazy about you."

"It's too early for that sort of thing. Cigar stand isn't open yet."

"Now, look here, I don't mean any harm."

"No, I'm as safe with you as Willard was with Jack Dempsey."

"Listen, what time do you get hungry?"

"I lost my appetite just about two minutes after seeing you."

"Do you know why bald headed men sit in the front row?"

"Because they get their tickets from scalpers."

"Ah, women! Ignore them, they pursue you. Flag 'em, they run away. Give them presents, you're a chump. Don't give them, you're a piker. Hug them, they rob you. Propose and they kid you. Marry them, they break you!"

Equivalent to one third of First Liberty Loan—LOST!

KILL THE RAT!

ONE billion dollars' worth of foodstuffs are destroyed in this country, every year, by Rats! This is equal to one-third of the first Liberty Loan. Government statistics show that to produce the foodstuffs destroyed by rats in this country each year requires the labor of 150,000 farmers—and farm workers.

Rats, Mice, Roaches, Water-Bugs and Bed-Bugs—are doubly dangerous! They not only ruin property, but spread disease and cause much sickness!

For over forty-six years
"J-O" the standard exterminator has been the deadly enemy of Rats, Mice, Roaches, Bed-Bugs, Water-Bugs and certain other insects!

Homes, Restaurants, Hotels, Hospitals, Jails, Factories and Public Buildings can be kept clean—and free from these pests, by the use of "J-O" Roach-Rat Paste—and "J-O" Bug-Roach Powder.

Unlike other preparations, J-O has no offensive odor. It is a clear white compound; absolutely safe and easy to apply. Comes in a convenient can of generous size. Price 25c

Used by certain departments of the United States Government.

"J-O" Roach-Rat Paste kills Roaches, Rats, Mice and Water-Bugs.

"J-O" Bug-Roach Powder, in convenient can with sifter top, kills Roaches, Bed-Bugs, Ants, Flies and certain other insects.

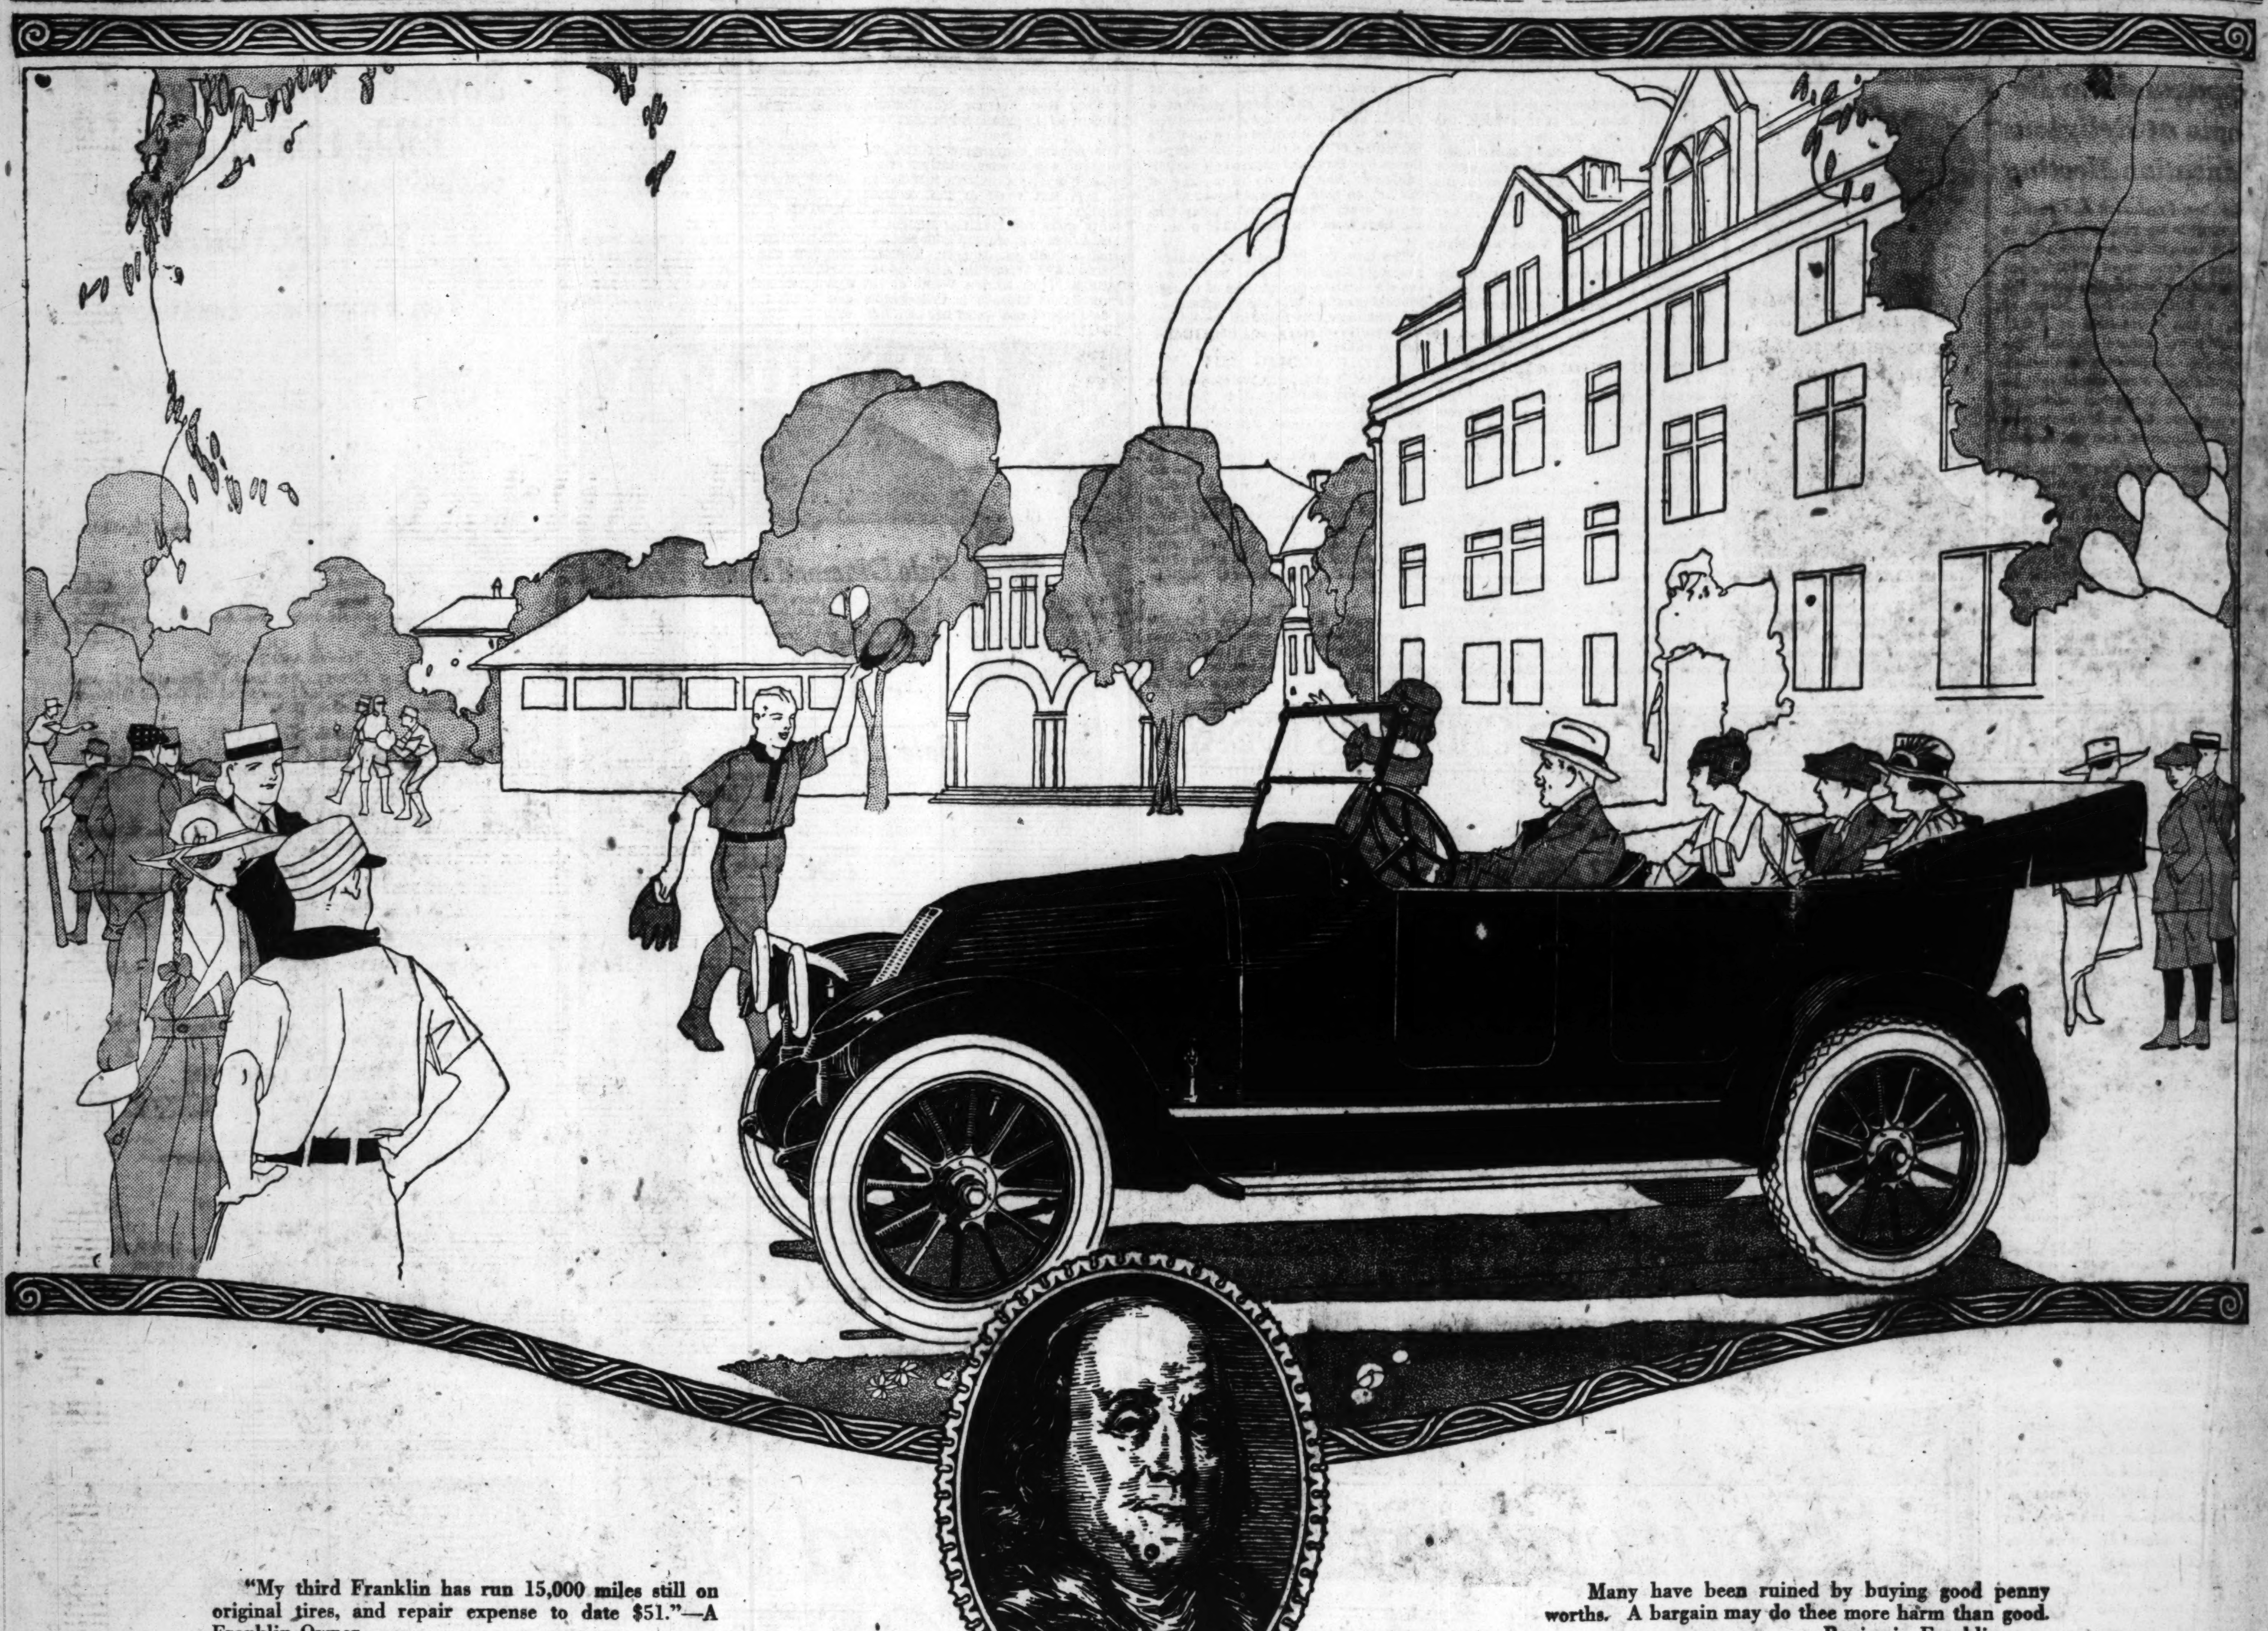
ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE



"My third Franklin has run 15,000 miles still on original tires, and repair expense to date $51."—A Franklin Owner.

Many have been ruined by buying good penny worths. A bargain may do thee more harm than good.
—Benjamin Franklin.

Franklin Economy Is Based on Quality

THE Franklin was the original light weight car—the originator of light weight principles in motor car construction.

The success of Franklin light weight construction has increased the demand for light weight cars. Because light weight—in the Franklin—has spelled economy.

Now fully half the motor car advertisements you read specify light weight as one of the car's advantages. Some stress the point as though light weight were everything in a car. But lightness must not be secured through sacrifice.

The successful light car is that which is light from its very inception. It is not made light, but designed light. And the Franklin is such.

Light Weight Without Sacrifice

Franklin design has not been importantly changed for years. As early as 1902 the relation of light weight to motoring comfort and economy was recognized in this car. Lightness was achieved without compromise.

For instance, its engine, of ample proportions, owes its lightness solely to the absence of cumbersome water-cooling equipment. It is not stripped of ruggedness to weigh less. The chassis frame, amply strong, obtains lightness through the use of laminated wood stronger than steel of equal weight.

Advantages of lightness are conceded by all. Snappier performance, easier riding, reduced expense are all achieved. In the Franklin these are achieved naturally, safely, without sacrifice of quality.

The thing to remember about the light weight of a Franklin car is that it weighs every pound it should weigh.

Regarding Price

We could not have made the headway we have on the basis of first cost. Cars selling for less than our prices far outnumber those sold for as much, or more. The Franklin has no appeal to the man looking for a cheap car. Yet the Franklin is, in the true sense, a "bargain."

The wisdom of Benjamin Franklin's observation of the good penny's worth applies to practically everything you buy. It is true of almost anything you may purchase to eat, use or wear. It is eloquently true of motor cars.

Selling price loses a lot of its significance when depreciation cost is considered. (This being the largest item of expense in the operation of any car, it is surprising how few people calculate it.) We are in a position to invite and urge such calculation.

The economy—the "bargain"—in the Franklin is the combination of light weight principle producing low operating cost and high grade construction assuring long life and slow depreciation.

What Will I Get in the Franklin?

The Franklin takes you where you wish to go, in comfort unequaled in any other car at any price. Forty-five to fifty miles per hour, if you like. How often have you ridden faster?

As a matter of fact, Franklins are driven at a greater average speed than cars of tremendous speed possibilities. Their light flexible construction makes this possible. You need make less allowance for rough stretches and detours which prudence frequently interposes with a car less nimble.

Tire trouble is a remote possibility when you own a Franklin. Each tire supports but six or seven hundred pounds. And full elliptic springs further absorb shock. It carries no water to freeze or boil and weather does not affect its perfect cooling system. So the tour, week-end journey, evening's suburban jaunt are taken in this car with no thought of motoring difficulties.

Depending on your temperament, you will attach importance to the many little conveniences such as three grease cups—only three—on this car; no radiator to fill; a gasoline tank holding but 13½ gallons, yet filled less frequently than a 20-gallon tank on the car of greater weight.

Economy of time, of your own nervous energy, of dollar-cost. These things we can give you. Proof is abundant. You are entitled to it. We shall not resent your asking proof of every statement we print or utter in our own knowledge of and enthusiasm for the Franklin.

All of which is an invitation to see, yourself, a Franklin out-perform cars you have ridden in. It will do it every time.

DO YOU WANT A HIGH CLASS, DELIGHTFUL COUNTRY HOME OF YOUR OWN?

"The Oaks," with a charming river washing its high banks, with nearly one hundred great oaks in park and lawn, no wonder it was the inspiration of James Fennimore Cooper's "Oak Openings." A hundred and more years ago, when the Indian had his wigwam under these same oaks, they had then been growing during two hundred years.

It is now nearly in the center of an ideal town of 2,000 people. Willow and sycamore fringe the river, and besides the oaks many other trees, shrubs, and flowers adorn the lawn, giving a welcome to the birds.

Five acres of land—three acres in park and lawn, two acres in garden. Tennis, croquet, boating and fishing are all here, and a summer house built under trees by the river.

Nearly in the center of the five acres, in a commanding position, stands the house, having fifteen rooms, besides furnace room, cellar and laundry, with its self-regulating motor, sending from cisterns rain water throughout the house. The water supplied from the village water works is pure and sparkling. The front porch is 10x30. The first floor has large parlor, reception room, dining room, servants' room, kitchen, pantries, wood room and plant room. Second floor has three large sleeping rooms, library, bath and toilet. Third floor, art room and two sleeping rooms. Electricity throughout house and grounds. Everything modern and complete.

An ideal location for a sanitarium, clubhouse and grounds. An outing place for children in summer, or, better still, a beautiful residence.

Located on the Dixie Highway and Kalamazoo river at Plainwell, Mich., 12 miles from Kalamazoo. $11,000 is $5,000 less than its value.
